Secret Nuclear Weapon Fired As Nevada Aerial Tests Begin

Oran Cheers 1000 Troops Of Ben Bella

Left-Winger's Soldiers March In Triumphantly

ALGIERS (UPI) — A thousand men of the National Liberation Army ALN loyal to left - wing radical Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella marched triumphantly into Oran Saturday night and were greeted by resounding cheers from the thousands who lined the streets.

Arrival of the nine ALN army units was a bitter blow to moderate Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda and his cabinet who are trying to marshal popular support for their shaky provisional government which seeks to retain close ties with France.

FEARED TUNISIA

The Provisional Government (GPRA) already was faced with "hostile" action by Morocco in the Algerian Sahara in what could be the start of an effort to move in on its desert oil riches. It was feared that Tunisia also might follow suit.

The Ben Bella troops entered Oran from Tlemcen, near the Moroccan border, and proceeded directly to barracks reseved for them on the edge of the city. They did not pass by the European quarter of the city.

But Europeans, fearing bitter fighting in the power struggle between Ben Bella and Ben Khedda, stepped up their exodus to France. Throughout the day Europeans lined up outside Airline and shipping offices seeking transportation to the French mainland. In their thoughts was the fact 95 persons were killed and 163 injured in Oran Thursday.

Ben Bella, who seeks to lead newly independent Algeria into a sort of a "people's democracy," split with Ben Khedda last week end when Ben Khedda fired the ALN three-man general staff. That action brought charges from Ben Bella that the GPRA had "Sabotaged" the revolution.

The provisional government, in an apparent attempt to heal the breach between Ben Bella and Ben Khedda, sent two ministers to Rabat Saturday to see former Minister Mohammed Khider and probably Ben Bella.

Widow Of Late Ruston Mayor, Senator Dies

RUSTON (Special) — Mrs. Margaret Hammett Knott, 84-year-old well known Ruston woman, died Saturday morning in a hospital here after an illness of approximately two days.

Mrs. Knott, widow of the late R. B. Knott, who was a former Ruston mayor and state senator, was a charter member of the school improvement league. She was also an active member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Funeral services will be held at 4:30 p.m. Sunday in the chapel of Spears Funeral Home of Ruston. The Revs. Eddy Morgan, Marvin McFarland and Joseph Cathcart will officiate.

Burial will follow in Greenwood Cemetery under the direction of Spears Funeral Home of Ruston.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Wesley B. Staley, Greensboro, N. C., Mrs. Thompson Clarke, St. Joseph, La., and Mrs. Margaret Redfield, Baton Rouge; three sisters, Mrs. John F. McClellan, Louisville, Miss., Mrs. Oscar Gilbert, Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Gertrude Hammett, San Diego, Calif.; two brothers, Harry Hammett, San Diego, and Paul Hammett, San Angelo, Tex., and one grandchild.

Soldiers Plan Blood Donation

FT. POLK, La. (AP) — Sixteen 4th Armored Division infantrymen from Ft. Polk will team up in Dallas Monday to furnish an 11-year old girl blood needed for open heart surgery.

Martha Pearce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pearce of Sulphur Springs, Tex., will undergo the delicate operation in Children's Memorial Hospital to correct a heart murmur she has had since birth.

The task of finding 16 donars was solved when the Rev. Laurens R. Williams, Episcopal pastor in Sulphur Springs, contacted the Sulphur Springs unit of the 49th Division. He is an ex-first sergeant in the division.

When confronted with the request to donate blood, 40 members of the unit, Company D, 3rd Armored Rifle Battalion, volunteered.

Chaplain Halts Riot In Hospital

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Some 62 patients of the maximum security ward of the Lima State Hospital for the Criminally Insane rioted for about three hours Saturday night but were subdued after the hospital chaplain went into the ward.

The chaplain, a Roman Catholic priest whose name is not available, talked his way into the barricaded ward. After talking with the patients for some time, 23 left with him. Then guards, highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies worked their way into the ward and after a brief scuffle brought the disturbance under control.

GUARDS HELD

Five guards were held in the three-story cement building. One was released earlier by the patients. The other four managed to barricade themselves in a room.

One, David Porter, was hit on the head when the riot broke out. He was taken to a hospital with a possible brain concussion. The others were not hurt.

The riot broke out about 7:20 p.m. It was quelled at 10:20 p.m.

Authorities said there were no fires and no serious damage. One tear gas shell was fired by officers but most of the effort was in attempting to talk the patients into surrendering.

The rest of the 1,300-patient mental hospital remained relatively quiet during the three hours. One minor disturbance in another ward was quickly subdued.

Authorities said an escape by any of the patients was nearly impossible. The self-contained maximum security building was ringed by armed law officers. None of the patients was believed to have had any firearms and their only weapons were pieces of furniture in the ward.

STATE CODE OF ETHICS

House To Tackle Final Major Bill

By SAM HANNA
World Legislature Writer

BATON ROUGE — The Louisiana Legislature is within four days of adjourning sine die today, but faced a package of political dynamite that could go off when the lawmakers return Monday.

A code of ethics bill by Sen. B. H. (Johnny) Rogers of Grand Cane is scheduled for final passage in the House when the legislature convenes at 4 p.m. Monday.

Legislators had a long weekend at home before coming back for the last week of the 1962 session. The legislature will adjourn in the wee hours of the morning Thursday.

But first there's the Senate passed code of ethics bill—the last of the big fights and one of the hottest of a session that has been a squabble from start to finish.

FAR-REACHING BILL

Rogers proposes to establish a code of ethics by which state employes and officials, including legislators, would live in their services for the state.

The bill, in short, would prohibit employes and officials from gaining anything of value when the intent to defraud the state is involved.

But the bill is more far-reaching than that and all three of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' floor leaders in the House are against it in its present form.

The bill would create a nine-man commission to administer the code with authority to investigate any alleged wrongdoing within government circles.

Actions that would be considered in violation of the code are spelled out in the bill that is designed to discourage any person from committing a dishonest act.

Monroe's business district streets are taking on a new look — since the city traffic department has been giving them a new striping job.

Major Jack Davis, head of the police department traffic division, said his crews worked all night Thursday night, putting new stripes to mark off crosswalks on the city streets. But they ran into a little difficulty when a machine or two broke down in the middle of the work.

Eight local women were presented certificates for completion of an adult education class in beginning clothing at Ouachita Parish High School Thursday night, July 5. GIGANTIC PROJECT

Two Million Texans To Get Polio Shots

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Two Sundays — July 29 and Aug. 5 — were set Saturday as dates for a gigantic project — giving two million people in the Forth Worth-Dallas area oral antipolio vaccine.

The massive immunization will include persons who already have received their Salk vaccine by hypodermic needle.

Dr. Oliver Luecke Jr. said the reason for both vaccines is this: A person immunized with Salk vaccine still can infect other persons. Those immunized with the Sabin oral vaccine do not infect others.

Dr. Luecke is chairman of the steering committee for the Dallas County Medical Society's mass program.

Adjacent countries were invited to join the project.

The announcement of the dates was made as Dallas recorded six polio cases in recent weeks. Fort worth cases also are running ahead of last year.

Doctors Set Strike, Seek Higher Pay

Austrian Medics Will Begin Move Monday Morning

VIENNA (AP)—Austria's 13,700 doctors will go on a nationwide strike Monday in a demand for an increase of fees from the sickness compensation funds, a government-controlled health insurance pool compulsory for all workers and employes.

Only emergency teams will remain on duty in hospitals and first aid stations during the 24-hour walkout.

HEIGHT OF CRISIS

The strike, called by the Austrian Chamber of Doctors, comes at the height of a major domestic crisis which erupted last week in a series of strike threats from the country's 46,000 postal employes and 26,000 police and gendarmes. The postal employes demanded a substantial service bonus, the policemen an increase of salaries.

The postal strike, called during the absence of Chancellor Alfons Gorbach in Moscow, was averted in a last-minute compromise which led to a split in the government coalition.

The doctors' strike movement originated in Vienna after the insurance fund turned down the demand to raise doctors' fees by 65 per cent under a new contract.

Doctors throughout the provinces decided to join the strike in support of their Viennese colleagues.

The doctors said their contract fees have been lagging considerably behind, compared with wage increases of other groups.

The doctors said a physician still gets only about 25 cents from the fund for a call on a patient.

The fund has some 5,400 doctors under contract to give free services to the insured. Because doctors in Vienna do not now have a contract, patients must pay doctors in cash and then try to get their money back from the fund. The doctors have increased their fees and the patients may get only part of their bill reimbursed.

The strike announcement brought a wave of protests from trade unions.

Shepherds Find Jet's Wreckage Police Believe

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Police said early Sunday two shepherd boys found the wreckage of a plane believed to be an Alitalia jetliner that disappeared with 94 persons aboard. They said the wreckage was sighted by the youths on a hill in the jungles about 50 miles northeast of Bombay.

Officers at the town of Junnar reported the body of one man—apparently a European—had been found in the wreckage. They said an Italian lira note was found nearby.

There were no immediate reports of other victims. The police placed the crash site 14 miles west of Junnar.

The announcement came after unconfirmed reports reached the Santa Cruz Airport here that the wreckage of the Italian DC8 had been sighted by a truck driver near the town of Khed, about 60 miles east of Bombay. Rescue teams were sent to that area.

Earlier police reported investigators had been sent to Murbad, about 50 miles in a more southeasterly direction from Bombay, to check into reports that wreckage of a plane had been found there. They said this report had come from a government official at Murbad.

Warmer Today By One Degree

The weatherman says the Twin Cities will be in for a warmer day as the temperature is predicted to inch up another notch for a high of 95 degrees today. Saturday's high reading was 94.

The forecast also calls for clear to partly cloudy skies with a low of 74 degrees and no hints of showers. Variable winds will continue blowing at between 5 to 15 miles-per-hour.

Saturday's low dropped to 71 degrees. Gila Bend, Ariz. reported the nation's highest temperature Saturday of 113 degrees.

East Carroll Vote Hearing Slated Here

A federal hearing to determine voting qualifications of a group of East Carroll Parish Negroes who filed applications for voting registration will be held here Thursday morning in the Federal District courtroom in the main downtown postoffice building in Monroe.

U. S. Dist. Judge Edwin F. Hunter of Lake Charles said Saturday night he will either conduct the hearing or appoint a referee.

STAY VACATED

The hearing was set after the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans vacated a stay of an injunction a federal authority had obtained against the state attorney general and the East Carroll registrar of voters, Cecil Manning, who resigned June 14.

The stay of the injunction was vacated due to a law which requires qualifications of applicant voters to be determined 10 days after registration have been filed.

Judge Hunter was appointed to take the place of U. S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins, presently in Jacksonville, Fla.

Judge Dawkins of Shreveport granted an injunction May 30 to halt alledged discrimination applying to registration.

Letters from the clerk of the western district federal court in Shreveport have been sent to 43 Negroes advising them to be present at 10:30 a.m. Letters to 37 more Negroes are to be sent out Monday.

The letters also said that if none of the applicants appeared, "it will be presumed that the voter does not want to continue the matter."

Although the East Carroll Police Jury has been advertising for new registrar of voters, left vacant by the resignation of Manning, there has been no successor. The jury said applications for the position will be considered at their Tuesday meeting in Lake Providence.

WEST MONROE FIRE

Woman Is Saved By Quick Action

By SARAH LITTLE
World Staff Writer

Quick action by a neighbor and a Monroe fireman probably saved the life of a West Monroe woman Saturday afternoon when her house caught fire.

Mrs. Alma Wright, of 124 Keller St., was rushed to St. Francis hospital for emergency treatment after she either fainted or was overcome by smoke from a fire in her house.

She was carried from the frame house by a next-door neighbor, Ronnie Causey of 128 Keller St., who found her in the back bedroom of the smoke filled dwelling.

FIREMEN ARRIVE

Members of the Monroe Fire Department Truck No. Seven, said that when they arrived at the scene, they found Mrs. Wright lying in the back yard. She had apparently stopped breathing and was becoming discolored. No one of the many onlookers at the fire was near her.

Fireman Billy R. Trichell quickly applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and was able to revive her. A Ouachita Parish Sheriff's department deputy said Trichell worked with her for approximately 15 minutes before she began breathing in a more normal fashion.

She was rushed to St. Francis hospital by Kilpatrick ambulance where her condition was reported as satisfactory by hospital attendants.

Firemen, meanwhile, quickly brought the blaze under control. Fire burned the mattress, wall and floor of the front bedroom. Though not definitely determined, fire department officials said possibly the blaze resulted from smoking in bed. This was the second time a fire has occurred within four weeks at this same residence.

Exiled Islanders Prefer Volcano To 20th-Century

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — The Tristan Islanders have given up on the 20th Century.

They want to go back to their ancient lonely island in the South Atlantic, away from it all despite the danger of volcanos.

The humble folk of Tristan da Cunha were forced to flee their homes last October and brought to Britain, where they were excited by their first look at such modern inventions as automobiles, trains, television, telephones, and especially traffic lights.

This first thrill has worn off.

"Give us the opportunity to land a small force of young men on our island to plant potatoes and we will go back," Willie Repetto, leader of the islanders, told the British government.

NUCLEAR-MISSILE TYPES

Jackson Says Red Subs Progressing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union was credited Sunday with "enormous progress in the nuclear submarine field" which soon may enable the Russians to match the missile-firing capabilities of the powerful U.S. Polaris submarines.

The estimate came from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has extensive knowledge of military secrets through his membership on the Congressional Atomic and Senate Armed Services committees.

The United States now plans a total of 41 Polaris nuclear-powered submarines, each of which can launch 16 ballistic missiles with atomic warheads while submerged or surfaced.

Jackson, in a taped interview with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., for use over Pennsylvania radio-television stations, said the expanding Soviet nuclear underwater flotilla probably will force an expansion of the U.S. Polaris fleet.

Jackson said of Polaris program: "We're turning them out very rapidly. I think we'll have the program—41 — completed at the end of calendar 1964 or early 1965. My guess is that we'll have to increase that total."

Jackson said the Soviet Union apparently kept secret the launching of their nuclear-powered submarines until they had a flotilla.

"It's safe to say that they have a growing number of nuclear submarines and this presents one of our greatest challenges in the defense field, namely the problems of—antisubmarine warfare."

Scott was asked if the Soviet submarines are able to "fire from under the water as ours do?"

If they do not have this ability now, Jackson replied, "There's no doubt that they will have this capability."

Blast First Over Desert In 4 Years

CAMP MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — The United States fired a secret low - power nuclear weapon a few feet above the desert Saturday in the first resumption of aerial nuclear testing on its own soil since 1958.

The Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defense said the explosion was to test the effects of the weapon.

ROADS BLOCKED

The mighty blast may be a prelude to tests next week using troops in atomic battlefield conditions. Such tests have been reported forthcoming, without official confirmation.

Secrecy cloaked this test at the Nevada test site. Roads to the vicinity were blocked, and outside observers were barred.

Officials called the device low yield. This meant it had an explosive force up to 20 kilotons, equal to 20,000 tons of TNT.

One observer on a hill 55 miles distant said there was a slight flash and a small cloud of dust—in striking contrast to the 100-kiloton underground shot Friday which shot a towering plume of smoke 19,000 feet into the air.

In view of the security regulations, the only descriptions came from unofficial sources outside the sprawling test site.

The AEC announced 105 minutes after the blast that a cloud rose to an altitude of about 8,000 feet above the ground and drifted northward, dissipating rapidly. Radioactivity was expected to become so low by the time the cloud reached inhabited places.

Big Blast Cancelled 4th Time

HONOLULU (AP)—The United States postponed again Saturday for the fourth time its planned high-altitude nuclear test above Johnston Island.

The official cause was bad weather.

However, the U.S. Weather Bureau had indicated improving weather and said after the postponement was announced that the test site had average winds and only scattered clouds.

The big explosion was reset for Sunday night after 11 p.m. — 4 a.m. Monday Eastern Standard Time—but technical or weather troubles could delay it to 2:30 a.m.—7:30 a.m. EST.

If the device isn't fired by then another postponement will be ordered, probably until Monday night.

The third attempt was planned for July 4 after two missile failures. Clouds and rain squalls over Johnston Island spoiled chances Friday night and high winds were blamed for a 24-hour delay Thursday. Technical difficulties apparently caused the postponement Wednesday.

The clouds and rain moved away from the mid-Pacific test zone early Saturday and midday reports from Johnston said only scattered cloudiness remained. The Weather Bureau said photographs taken by the U.S. Tiros satellite indicated "generally good" conditions.

A forecaster said weather was normal in the area and seemed surprised when told the official reason for postponing was bad weather. Joint Task Force 8 would not elaborate on the bad weather cause for delay.

East Carroll Vote Hearing Slated Here

A federal hearing to determine voting qualifications of a group of East Carroll Parish Negroes who filed applications for voting registration will be held here Thursday morning in the Federal District courtroom in the main downtown postoffice building in Monroe.

U. S. Dist. Judge Edwin F. Hunter of Lake Charles said Saturday night he will either conduct the hearing or appoint a referee.

STAY VACATED

The hearing was set after the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans vacated a stay of an injunction a federal authority had obtained against the state attorney general and the East Carroll registrar of voters, Cecil Manning, who resigned June 14.

The stay of the injunction was vacated due to a law which requires qualifications of applicant voters to be determined 10 days after registration have been filed.

Judge Hunter was appointed to take the place of U.S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins, presently in Jacksonville, Fla.

Judge Dawkins of Shreveport granted an injunction May 30 to halt alledged discrimination applying to registration.

Letters from the clerk of the western district federal court in Shreveport have been sent to 43 Negroes advising them to be present at 10:30 a.m. Letters to 37 more Negroes are to be sent out Monday.

The letters also said that if none of the applicants appeared, "it will be presumed that the voter does not want to continue the matter."

Although the East Carroll Police Jury has been advertising for new registrar of voters, left vacant by the resignation of Manning, there has been no successor. The jury said applications for the position will be considered at their Tuesday meeting in Lake Providence.

WEST MONROE FIRE

Woman Is Saved By Quick Action

By SARAH LITTLE
World Staff Writer

Quick action by a neighbor and a Monroe fireman probably saved the life of a West Monroe woman Saturday afternoon when her house caught fire.

Mrs. Alma Wright, of 124 Keller St., was rushed to St. Francis hospital for emergency treatment after she either fainted or was overcome by smoke from a fire in her house.

She was carried from the frame house by a next-door neighbor, Ronnie Causey of 128 Keller St., who found her in the back bedroom of the smoke filled dwelling.

FIREMEN ARRIVE

Members of the Monroe Fire Department Truck No. Seven, said that when they arrived at the scene, they found Mrs. Wright lying in the back yard. She had apparently stopped breathing and was becoming discolored. No one of the many onlookers at the fire was near her.

Fireman Billy R. Trichell quickly applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and was able to revive her. A Ouachita Parish Sheriff's department deputy said Trichell worked with her for approximately 15 minutes before she began breathing in a more normal fashion.

She was rushed to St. Francis hospital by Kilpatrick ambulance where her condition was reported as satisfactory by hospital attendants.

Firemen, meanwhile, quickly brought the blaze under control. Fire burned the mattress, wall and floor of the front bedroom. Though not definitely determined, fire department officials said possibly the blaze resulted from smoking in bed. This was the second time a fire has occurred within four weeks at this same residence.

Exiled Islanders Prefer Volcano To 20th-Century

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — The Tristan Islanders have given up on the 20th Century.

They want to go back to their ancient lonely island in the South Atlantic, away from it all despite the danger of volcanos.

The humble folk of Tristan da Cunha were forced to flee their homes last October and brought to Britain, where they were excited by their first look at such modern inventions as automobiles, trains, television, telephones, and especially traffic lights.

This first thrill has worn off.

"Give us the opportunity to land a small force of young men on our island to plant potatoes and we will go back," Willie Repetto, leader of the islanders, told the British government.

NUCLEAR-MISSILE TYPES

Jackson Says Red Subs Progressing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union was credited Sunday with "enormous progress in the nuclear submarine field" which soon may enable the Russians to match the missile-firing capabilities of the powerful U.S. Polaris submarines.

The estimate came from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has extensive knowledge of military secrets through his membership on the Congressional Atomic and Senate Armed Services committees.

The United States now plans a total of 41 Polaris nuclear-powered submarines, each of which can launch 16 ballistic missiles with atomic warheads while submerged or surfaced.

Jackson, in a taped interview with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., for use over Pennsylvania radio-television stations, said the expanding Soviet nuclear underwater flotilla probably will force an expansion of the U.S. Polaris fleet.

Jackson said of Polaris program: "We're turning them out very rapidly. I think we'll have the program—41 — completed at the end of calendar 1964 or early 1965. My guess is that we'll have to increase that total."

Jackson said the Soviet Union apparently kept secret the launching of their nuclear-powered submarines until they had a flotilla.

"It's safe to say that they have a growing number of nuclear submarines and this presents one of our greatest challenges in the defense field, namely the problems of—antisubmarine warfare."

Scott was asked if the Soviet submarines are able to "fire from under the water as ours do?"

If they do not have this ability now, Jackson replied, "There's no doubt that they will have this capability."

Blast First Over Desert In 4 Years

CAMP MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — The United States fired a secret low - power nuclear weapon a few feet above the desert Saturday in the first resumption of aerial nuclear testing on its own soil since 1958.

The Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defense said the explosion was to test the effects of the weapon.

ROADS BLOCKED

The mighty blast may be a prelude to tests next week using troops in atomic battlefield conditions. Such tests have been reported forthcoming, without official confirmation.

Secrecy cloaked this test at the Nevada test site. Roads to the vicinity were blocked, and outside observers were barred.

Officials called the device low yield. This meant it had an explosive force up to 20 kilotons, equal to 20,000 tons of TNT.

One observer on a hill 55 miles distant said there was a slight flash and a small cloud of dust—in striking contrast to the 100-kiloton underground shot Friday which shot a towering plume of smoke 19,000 feet into the air.

In view of the security regulations, the only descriptions came from unofficial sources outside the sprawling test site.

The AEC announced 105 minutes after the blast that a cloud rose to an altitude of about 8,000 feet above the ground and drifted northward, dissipating rapidly. Radioactivity was expected to become so low by the time the cloud reached inhabited places

Big Blast Cancelled 4th Time

HONOLULU (AP)—The United States postponed again Saturday for the fourth time its planned high-altitude nuclear test above Johnston Island.

The official cause was bad weather.

However, the U.S. Weather Bureau had indicated improving weather and said after the postponement was announced that the test site had average winds and only scattered clouds.

The big explosion was reset for Sunday night after 11 p.m. — 4 a.m. Monday Eastern Standard Time—but technical or weather troubles could delay it to 2:30 a.m.—7:30 a.m. EST.

If the device isn't fired by then another postponement will be ordered, probably until Monday night.

The third attempt was planned for July 4 after two missile failures. Clouds and rain squalls over Johnston Island spoiled chances Friday night and high winds were blamed for a 24-hour delay Thursday. Technical difficulties apparently caused the postponement Wednesday.

The clouds and rain moved away from the mid-Pacific test zone early Saturday and midday reports from Johnston said only scattered cloudiness remained. The Weather Bureau said photographs taken by the U.S. Tiros satellite indicated "generally good" conditions.

A forecaster said weather was normal in the area and seemed surprised when told the official reason for postponing was bad weather. Joint Task Force 8 would not elaborate on the bad weather cause for delay.

Alabama Sets Compromise Redistricting

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Weary legislators, tired by a lengthy hassle over reapportionment, took a weekend off with a compromise seat shuffling bill ready for passage.

The Senate version of the House measure was passed about 2 a.m. Saturday in radically altered form after Sen. Bert Haltom of Florence gave up a one-man filibuster against the measure.

The legislature went into special session in June after a three-judge federal panel ordered the apportionment change to give larger counties a bigger voice. The panel said unless the legislature acted, the judges would alter the apportionment provisionally to give the big counties sufficient strength to make their own reapportionment.

The House and Senate reconvene Tuesday with only five more meeting days left before the court's date of July 16.

The compromise measure must now be returned to the house for concurrence in the Senate amendments which make the original House bill almost unrecognizable.

There was considerable doubt the House would accept the changes. If the lower chamber refuses to adopt the Senate amendments, a joint conference committee will be appointed to try to hammer out an agreement.

The compromise is a substitute bill drawn by Sen. Norman Crawford of Marion which, in turn, was drastically changed by Sen Douglas Webb of Atmore.

The measure would not become effective until elections to the legislature in 1966. The bill also provides for rotation of senators in districts which embrace two or more counties.

2 Persons Die In 3-Car Wreck At Lake Village

LAKE VILLAGE, Ark. (AP) — Two persons were killed and a third injured in a three-car collision 11 miles southeast of Lake Village Saturday.

Killed were James D. Allday, 47, of Houston, Tex., and Mrs. Grace R. Sexton, 45, of Wichita Falls, Tex. Mrs. Sexton's husband, E. D. Sexton, 49, was injured seriously.

State trooper Ray Hogg said Allday's car collided head-on with the Sexton vehicle about 100 yards west of the Greenville, Miss., bridge on U. S. 82. Hogg said Allday, carpenter, was driving in the wrong traffic lane.

The third car involved, driven by Walter D. McCormick, 54, a salesman of Oak Grove, La., rammed into the rear of the Sexton auto. McCormick was not hurt.

Hogg said Allday had been living with relatives in Boyle, Miss. He said the Sexton's had been to Leland, Miss., to visit a daughter, Mrs. Robert Gipson, and were on their way to Murfreesboro, Ark., to visit Mrs. Sexton's mother.

Ezra Benson's Son Plans Race For Congress

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) —Reed A. Benson, 34, eldest son of former Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, announced Saturday his candidacy for the Republican nomination for U.S. representative from Utah's 2nd Congressional District.

He will oppose State Sen. Sherman P. Lloyd of Salt Lake City, the only other announced Republican seeking the nomination.

The incumbent from the 2nd District, Rep. Davis S. King, is running for the Senate nomination, seeking to oppose Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, Republican who has announced for re-election.

Until recently Benson was executive director of the All-America Society, a conservative organization. He recently has been helping his father edit two books, "The Red Carpet," and one now in preparation "Crossfires — My Eight Years With Eisenhower."

The 2nd Congressional District is in the heart of Utah's most populous section—including Salt Lake, Davis, Utah and Tooele counties.

Italian Workers Strike Disrupts Large Industry

ROME (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Italian metalworkers struck again Saturday, disrupting Italy's heavy industries.

Production was curtailed throughout Italy's industrial belt in the north. The metalworkers' unions, both Communist and non-Communist, claim to represent a million employes in auto plants, steel mills, shipyards, appliance factories and other industries.

Turin's giant Fiat auto works, which employes more than 100,000 was one of the hardest-hit plants.

The strike is scheduled to last until Tuesday morning. It was the fifth metalworkers' walkout in the past month to back up the union demands for a new labor contract.

No incidents were reported.

The unions are demanding improved scales and a 40-hour work week, instead of 46 hours.

SURVEY OF SIX CITIES

Night Club Probe Showing Impact

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Senate investigations subcommittee hearings which produced charges that unionized women night club entertainers were being forced into soliciting drinks and prostitution ended June 27, but the impact still is being felt. A United Press International survey in six cities mentioned in the hearings showed that several of the more notorious clubs are closed, others have quieted their operations, drink soliciting had declined. Even were there was little change, business was down.)

By United Press International

Jody's just about ready to give up her haunt at the Magic Lounge, and Cicero, Ill., too, for that matter. She's going back to wherever home was and get a job as a car-hop.

It would be a change of pace for Jody, at that. She's still just as willing and ready to join a male patron at the bar and let him by drinks, just as open in talking about herself, but there aren't that many men anymore along once raucus, anything-goes 22nd Street in Cicero.

Some things still go — there are girls soliciting for drinks or sex, all on a commission basis, but not as it was only a few weeks ago. The girls may still be there, but, by and large, the customers aren't.

Business in the once gaudy clubs is slow, Jody frankly admitted, partly because of police raids and that's why she's going back home to car-hop Home, at least this week, was Clarksville, Miss., she told a customer at the bar. Two weeks ago she told the same customer that home was Brownsville, Ky.

One thing, however, was certain. Cicero, still relatively open, was more the exception than the rule just 10 days after the close of the explosive Senate investigations subcommittee hearings which produced charges that unionized entertainers were forced to "peddle Booze and flesh" in clubs and cabarets.

Other cities, whose names, like Cicero's, were brought into the Washington investigation were either closed down tight, a UPI six-city survey disclosed, or the so-called "action" in the gaudy clubs catering to men on the town was much greater.

Whatever the basis of the charges by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., that the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA) permitted its women members to be forced to solicit male club patrons for drinks or more, or the nation's protestation that vindictive former officers were behind the charges, this much was apparent:

The night life in such cities as Miami Beach, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Calumet City, Ill., isn't quite what it used to be.

Police raids, arrests and close surveillance or other official action were credited in most cities with bringing about the change.

A tour by a reporter of 10 Philadelphia night clubs failed to produce even one prodding by a hostess, entertainer or hanger-on for him to buy her a drink.

Things weren't much different in Miami Beach. The only two customers at the once lively Life Bar were two reporters, and they were waiting to meet police to accompany them on their nightly inspection of several cabarets.

Miami Beach reacted to the McClellan hearings by closing five clubs noted for their strip tease acts, on a charge of electrical wiring violations, but all were open the next night under a court injunction.

Two of the five are again closed, including the Piccadilly Club, which was mentioned in the Washington hearings.

"There's no more burlies (burlesques) in town," bemoaned one woman barkeep. "The cops closed us down."

At the club 23 there once were exotic dances for the customers to see, but Friday night produced only the promise that there might be a show later. A western group auditioned to fill the entertainment gap with the song, "Momma Don't 'Low No Strippin' 'Round Here."

Baltimore's "block" — the several-blocks-long center of night life — appeared unchanged. The clubs offer much the same shows, the patrons remain as uninhibited and noisy as ever.

Girls in lucicrous gowns still could be seen sipping expensive mixed drinks with customers. But the tired question: "Buy me a drink, honey?" isn't heard as often.

The report from Tampa, Fla., was that things appear to have eased up since several hostesses and bartenders were put into jail on drink soliciting counts after the outset of the McClellan hearings.

At the Celebrity Club, a girl introduced herself as "Nita," and inquired, "how are you tonight?"

"I'm fine, thanks," replied the reporter.

At that, the bartender approached and asked him, "Would you like to join the lady?"

An "okay," resulted in Nita getting a small snifter of a "sort of brandy" and the reporter a tab for $2.50.

McNamara Proposes Cut In Military Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara figures the annual cost of running the non-combat portion of the military can be cut $3 billion within the next five years—starting with a $750-million saving in the current fiscal year.

The administration, which is weighing the possibility of a tax reduction, made public last night a copy of McNamara's cost reduction program report to President Kennedy, together with a statement by the President. In it, Kennedy said:

"What is particularly encouraging is that the economies in defense procurement and logistics can be achieved without impairing operational effectiveness. While it is vital for us to maintain a military force structure that will insure our security and sustain our foreign policy commitments it is also vital to our economic health that we operate this force at the lowest cost possible.

"The major part of the American taxpayer's dollar goes for defense. Seventy per cent of every defense dollar is spend on logistics, such as purchasing, construction, operating depots and bases, maintenance, transportation and communication services."

The President said of McNamara's program that "a good start has been made."

McNamara, who came to the Pentagon from the managment of the Ford Motor Co., told Kennedy in his memorandum:

"These annual savings will result from the more efficient management of our logistical system and will not be achieved through a reduction in the strength of our combat forces."

McNamara's estimated savings are based on the present size and structure of the armed forces, the manpower of which currently totals about 2.8 million. The percentage of savings, he said in talking to newsmen, could change with any change in the force levels.

McNamara said the approach to the problem of operating at the lowest cost possible was being taken in three ways:

1. Buying only what is needed by setting procurement requirements at realistic levels and by utilizing more efficiently materials already in the military's inventory. During the fiscal year that ended June 30, procurement of $150 million in spare parts was cancelled, with bigger annual savings expected in the future through better utilization of existing stocks. Stop setting specifications too high for equipment, McNamar added. Example: A small stainless steel turbine wheel for a missile motor originally cost $175, but made of molded plastic it now costs $2.

2. Seeking greater price competition among manufacturers. The trend is away from procurement of an item from only one manufacturer. This provides a potential savings of $160 million.

The department is moving away from the awarding of cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts and emphasizing the incentive type of contract in which good performance brings more money, bad performance a punitive reduction. McNamara said one study made for the department showed the final costs for some contracts had exceeded original estimated by between 300 and 1,000 per cent. An estimated savings of $100 million has been made in this field.

3. Integration and standardization for operating costs at bases, elimination of some bases, reduction of costly paper work.

The closing of 269 installations has been ordered, which McNamara said will mean: Return of real estate to tax rolls totaling 216,776 acres; closing and offering for sale of 28 industrial plants; release or reassignment of 42,938 men; annual operating savings of $257 million at present, with an increase eventually to "at least" $600 million.

Even were there was little change, business was down.)

By United Press International

Jody's just about ready to give up her haunt at the Magic Lounge, and Cicero, Ill., too, for that matter. She's going back to wherever home was and get a job as a car-hop.

It would be a change of pace for Jody, at that. She's still just as willing and ready to join a male patron at the bar and let him by drinks, just as open in talking about herself, but there aren't that many men anymore along once raucus, anything-goes 22nd Street in Cicero.

Some things still go — there are girls soliciting for drinks or sex, all on a commission basis, but not as it was only a few weeks ago. The girls may still be there, but, by and large, the customers aren't.

Business in the once gaudy clubs is slow, Jody frankly admitted, partly because of police raids and that's why she's going back home to car-hop. Home, at least this week, was Clarksville, Miss., she told a customer at the bar. Two weeks ago she told the same customer that home was Brownsville, Ky.

One thing, however, was certain. Cicero, still relatively open, was more the exception than the rule just 10 days after the close of the explosive Senate investigagations subcommittee hearings which produced charges that unionized entertainers were forced to "peddle Booze and flesh" in clubs and cabarets.

Other cities, whose names, like Cicero's, were brought into the Washington investigation were either closed down tight, a UPI six-city survey disclosed, or the so-called "action" in the gaudy clubs catering to men on the town was much greater.

Whatever the basis of the charges by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., that the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA) permitted its women members to be forced to solicit male club patrons for drinks or more, or the nation's protestation that vindictive former officers were behind the charges, this much was apparent:

The night life in such cities as Miami Beach, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Calumet City, Ill., isn't quite what it used to be.

Police raids, arrests and close surveillance or other official action were credited in most cities with bringing about the change.

A tour by a reporter of 10 Philadelphia night clubs failed to produce even one prodding by a hostess, entertainer or hanger-on for him to buy her a drink.

Things weren't much different in Miami Beach. The only two customers at the once lively Life Bar were two reporters, and they were waiting to meet police to accompany them on their nightly inspection of several cabarets.

Miami Beach reacted to the McClellan hearings by closing five clubs noted for their strip tease acts, on a charge of electrical wiring violations, but all were open the next night under a court injunction.

Two of the five are again closed, including the Piccadilly Club, which was mentioned in the Washington hearings.

"There's no more burlies (burlesques) in town," bemoaned one woman barkeep. "The cops closed us down."

At the club 23 there once were exotic dances for the customers to see, but Friday night produced only the promise that there might be a show later. A western group auditioned to fill the entertainment gap with the song, "Momma Don't 'Low No Strippin' 'Round Here."

Baltimore's "block" — the several-blocks-long center of night life — appeared unchanged. The clubs offer much the same shows, the patrons remain as uninhibited and noisy as ever.

Girls in lucicrous gowns still could be seen sipping expensive mixed drinks with customers. But the tired question: "Buy me a drink, honey?" isn't heard as often.

The report from Tampa, Fla., was that things appear to have eased up since several hostesses and bartenders were put into jail on drink soliciting counts after the outset of the McClellan hearings.

At the Celebrity Club, a girl introduced herself as "Nita," and inquired, "how are you tonight?"

"I'm fine, thanks," replied the reporter.

At that, the bartender approached and asked him, "Would you like to join the lady?"

An, "okay," resulted in Nita getting a small snifter of a "sort of brandy" and the reporter a tab for $2.50.

McNamara Proposes Cut In Military Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara figures the annual cost of running the non-combat portion of the military can be cut $3 billion within the next five years—starting with a $750-million saving in the current fiscal year.

The administration, which is weighing the possibility of a tax reduction, made public last night a copy of McNamara's cost reduction program report to President Kennedy, together with a statement by the President. In it, Kennedy said:

"What is particularly encouraging is that the economies in defense procurement and logistics can be achieved without impairing operational effectiveness. While it is vital for us to maintain a military force structure that will insure our security and sustain our foreign policy commitments it is also vital to our economic health that we operate this force at the lowest cost possible.

"The major part of the American taxpayer's dollar goes for defense. Seventy per cent of every defense dollar is spend on logistics, such as purchasing, construction, operating depots and bases, maintenance, transportation and communication services."

The President said of McNamara's program that "a good start has been made."

McNamara, who came to the Pentagon from the managment of the Ford Motor Co., told Kennedy in his memorandum:

"These annual savings will result from the more efficient management of our logistical system and will not be achieved through a reduction in the strength of our combat forces."

McNamara's estimated savings are based on the present size and structure of the armed forces, the manpower of which currently totals about 2.8 million. The percentage of savings, he said in talking to newsmen, could change with any change in the force levels.

McNamara said the approach to the problem of operating at the lowest cost possible was being taken in three ways:

1. Buying only what is needed by setting procurement requirements at realistic levels and by utilizing more efficiently materials already in the military's inventory. During the fiscal year that ended June 30, procurement of $150 million in spare parts was cancelled, with bigger annual savings exepcted in the future through better utilization of existing stocks. Stop setting specifications too high for equipment, McNamar added. Example: A small stainless steel turbine wheel for a missile motor originally cost $175, but made of molded plastic it now costs $2.

2. Seeking greater price competition among manufacturers. The trend is away from procurement of an item from only one manufacturer. This provides a potential savings of $160 million.

The department is moving away from the awarding of cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts and emphasizing the incentive type of contract in which good performance brings more money, bad performance a punitive reduction. McNamara said one study made for the department showed the final costs for some contracts had exceeded original estimated by between 300 and 1,000 per cent. An estimated savings of $100 million has been made in this field.

3. Integration and standardization for operating costs at bases, elimination of some bases, reduction of costly paper work.

The closing of 269 installations has been ordered, which McNamara said will mean: Return of real estate to tax rolls totaling 216,776 acres; closing and offering for sale of 23 industrial plants; release or reassignment of 42,938 men; annual operating savings of $257 million at present, with an increase eventually to "at least" $600 million.

Twin Cities To Get New Dallas Flight

An early morning flight from Monroe to Dallas will be restored to the Twin Cities beginning August 1, Louis D. Smith, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's aviation committee, announced Saturday.

The restored service comes after Delta Airlines dropped Monroe from its schedule a little less than 10 years ago, Louis said.

Since that time Twin City officials and civic leaders have been trying to get the flight restored. A joint meeting May 24 between Delta Airlines officials and Twin City leaders met with success as the airlines company informed Mayor W. L. Howard in a letter Saturday morning that Monroe again would be included on their Dallas schedule.

The early morning Dallas flight is scheduled to leave Selman Field at 6:52 a.m. and leave Shreveport at 7:28 a.m. arriving in Dallas at 8:46 a.m., Louis said.

"The renewed service is on a trial basis," Louis said, "and our hopes are that enough patronage and travel will develop to justify the service."

Louis also pointed out that the Twin City is about the only municipality of its size receiving the Dallas service. "Such cities as Columbus, Ga., Montgomery, Ala. and Meridian, Miss. are not being given this service," Louis said.

Graveside Rites Held For Infant

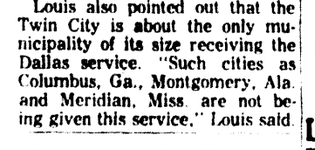

Graveside services for Kimberley Dare Flanagan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Flanagan of West Monroe, were held at 4:30 p.m. Saturday at Cypress Cemetery.

The infant died Saturday shortly after birth at a Monroe hospital. Burial will be under direction of Kilpatrick Funeral Home of West Monroe.

Additional survivors are two brothers, Jimmy Flanagan and Donnie Flanagan, a sister, Becky Flanagan and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. S. Hendrix, all of West Monroe, and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Flanagan of Monroe.

LAUNCHING IS TUESDAY

Telstar May Bring Transatlantic Video

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Telstar, a complex communications satellite which could point the way to worldwide television and expanded overseas telephone service, is scheduled for launching here Tuesday.

If all goes well, within a week after launching television viewers in the United States and Western Europe will see the first live transatlantic television programs —beamed across thousands of miles with Telstar serving as a relay station in space.

The firing will mark private industry's first venture into space. Bell Telephone Laboratories of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. built the satellite and is paying all launch costs.

Bell purchased a Thor-Delta rocket from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and will reimburse NASA for launching and tracking the satellite. Estimated cost is $3 million, which Bell will pay regardless of success or failure of the mission.

The Thor-Delta, America's most reliable space booster with a string of nine straight successful satellite launchings, is to hoist Telstar into an orbit ranging from 600 to 3,500 miles above the earth. The payload weighs 170 pounds and has more than 15,000 parts, half of them electronic.

The two principal U.S. ground stations are at Andover, Me., whose huge horn antenna has sending and receiving capability, and at Holmdel, N.J., which will receive only.

Telstar is not expected to be within range of Andover until the end of the fifth orbit, about 12 hours after launching. On this pass ground trackers will verify orbital information and antenna pointing data.

On the sixth through ninth orbits, while Telstar is still within range of Andover and Holmdel, several domestic demonstrations are planned for periods running from 20 to 50 minutes.

Included will be live telephone conversation via satellite, transmission of television tape and of a current news picture and sending high-speed data between the two stations.

Signals will be sent from the Andover horn. The satellite will amplify them 10 billion times and transmit them at a strength of 2¼ watts to Andover and Holmdel.

The live transatlantic television demonstration will be attempted after satellite systems have been thoroughly checked.

The three major U.S. television networks are planning a program for transmission to Europe. It will consist of 12 minutes of news events from a number of places in this country.

The European Broadcasting Union, representing 16 countries, will handle a European program to be beamed to the United States.

New York City will be the clearing house for the American program. From New York it will travel by cable to Andover, thence by microwave signal to the satellite which will rebroadcast it to two ground stations at Goonhilly Down, England, and Pleumeur-Bodou, France. These stations instantly will relay the television pictures throughout Europe.

The European program will originate in Brussels, Belgium, and will be shot to Telstar through Goonhilly Down. The American networks will broadcast it throughout this country.

An early intercontinental voice demonstration will be a telephone hookup between persons in 20 U.S. cities and 20 cities in Europe.

American Telephone's overtaxed underwater phone cables carried three million overseas calls in 1960. The number is expected to increase to 21 million by 1970 and to 100 million by 1980.

Bell says a network of 50 or 60 communications satellites of the Telstar type is the only solution to the problem.

Telstar is just one of several types of test satellites planned by the United States to determine which is best for worldwide communications.

Bell plans at least one more Telstar launching later this year. In August, the space agency will launch its relay satellite—another active repeater vehicle similar to Telstar, but which will use different frequencies, higher wattage and varying data gathering methods. Relay will orbit in the same 3,500-mile-high path as Telstar.

Telstar and relay will carry special equipment to monitor radiation and micrometeorite damage. To be economically feasible, communications satellites must have long life, and means must be found to protect them from space hazards.

Coming next year is the first launching of Syncom, a NASA communications satellite designed to operate at an altitude of 22,300 miles. Also on the boards is a vehicle to be launched to an altitude of 12,000 miles.

The results of these satellites, all jammed with electronic gear, will be compared with data from the so-called passive satellites like the Echo balloon and the upcoming Project Rebound. Passive packages have no working equipment and merely reflect radio, voice and TV back to earth.

All types will be thoroughly weighed before the United States commits itself to an operational space communications network. It hopes to have one functioning in about four years.

Under a plan proposed by the Kennedy administration, the network would be run by a private, government-regulated satellite communications corporation. Half the corporation stock, to be issued at no more than $100 a share, would be for sale to the general public and half to communications companies like AT&T.

The legislation has passed the House, but presently is stalled in the Senate by nine Democratic senators, eight of whom favor government ownership.

U Thant To Seek Settlement Anew On Congo

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — U Thant served notice today of a firm, new United Nations bid for a final settlement of the Congo crisis involving secessionist Katanga Province and the central government at Leopoldville.

The U.N. acting secretary-general told a news conference he wants the Security Council to debate the worsening situation in the next month or two and perhaps give him fresh orders.

He also announced that stalled Dutch-Indonesian negotiations on the future of West New Guinea are being resumed next week.

Thant attempted to ally British fears about a U.N. resort to force in the Congo.

"It has never been my intention—and never will be my intention—to use any military initiative," he said.

But, if attacked, U.N. forces will have his authority to retaliate in self-defense, he added grimly.

The Burmese statesman said he expects to have around $166 million to carry the U.N. operations in the Congo through to December—or to next February with economies. About $66 million will be contributed by the United States if Congress next week okays President Kennedy's plans for the purchase of U.N. bonds. The rest will come from 40 other member-states.

A clash between Katangan and central forces reported Friday lent urgency to Thant's statements. He outlined two key elements of his approach toward a solution:

1. He is trying to get the giant Union Miniere combine to divert some of its mining revenues in Katanga to the central Leopoldville government. Union Miniere, dominated by Belgian and British interests, has not paid a cent to Leopoldville since the Congo became a state two years ago. This was in breach of the 1960 independence agreement, Thant said. Belgium and Britain have promised to consider ways of securing "a more just and equitable distribution of revenues in the Congo," he added.

2. He is planning to strengthen the U.N. guard over certain Union Miniere installations in Katanga because followers of independent-minded President Moise Tshombe have threatened to blow them up. Leaders of the breakaway province evidently figure the threat of sabotage will induce the mining combine to go on payint them rather than Premier Cyrille Adoula's government.

Thant, ending a three-day stay as part of a European tour, also announced U.N. readiness to help the big powers carry out any Berlin settlement they may reach. But any transfer of U.N. institutions to the divided city, and any U.N. role in a settlement, must depend on prior agreement by the Big Four occupying powers — the United States, Britain, France and Russia.

The legislation has passed the House, but presently is stalled in the Senate by nine Democratic senators, eight of whom favor government ownership.

U Thant To Seek Settlement Anew On Congo

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — U Thant served notice today of a firm, new United Nations bid for a final settlement of the Congo crisis involving secessionist Katanga Province and the central government at Leopoldville.

The U.N. acting secretary-general told a news conference he wants the Security Council to debate the worsening situation in the next month or two and perhaps give him fresh orders.

He also announced that stalled Dutch-Indonesian negotiations on the future of West New Guinea are being resumed next week.

Thant attempted to ally British fears about a U.N. resort to force in the Congo.

"It has never been my intention—and never will be my intention—to use any military initiative," he said.

But, if attacked, U.N. forces will have his authority to retaliate in self-defense, he added grimly.

The Burmese statesman said he expects to have around $165 million to carry the U.N. operations in the Congo through to December—or to next February with economies. About $95 million will be contributed by the United States if Congress next week okays President Kennedy's plans for the purchase of U.N. bonds. The rest will come from 40 other member-states.

A clash between Katangan and central forces reported Friday lent urgency to Thant's statements. He outlined two key elements of his approach toward a solution:

1. He is trying to get the giant Union Miniere combine to divert some of its mining revenues in Katanga to the central Leopoldville government. Union Miniere, dominated by Belgian and British interests, has not paid a cent to Leopoldville since the Congo became a state two years ago. This was in breach of the 1960 independence agreement, Thant said. Belgium and Britain have promised to consider ways of securing "a more just and equitable distribution of revenues in the Congo," he added.

2. He is planning to strengthen the U.N. guard over certain Union Miniere installations in Katanga because followers of independent-minded President Moise Tshombe have threatened to blow them up. Leaders of the breakaway province evidently figure the threat of sabotage will induce the mining combine to go on payint them rather than Premier Cyrille Adoula's government.

Thant, ending a three-day stay as part of a European tour, also announced U.N. readiness to help the big powers carry out any Berlin settlement they may reach. But any transfer of U.N. institutions to the divided city, and any U.N. role in a settlement, must depend on prior agreement by the Big Four occupying powers — the United States, Britain, France and Russia.

Amendments Still Remain Problem For State Voters

By SAM HANNA
World Legislative Writer

BATON ROUGE — Louisiana voters, confused in 1960 by 55 constitutional amendments on the ballot, will have the same problem in the November general election.

The legislature, as of last week, had approved some 46 constitutional amendments that will be presented to the people in November.

By final adjournment Thursday the number of amendments should be over 50.

They will range in subject matter from a $60-million highway bond issue to granting the Legislature authority to override the governor's veto by mail ballot.

The voters — all of us — had quite a time in 1960. It was impossible to pull the correct lever in a matter of minutes on a number of candidates plus 55 constitutional amendments.

Protests came from the rank and file of people, but still the Legislature in this session repeated the same mistake.

While the actual act of voting is a problem under these circumstances, the biggest problem is informing the people on the subject matter of the amendments.

The Public Affairs Research Council again plans to compile a detailed analysis of the amendments, which is available to all citizens.

Newspapers again will make an effort to inform its readers.

Yet, all of the people will not understand the proposals which affect every citizen in the state.

Presenting large numbers of amendments to the voters is a mistake.

The Little Hoover Commission has been cast aside by the Legislature after two years of work during which an effort was made to streamline the state government.

A House resolution to re-create the commission was killed on the Fourth.

In addition, most of the commission's bills ran into opposition during the session. Many died in committee while others were either killed or gutted on the floor.

The commission, in two years, spent about $100,000 studying state government from top to bottom. Now its records and findings have been submitted to the legislative council where any legislator can go for future information.

Perhaps this in itself will be of help to the government.

The commission was established mainly at the request of the Association of Louisiana Chambers of Commerce, an organization that supported the commission's program to the hilt.

Rep. Robert Munson, commission chairman, said repeatedly that the fruits of the commission's work could not be seen immediately — that it would take time.

But the commission is dead now.

On the surface, it appears that the Legislature shifted the commission's annual $50,000 appropriation to a newly created legislative budget committee.

A $60,000 appropriation was included in the general appropriations bill for the new budget committee, which will be composed of lawmakers to study the state's fiscal problems before the Legislature goes into session.

This is a good step, as evidenced by the budget committee that Gov. Davis appointed prior to this session. In the case of 1962 budget committee, state appropriations were cut to fit in with a gloomy financial outlook.

While the Little Hoover Commission was abolished in its entirety, the joint legislative committee on un-American activities might as well have been removed.

This committee's budget was cut $11,000 to only $8,000.

The State Sovereignty Commission also took a $53,000 reduction, receiving an appropriation of $175,000.

Supt. Shelby M. Jackson took it on the chin during this session.

Normally Jackson gets his way, but this time the administration got most of what it wanted regardless of Jackson's feelings. This is unusual, because Jackson commands a lot of influence over legislators through his school people back home.

The administration compromised with Jackson on its driver education bill by giving the Department of Education control over the program.

Opponents of the bill contend that it was designed to do one thing — and that was the purchase of trainers to be used in place of automobiles.

But the administration did not compromise with Jackson on its $1.3-million reduction in hot lunch funds and it did not compromise on its plan to let the Legislature appropriate the local school funds rather than the State Board of Education.

Davis was able to do this, in some observers opinions, by holding two things over Jackson — a $60,000 appropriation to the Board of Education to employ its own staff rather than having to use Jackson's staff and Sen. Jamar Adcock's bill to make the superintendent's position appointive rather than elective.

The administration removed the $60,000 appropriation for the Board before the $497-million general appropriations bill was passed by the House.

While Adcock says he will bring the superintendent's bill before the Senate for a floor vote Monday, it will not pass, because the administration doesn't need it anymore.

Salaries have been a sore subject with the Legislature this session.

With money tight and lawmakers unable to take anything back home for the people, some of them regret that they passed around nice salary increases two years ago.

One salary, however, sticks out in the general appropriations bill and that's the $13,500 annual salary of Treasurer A. P. Tugwell, the most respected state official in the capitol.

Tugwell, a veteran of over 30 years, is charged with the responsibility of watching the purse-strings of millions of the state's dollars.

Yet his salary doesn't begin to compare with a comparable executive in industry, the state supreme court judges are paid much more than Tugwell while some lawmakers, in 1960, made almost as much as Tugwell in salary.

When making summer dresses with spaghetti straps, make an extra set of straps and attach to your strapless bra. Then tie the straps together at the shoulder with an extra piece of spaghetti strap. Not only will this look neat and be more comfortable, but saves that "Will it or won't it" feeling you get in a strapless bra.

KHAKI SHORTS

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"Is it possible to cut off boy's khaki trousers for Bermuda shorts, or are the shorts cut differently?"

Mrs. C. M.

Dear Mrs. C. M.:

I have checked carefully to see if they are the same styling and find they are. I have been doing this with my teen-age son's khakis for years. Usually they get too short before they get too small in the waist, this is an excellent idea for getting additional wear out of khakis that are too good to discard. Be sure to cut them long enough to allow for an ample hem, the finished length should be just above the knees. If your son is fussy about made-overs, let this be our secret. They'll look like new and he'll never know. Good luck.

ADJUST SEAM

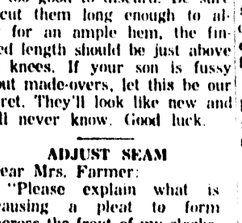

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"Please explain what is causing a pleat to form across the front of my slacks, just above the crotch, when I'm walking."

Mrs. L. O'M.

Dear Mrs. L. O'M.:

This seems to be one of the most common faults in the shorts or slacks most women make. This is caused by the "crotch" seam being too long. I have found that unless you have a pair of shorts that fit you, which you can measure and use as a guide, it is best to cut the crotch seam higher (as illustrated). If you cut the back and front crotch seam about one inch higher, it will usually be high enough for most women. If it is cut too high, you can always lower the cutting line, but if it is cut too low, there is nothing you can do to bring it up without changing the length of your shorts and slacks.

Index your Sew Simple columns so you can find just the one you need at a moment's notice. You can use a card system such as a recipe file, or a loose-leaf binder. It is best to group them under such titles as sleeves, fitting, collars, etc. Cut the items apart and keep only the ones you will need in the future. Saving all the Sew Simple columns won't do any good if you can't find the one you are looking for.

Another good idea for summer would be to oil your sewing machine. Many of us forget that this needs to be done often. Try to clean any lint out of the bobbin case and, using your instruction book, find the places that must be oiled. Carefully wipe any excess off and keep the presser foot DOWN on a blotter or piece of fabric so that the oil can drip down on it. After oiling your machine, it is best to stitch on a scrap of fabric before stitching on your garment, just in case it would spot. Your machine will run like a dream after taking a little care of it. Don't forget to change to a new needle.

If anyone has any good ideas about what to do with maternity jackets, please send them to me. I have had so many requests for these ideas. Perhaps you can win a Tailor Trix pressing board with your idea.

Please send your questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

Senator Seeks Fund Eligibility For Shrimpers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shrimp fishermen, as well as oyster-men, should be made eligible for government disaster loans, Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Saturday.

Ellender said oystermen would be made eligible for disaster loans but shrimp fishermen are not mentioned in a bill on which his committee will hold hearings Monday.

"I feel this is most unfortunate, for...our Louisiana shrimpers have been hard hit in recent years," Ellender said. "At present, they are much more in need of aid than are the oystermen."

Ellender, in a radio broadcast taped in Washington for use in Louisiana, said he and Sen. Russel B. Long, D-La., will attempt to amend the bill to include shrimpers.

Ellender Says Measure Unfair To Argentines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Saturday it was unfair to leave Argentina out of the recently passed sugar bill.

"Somehow Argentina, which grows and exports quite a bit of sugar, was left out of the bill entirely," said Ellender in a radio broadcast taped in Washington for use in Louisiana.

"In my opinion, this was unfair, since all the other Latin American sugar producing countries were given at least a small share of the United States market," Ellender said.

He added the error should be corrected by other legislation.

Birch Group, GOP Splitting Bailey Says

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey said Saturday that the Republican Party is splintering with John Birch Society members and lunatic fringers forming a "radical right wing faction."

In a speech prepared for a Democratic rally here, he said he saw evidence of the split in the recent Republican conference held at former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

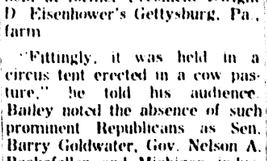

"Fittingly, it was held in a circus tent erected in a cow pasture," he told his audience. Bailey noted the absence of such prominent Republicans as Sen. Barry Goldwater, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Michigan industrialist George Romney at the Gettysburg meeting.

"Inevitably and sadly, it ended in an all-Republican brawl with everyone publicly attacking everyone else," Bailey said.

Of the Goldwater right wing, Bailey said: "This movement is a child of Republican reaction and they are stuck with it. The Republican leadership is in a fearful dilemma. It has no chance without taking on the fringe vote—but it can't win with them."

The Following Newspaper Item Tells Why The American Hospital Association Says BLUE CROSS Does The Best Job Of Providing Hospital – Medical – Surgical Care at LOWER COST TO YOU!

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, Wednesday, May 25, 1960

Hospital Group Urges Federal Employes Select Blue Cross

CHICAGO—The American Hospital Association urged Federal employes to select Blue Cross for their health insurance, marking the first time the association has made such a recommendation to a group.

Some 2,000,000 Government employes next month will pick their health insurance coverage under the Federal Employee Health Benefit Act. The workers will have a choice of a Government-wide service plan offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, an indemnity plan drawn up by commercial insurance companies and a number of localized, employer-sponsored plans. In addition to choosing the type of plan, employes will also select the level of benefits.

A.H.A. said it broke from its previous pattern of not making recommendations "because this is the first time that a large number of employes must individually select their own health insurance. In most cases, this choice is made by highly trained specialists employed by unions or management."

Under service programs such as Blue Cross, coverage is provided in terms of days of hospital care and certain medical services. The indemnity plans make a dollar allowance, and in many cities these indemnities fail to purchase as many hospital days of care as in other cities, the association maintained.

Birch Group, GOP Splitting Bailey Says

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey said Saturday that the Republican Party is splintering with John Birch Society members and lunatic fringers forming a "radical right wing faction."

In a speech prepared for a Democratic rally here, he said he saw evidence of the split in the recent Republican conference held at former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

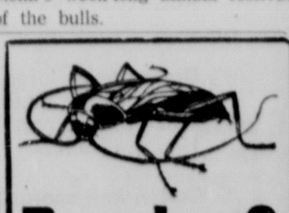

"Fittingly, it was held in a circus tent erected in a cow pasture," he told his audience. Bailey noted the absence of such prominent Republicans as Sen. Barry Goldwater, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Michigan industrialist George Romney at the Gettysburg meeting.

"Inevitably and sadly, it ended in an all-Republican brawl with everyone publicly attacking everyone else," Bailey said.

Of the Goldwater right wing, Bailey said: "This movement is a child of Republican reaction and they are stuck with it. The Republican leadership is in a fearful dilemma. It has no chance without taking on the fringe vote —but it can't win with them."

Blue Cross

The Following Newspaper Item Tells Why The American Hospital Association Says BLUE CROSS Does The Best Job Of Providing Hospital – Medical – Surgical Care at LOWER COST TO YOU!

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, Wednesday, May 25, 1960

Hospital Group Urges Federal Employes Select Blue Cross

CHICAGO—The American Hospital Association urged Federal employes to select Blue Cross for their health insurance, marking the first time the association has made such a recommendation to a group.

Some 2,000,000 Government employes next month will pick their health insurance coverage under the Federal Employee Health Benefit Act. The workers will have a choice of a Government-wide service plan offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, an indemnity plan drawn up by commercial insurance companies and a number of localized, employer-sponsored plans. In addition to choosing the type of plan, employes will also select the level of benefits.

A.H.A. said it broke from its previous pattern of not making recommendations "because this is the first time that a large number of employes must individually select their own health insurance. In most cases, this choice is made by highly trained specialists employed by unions or management."

Under service programs such as Blue Cross, coverage is provided in terms of days of hospital care and certain medical services. The indemnity plans make a dollar allowance, and in many cities these indemnities fail to purchase as many hospital days of care as in other cities, the association maintained.

RESULT! BLUE CROSS ENROLLED and IS NOW PROTECTING MORE FEDERAL EMPLOYEES THAN ALL OTHER FORMS OF HEALTH CARE COVERAGE COMBINED!

This Is Positive Proof WHY...

Kennedy's Dad Discharged

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, rehabilitated enough from a stroke to leave a New York hospital, arrived in this Cape Cod resort Saturday and was met by his son, President Kennedy.

The Chief Executive drove an open white convertible from his vacation retreat on the shore of Nantucket Sound to Hyannis Airport in mid-morning to welcome his father.

Neither the father's discharge a few hours earlier, nor the President's trip to the airport was announced in advance.

Not until father and son were back in the family enclave of summer homes was the reunion disclosed. Press photographers were not permitted to take pictures.

Only a few townspeople and tourists paid any attention to the convertible as it edged through Saturday morning traffic with the President at the wheel.

The 73-year-old former ambassador to Great Britain had been at the New York University Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation for slightly more than two months, undergoing treatment for the effects of a stroke he suffered at Palm Beach, Fla., last Dec. 19.

Plans for his release were made some days ago, when doctors at the institute concluded the elder Kennedy was well enough to return to the scene of many happy summers here with his family. Nothing was said about it, however, in order to keep the homecoming a private, family affair.

Kennedy took his 4-year-old daughter, Caroline, to the airport tohelp him greet her grandfather.

Miss Ann Gargan, the President's cousin, flew to the Cape with the elder Kennedy in the family plane—the Caroline. Dr. Henry Betts of the institute and hospital nurses also were aboard, and a nurse who has attended the Kennedys for years, Miss Luella Hennessey was waiting at home.

Texas Doctor Offers Strikers Work In Clinics

REGINA, Sask. (AP)—A Texan who flew here to offer positions in his clinic to 12 Regina doctors says his colleagues in Texas are completely behind Saskatchewan doctors in their fight against the province's medical care insurance plan.

Dr. G. J. Hayes, of Alvin, Tex., said in an interview Friday night he was not representing either the American Medical Association or the Texas State Medical Association.

He said the state of Texas has room for 600 more doctors and that was the reason he had come to Saskatchewan.

He described his mission to Regina in these terms. "You can't acquire the cream of a ranchers' herd unless he dies and you can't acquire top medical men unless there is a catastrophe like this. The best men don't move from place to place.

"In other countries it has been proven medicine cannot grow and mature in the climate and soil of socialism."

CSC Head Gives Views On Case

The rightness of Commercial Solvents Corporation's position, "the integrity of its management, is now beginning to be understood despite the vigorous efforts which continue to be made to make the company the scapegoat for the carelessness of a lot of people in government and in business, too," M. C. Wheeler, president of the corporation, said here Saturday.

Wheeler was referring to the Billie Sol Estes case and some of the charges that have been made against CSC.

"Investigations are painful and difficult things to undergo," he said, "but they do bring out facts, and we have had the orprotunity to tell under oath a great deal of what went on in the Estes situation. We are sure that the testimony we gave made a great deal of difference in official understanding of the situation. There will be more opportunity in the future, we are sure."

Wheeler pointed out that several members of Congress have "seen what is happening and have spoken up."

VICIOUS ATTACKS

"Vicious attacks have been made on our integrity," he said. "This is not too surprising when one realizes that in this disaster, in which tens of millions of dollars probably will have been lost by persons who extended credit without checking on their security, we are the only principal creditor which took the trouble to get sound callateral for the advances we made.

"Incidentally, we are continuing today to serve much of the West Texas market with anhydrous ammonia.

"The success of all our business depends very largely on what we have been able to do for farmers in improving productivity of their land and herds and flocks. We hope that before long all the investigations will be behind us and we can concentrate on new products and growing markets, as well as those in which we have been represented in the past.

"We are glad to say our business has been good," Wheeler said. "A good first quarter and a good second one too. The many customers who know us and our record are standing shoulder to shoulder with us. We are proud of our employes who have never doubted the integrity of their management, and of the neighbors who have been our staunch friends."

In an interview, Wheeler was asked "why, of all the Estes creditors, do you think Solvents has been singled out for such violent attacks?"

"It looks like the usual two reasons — money and politics," he said. "It must be realized that tens of millions of dollars of credit were extended, much of it by firms much larger than ours and much of it by persons much closer to the Estes operations than we are. Yet, apparently we were almost alone in insisting that the credit we gave be accompanied by adequate security. On the politicial side, unfortunately there are those in this country who always want to attack a business. They think a corporation is a natural target, always forgetting that it is the maker of jobs, of better products and all the material things that make our life better. Then too, an attack on us was used to try to shift blame to a former administration."

Asked why was such a strong attack made on your personal integerity and on your statements of events, Wheeler replied:

"That is something we may learn sometime. It is not for us to try to read the minds of people who are against us. If you read the record of the House investigation you will see one Congressman stating to a witness: 'It is obvious there would have been some real advantage to your company had you been able to prove that there was some kind of a conspiracy between Solvents and Mr. Estes.'

"And at another point a witness was asked by the committee counsel:

"'If Commercial Solvents has a legally valid and binding claim, as apparently on the surface it would appear, and there aren't any other assets, you are pretty well left out, aren't you, except for what you can collect from the farmers?'"

"And again he asked:

"'Would the comments made by Mr. Wheeler, according to your testimony, which he has denied making, have any special significance in determining whether those assignments are valid?'"

"And again: 'In all the time that you have been associated with this case . . . you have never given consideration to the fact that if it were possible to establish a conspiracy involving Billie Sol Estes and Commercial Solvents, that this uight upset the validity of the claim which Commercial Solvents has to the grain storage revenues and therefore advance your priority?'

So you have given no thought to the fact that if it could be proved, your testimony as to Mr. Wheeler's comments abouts setting Billie Sol Estes up in Switzerland and the other remarks he made, might be very helpful in establishing a conspiracy between Billie Sol Estes and Commercial Solvents?'"

In answer to a question on the nature of the business between the company and Estes, Wheeler said:

"It is very important to realize two things: First, because our business is a very competitive one, arrangements such as we had with Estes, while not an everyday occurence, are not unusual either. Other companies have extended millions of dollars of credit through one outlet before now, and so have we although never quite as much as in this case."

Wheeler pointed out that in lending the money, the security was good and said, "our rights to it are founded on justice and we certainly expect to be able to recover all that will be available."

Wheeler also cited the defense made of Commercial Solvents by Rep. Fred Schwengel of Iowa during a debate on the farm policy.

Among some of the points Schwengel made, Wheeler said, were:

1. The probe has been converted into a partisan witch hunt, during the course of which certain members of the committee, at least, seem more interested in hunting headlines than they are in hunting evil-doers.

2. The "majority party is now using the Estes case to smear innocent businessmen, to blacken the names of decent Republicans."

3. "Only a part of the inquiry has been devoted to government employes who took gifts from Estes and thus dishonored the public service. By contrast, almost the entire time has been devoted to a vain attempt to smear a legitimate business concern, the Commercial Solvents Corporation, on the sole ground that it sold chemical fertilizer in large amounts to the Estes firms. In this pursuit, the public has been treated for several days to a classic example of indictment by newspaper headlines. Each day brings a new sensational charge against Commercial Solvents, and each succeeding edition of the press reveals that the charge was false. Why has this company been selected as the official scapegoat in this case? The answer is easy. It has been a time - honored custom of our friends across the aisle to seek to arouse proper mistrust and hatred of legitimate business whenever they finds themselves in political hot water. I think it is time that this assault upon the character and reputation of innocent men was stopped. After three weeks of lurid headlines, what have we got? Sworn evidence that the officials of Commercial Solvents Corporation were not even remotely connected with the scandals which brought Estes into the toils of the law. Sworn evidence that Commercial Solvents had only normal commercial relations with Mr. Estes and nothing else."

Wheeler emphasized that Commercial Solvents did no wrong in the Estes case and certainly had nothing to hide.

Brazil's Leaders Face Pressure

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Powerful pressure was imposed on Brazil's quarreling political leaders Saturday to settle the political crisis that has rocked the nation for 11 days.

Newspapers of all political complexions warned President Joao Goulart and the leaders of the opposition conservatives to make peace for the good of the nation.

A member of Goulart's Cabinet said military leaders, who met in urgent session Friday, had "suggested to the president that he take all possible steps to resolve the crisis within 24 hours."

What concerned the press and the military leaders was last week's food riots that took 19 lives. Anti-Communist politicians were not alone in accusing leftists and Communists of setting off the rioting while the political dispute was at its height.

There is no food shortage, but the government in its fight against inflation has imposed prince controls. Storekeepers have been holding back food supplies hoping to force price increases.

In a statement, Goulart himself appealed to political leaders to find a solution, saying the suffering of the people could drive them "to desperation and the unforeseeable."

The political crisis arose from what appeared to be a routine resignation last month of Prime Minister Tancredo Neves to run for re-election to Parliament.

The conservative parties dominating Parliament refused to approve Goulart's first choice as a successor, Foreign Minister Francisco San Tiago Dantas of the president's own labor party.

Auro de Moura Andrade, right-of-center leader in the Senate, then was approved as prime minister but quit after 36 hours in a dispute with Goulart. He said the dispute was over his choices for military posts in the Cabinet and warned the crisis could lead "to the destruction of democracy in our country."

While the conservatives insisted on holding the prime minister's post, unions called a nationwide general strike in an attempt to force appointment of a Cabinet dominated by Goulart's Labor party. They threatened another general strike to back their demands.

Armed troops still guard strategic points and military police patrol the streets in force, but calm appeared to have returned to the nation for the weekend.

Only in Porto Alegre did trouble continue. There labor unions, who did not join the national walkout earlier in the week, staged a 24-hour strike that brought activity in the city to a standstill.

The rightness of Commercial Solvents Corporation's position, "the integrity of its management, is now beginning to be understood despite the vigorous efforts which continue to be made to make the company the scapegoat for the carelessness of a lot of people in government and in business, too," M. VICIOUS ATTACKS

"Vicious attacks have been made on our integrity," he said. "This is not too surprising when one realizes that in this disaster, in which tens of millions of dollars probably will have been lost by persons who extended credit without checking on their security, we are the only principal creditor which took the trouble to get sound callateral for the advances we made.

"Incidentally, we are continuing today to serve much of the West Texas market with anhydrous ammonia.

Brazil's Leaders Face Pressure

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Powerful pressure was imposed on Brazil's quarreling political leaders Saturday to settle the political crisis that has rocked the nation for 11 days.

Newspapers of all political complexions warned President Joao Goulart and the leaders of the opposition conservatives to make peace for the good of the nation.

A member of Goulart's Cabinet said military leaders, who met in urgent session Friday, had "suggested to the president that he take all possible steps to resolve the crisis within 24 hours."

What concerned the press and the military leaders was last week's food riots that took 19 lives. Anti-Communist politicians were not alone in accusing leftists and Communists of setting off the rioting while the political dispute was at its height.

There is no food shortage, but the government in its fight against inflation has imposed prince controls. Storekeepers have been holding back food supplies hoping to force price increases.

In a statement, Goulart himself appealed to political leaders to find a solution, saying the suffering of the people could drive them "to desperation and the unforeseeable."

The political crisis arose from what appeared to be a routine resignation last month of Prime Minister Tancredo Neves to run for re-election to Parliament.

The conservative parties dominating Parliament refused to approve Goulart's first choice as a successor, Foreign Minister Francisco San Tiago Dantas of the president's own labor party.

Auro de Moura Andrade, right-of-center leader in the Senate, then was approved as prime minister but quit after 36 hours in a dispute with Goulart. He said the dispute was over his choices for military posts in the Cabinet and warned the crisis could lead "to the destruction of democracy in our country."

While the conservatives insisted on holding the prime minister's post, unions called a nationwide general strike in an attempt to force appointment of a Cabinet dominated by Goulart's Labor party. They threatened another general strike to back their demands.

Armed troops still guard strategic points and military police patrol the streets in force, but calm appeared to have returned to the nation for the weekend.

Only in Porto Alegre did trouble continue. There labor unions, who did not join the national walkout earlier in the week, staged a 24-hour strike that brought activity in the city to a standstill.

Judge Says Sparing Rod Not For Best

WHITING, Ind. (AP)—A Whiting City Court judge, who punishes teen-age offenders with head - shavings, spankings and clean-up jobs, said Saturday he believes a whack in time cuts juvenile delinquents down to size.

Judge William Obermiller believes some teen-agers would prefer to go to jail because they regard jail as a status symbol. On the other hand, Obermiller said, a spanking lowers them in the eyes of their teen-age friends.

"If I feel the youth needs a little time behind bars, then that's where he goes, but I think spanking is court and shaving their heads is, at times, much more effective."

Obermiller believes his type of punishment helps parents regain authority in the home.

"So many kids today feel, 'I am the boss even at home.' When these kids come into court they have chips on their shoulders. When they leave, mom and dad are the bosses again."

Obermiller never orders a spanking unless parents give their permission. None of the parents of offenders have turned him down so far. A policeman or bailiff usually administers the spanking.

"I don't say that psychology shouldn't be used," he said. "In fact, my type of punishment is a form of applied psychology."

Obermiller said he will continue to spank and shave.

Defendants who talk back to police are sent to a library to copy the U.S. Constitution in longhand.

One cause of delinquency, Obermiller said, is the easy money available to teen-agers. A fine means nothing to them.

Obermiller, like a stern father, supervised a teen-age work gang Saturday that he sentenced to pick up refuse along the beach each Saturday until Labor Day.

WHITING CITY JUDGE William Obermiller supervises work of teen-age "Labor Gang" at city beach. He sentenced eight youths to beach cleanup duty every Saturday until Labor Day and ordered their hair cut to "not more than a half inch high". The unusual sentences followed their conviction on disorderly conduct charges resulting from drinking sprees in Whiting. (AP Wirephoto)

The youths were accused of littering the beach and drinking beer as minors.

"Work gangs seem to work," he reported. "And I tell them if they don't like to see their names held up to ridicule in the press, they ought to behave."

Obermiller said keeping the names of teen-age offenders out of newspapers is out of date. He said laws which coddle young offenders do not get their respect.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Press reports from Rosario, Argentina's second largest city, said Saturday police raided two East German ships docked there and seized large quantities of Communist propaganda printed in Spanish.

Blood Cancer Said Killing Spy Soblen

LONDON (UPI) — Convicted Soviet Spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen, reportedly dying of blood cancer, lay in a London prison hospital Saturday while his lawyers fought to save him from life imprisonment in America.

Soblen, who jumped $100,000 bail at New York and fled to Israel and then attempted suicide after the Israelis deported him, was whisked from a suburban London hospital Friday night to Brixton prison to await a hearing on legal moves that could make him a free man.

The high court is to meet July 17 to rule on a writ of habeas corpus served by Soblen's lawyers on the Home Office Friday night. The ruling will decide whether Soblen is being detained illegally in Britain.

After that, the Home Office must still rule on Soblen's petition for political asylum in Britain. If it is granted, Soblen probably would escape forever the life sentence imposed on him in the United States for his wartime spying for Russia.

Soblen is technically in the custody of Israel's El Al Airlines, which was given the job of deporting him from Israel. When he slashed his wrists and gored his abdomen with a steak knife aboard an El Al airliner last Sunday, he was hospitalized in Britain, although the British government never officially admitted him to the country.

Strikebreaking Doctors Rapped

REGINA, Sask. (AP)—Two of the 35 hospitals kept open across Saskatchewan for emergency service in the crisis over the province's compulsory medical care insurance plan closed Saturday for want of doctors.

At the same time, the government's small corps of emergency doctors recruited from outside to bolster stopgap service, came in for criticism on the ground they were strikebreakers and ineligible for licenses to practice.

Dr. F. W. Barootes, vice president of the governing council of the Provincial College of Physicians and Surgeons, charged in a statement to reporters Friday that the government was importing ineligible doctors.

Another statement by the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee charged the government was spending at least $100,000 on the recruiting campaign and has "cast itself in the role of state strikebreakers."

The committee is supporting the province's 700 doctors, most of whom have gone on a vacation since the compulsory medical care law went into effect July 1. They charge it introduces government control over doctor-patient relationships.

The law allows the patient free choice of doctors for prepaid medical service, but sets the fees and finances, paid from general taxes and compulsory payroll deductions.

Five arrivals expected this weekend will increase to 11 a crew of British doctors brought in on contracts for one to three months at $900 to $1,800 a month and transportation. Two U.S. doctors also have been recruited.

Jack Kinzel, secretary of the government Medical Care Commission, said, "No British doctor has been refused registration by the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons."

A British doctor automatically qualifies for registration in Saskatchewan if he is on the British Medical Association register and is of good character.

U.S. doctors have to pass examinations before being admitted to practice in Canada. Kinzel said the two Americans, both with long experience, have been hired as hospital internes under supervision of licensed physicians.

Most of the imported doctors work apart from the 200 Saskatchewan physicians who have volunteered to maintain emergency service at 35 hospitals scattered throughout the broad province.

It was announced, however, that the centers at Yorkton and Moosomin were closing because volunteers are no longer available. Originally there were 12 doctors on the emergency roster at Moosomin.

The medical care commission said service of some kind is provided, however, for 80 per cent of the province's 6,200 hospital beds. But about 60 small hospitals have no doctors and two have closed.

At Saskatoon, a rally of the Keep-Or-Doctors Committee was told by Dr. James A. Forrester that the University of Saskatchewan Medical School was in danger of closing because of the serious "erosion in morale" of many students who are about to leave because of the dispute.

There were no further clues to the mission of Premier Woodrow Lloyd, who flew to eastern Canada Thursday in a reported effort to seek a mediator.

Deputy Premier J. H. Brockelbank said Friday the government might consider the possibility of calling a special session of the legislature to take up amendments to remove the doctors' doubts about the law. But he said the doctors would first have to call off their strike.

Little Theater Tryouts Slated For Play Here

Try out to select a cast for "Anniversary Waltz" will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, July 10 and 11, at 7:30 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane according to Richard Clark who will direct the play.

There are parts for four women and six men of various ages, as well as a boy and girl about 12 to 15 years old. Anyone interested in taking a part or working backstage is invited to attend one or both of the try-outs.

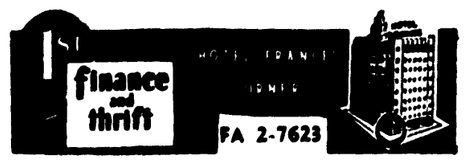

"Anniversary Waltz" is the farcical account of what happens when the teen-age son and daughter of a happily married couple discover an indiscretion of their parents' long distant past. The comedy enjoyed a good Broadway run and has been highly popular in summer stock.

It is scheduled to open early in August as the final production of the Summer Theatre Festival of Northeast State College and the Little Theatre.

U.S. Army Officers Disturbed Over Course Of War In South Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE — Are the American people being told the truth of the fighting in South Viet Nam? Are they even being told how - truths? From a series of interviews with returned American officers comes an angry indictment of a war they say is being bungled away with few wins and many errors.

By REM PRICE
AP Staff Writer

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP)—The story here—and apparently elsewhere in the U. S. Army — is that the fight to save South Viet Nam from the Communists is, to put it mildly, fouled up.

Both the Pentagon and the State Department have been extremely reluctant to discuss the Vietnamese operation at all.

But it can be reported that there are some extremely disturbed officers in the U. S. Army, ranging from captains through at least one major general.

It apparently is no secret throughout the Army that Maj. Gen. William B. Rosson, chief of the U. S. Special Forces — guerrillas — is downright angry over what he considers the misuse of his highly trained specialists in South Viet Nam.

Further, among Army men there are reports that Vietnamese President ngo Dinh Diem has kept the command structure of his government so split and confused that military operations against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas border on the chaotic.

The intelligence system upon which counter — guerrilla operations depend for success is reported near collapse.

And, finally, some officers hear the U. S. military advisory group in South Viet Nam, now numbering between 4,000 and 5,000 men, has become so top heavy and unwieldy that its efficiency has been imperiled.

For every man actually out in the field training and advising Vietnamese troops, there are reportedly at least five in rear echelon headquarters shuffling papers.

This ratio becomes somewhat startling when it is considered that the British carried out an extremely effective guerrilla suppression campaign in Malaya with a headquarters at the top of nine men and assorted subheadquarters of not more than 1,000. At one time there were 300,000 troops in the Malayan theater. That's one at the rear to 330 men in action.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara takes a less pessimistic view of the operation. Without going into specifics, he told a news conference in Washington this week that effectiveness of U. S. aid to the South Vietnamese government forces has "greatly increased over the past several months."

Among other factors he mentioned were a "much more favorable ratio" of Communists killed or captured and a lesser number of guerrilla attacks.

"We can't expect termination of a war — and it is a war — in a matter of months," McNamara said. "It will be years before it is concluded, and I believe it will be concluded successfully."

The following story, reporting the views of the men who have been on the scene in Viet Nam, was pieced together in a series of interviews which began in Washington and carried through Ft. Benning, Ga., and here.

Some of the officers interviewed saw the Vietnamese operation at different levels and hence the experiences of one might vary considerably from another. All asked to remain anonymous for career reasons.

A man who talked to Rosson immediately after the general's return from an inspection trip to Viet Nam said the chief of the Special Forces was appalled to find his men, probably the most mature and best - trained in the army, employed in providing basic training to Vietnamese recruits.

Rosson was quoted as saying: "This is a waste of manpower. We should shift these people to working with indigenous personnel native forces in company and battalion sized groups. They should give them the same training they have and then they should go into the 22 Viet Cong areas nobody has been into for 15 years."

The Special Forces chief was also quoted as saying, "if necessary, our men should remain with these people in the field. We must adopt a philosophy that now is the time to gain ground."

Rosson has declined to discuss the Vietnamese situation in public though he apparently makes no bones about his feelings in private.

Rosson was reportedly angered by the Vietnamese refusal to take the offensive against the Viet Cong in any meaningful way and has complained, "nobody has been able to get these people out of static defense positions."

The one bright spot in Rosson's trip was said to be the work of the medical men attached to his 10-man guerrilla teams.

"These men can't be praised too highly," he was quoted. "Wherever they have operated they have won hundred of friends for us."

The general was said to be of the opinion that the training of the Vietnamese could — and should — be left to the qualified and under - employed officers of the military advisory group. Rosson reportedly has put this opinion in writing to the top Army command.

U.S. Army Officers Disturbed Over Course Of War In South Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE — Are the American people being told the truth of the fighting in South Viet Nam? Are they even being told half - truths? From a series of interviews with returned American officers comes an angry indictment of a war they say is being blundered away with few hits and many errors.

By BEM PRICE
AP Staff Writer

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP)—The story here—and apparently elsewhere in the U. S. Army — is that the fight to save South Viet Nam from the Communists is, to put it mildly, fouled up.

Both the Pentagon and the State Department have been extremely reluctant to discuss the Vietnamese operation at all.

But it can be reported that there are some extremely disturbed officers in the U. S. Army, ranging from captains through at least one major general.

It apparently is no secret throughout the Army that Maj. Gen. William B. Rosson, chief of the U. S. Special Forces — guerrillas — is downright angry over what he considers the misuse of his highly trained specialists in South Viet Nam.

For every man actually out in the field training and advising Vietnamese troops, there are reportedly at least five in rear echelon headquarters shuffling papers.

This ratio becomes somewhat startling when it is considered that the British carried out an extremely effective guerrilla suppression campaign in Malaya with a headquarters at the top of nine men and assorted subheadquarters of not more than 1,000. At one time there were 250,000 troops in the Malayan theater. That's one at the rear to 250 men in action.

Blast First Over Desert In 4 Years

that only sensitive instruments could detect it, the AEC said.

Tremendous though, etc 8th graf ta29-39.

Tremendous though it was by conventional stardards, the shot was a pigmy in the atomic age. It was a fifth as powerful as Friday's gigantic H-bomb type blast from a chamber 650 feet deep in the ground.

Off-site radiation was predicted to stay well within established ranges, but the Atomic Energy Commission was monitoring radioactivity up to 300 miles away.

The Saturday explosion, at noon Pacific Daylight Time, came after two others—one here and the other in the Pacific—were postponed for 24 hours or more because of weather conditions.

Unfavorable weather caused rescheduling of a high-altitude nuclear warhead firing, mounted on a Thor missile, above Johnston Island 750 miles southwest of Honolulu.

It was re-set for beteen 4 a.m. and 7:30 a.m., EST Sunday.

The Camp Mercury test Saturday was the first atmospheric shot in Nevada since 1958 when the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union agreed to halt nuclear testing. American atmospheric tests have been made recently in the Pacific.

Forty-two underground nuclear explosions in Nevada have been announced since last September.

Published reports said soldiers were expected from Ft. Lewis, Wash., over the weekend to prepare for secret battleground maneuvers. There was no official confirmation of the reports, but dozens of tanks rolled on flatcars through hearby Las Vegas Friday.

House To Tackle Final Major Bill

in connection with state affairs.

Similiar legislation has been adopted in other states, although the legislation has not always passed. The Ohio Legislature killed a code of ethics bill in 1961.

Louisiana lawmakers, meantime, complained privately about the bill last week as it passed the house judiciary A committee, but all were quick to point out that it would be dangerous politically to vote against the proposal.

Amendments are expected to pour onto the floor when the house brings it up Monday while one solon, Rep. Lantz Womack of Winnsboro, intends to substitute the ten commandments in its place.

In addition, the bill faces a time test, in that it must be concurred in by the Senate if it passes the House while the legislature heads for final adjournment after midnight Wednesday.

Since it is a constitutional amendment that must be approved by the people in November, a two-thirds majority is required in the House, or 70 votes for passage.

Meantime, the Davis legislative program was completed on the Fourth of July when the Senate passed the $497-million general appropriations bill.

Lawmakers have pet bills to bring out of committee for floor votes before the final adjournment, but the ethics bill is the last of the controversial items.

The legislature will meet Tuesday and Wednesday with the final session planned for shortly before midnight Wednesday — a session that will carry over into the 60th day on Thursday.

Rogers says his code of ethics bill is designed to

1. Strengthen public confidence in the integrity of state government.

2. Give public employes a guide for their own conduct so as to enable them to follow policies that will improve public opinion regarding their services.

3. Aid in recuiting and retaining the best people for state service by making state government a place of prestige in which to work.

4. Offer further protection to the public against wrongdoing by public employes.

Violations of the code are spelled out in the bill as follows:

1. It would bar participation by any covered employe in any transaction with the state where the employe, his wife, or children have direct economic interest.

2. It would prohibit a covered employe from assisting another person in any transaction involving the state in which the employe at any time actively participated. In conjunction with this point, it would also prohibit a former state employe from participating in a transaction with the state if he actively participated in that transaction while a state employe.

3. It would prohibit any covered employe from receiving anything of economic value for any services rendered by him on behalf of the state, including compesation for work outside regular hours if the work is in any way related to his official duties as a state employe.

4. It would prohibit a state employe from receiving gifts from any person involved in transactions with the state agency employing the worker.

Penalties for violations include a maximum $10,000 fine and one year in prison.

The last report of seeing the orbiting satellite came from E. W. Gipson, July 5. It was directly overhead traveling in a northeasterly direction and was visible for nine minutes.

Tax Revision Bill Is Given Even Chance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats gave President Kennedy's stalemated tax revision bill a 50-50 chance Saturday of clearing the finance committee this month.

Although the outcome remained in doubt, this represented a considerable improvement in the odds over prospects for the bill just a few weeks ago.

Key issue is the proposed 20 per cent withholding tax on income from interest and dividends. Administration officials say it would bring in about $700 million a year in revenues which now go uncollected. Savings and loan institutions and some taxpayer groups bitterly opposed it in a massive mail campaign that reached its height more than a month ago.

Democratic strategists count a high mark of eight votes in the 17-member committee for the controversial withholding feature. A few votes either way, or absentees, could make the difference between approval and defeat.

One member said privately that the voting lineup in the committee was "awfully tight—but don't write the bill off."

The House passed the tax revision measure more than three months ago.

The finance committee, after lengthy hearings running to more than 5,000 pages of printed testimony, is scheduled to take up the legislation in closed session starting Wednesday.

Berlin Tunnels Bring Protests Of Communists

BERLIN (UPI)—East German Communists said Saturday they have found five more tunnels being built under the Berlin wall by West Berliners and warned the West to stop digging immediately.

At the same time, the East German press office announced that one man was killed and three wounded in a gun battle in a 60-foot tunnel under the wall last June 28.

The discovery of the tunnel was known, but the fate of the men working on it was a mystery until Saturday's announcement.

The press gave the location of the other five alleged tunnels. It said East Germany would not tolerate such provocations on its border, which it said were aggressive acts designed to increase international tension.

West Berlin police reported Saturday that Communist police on the border fired two machine-pistol bursts, presumably at refugees.

At another point on the border, two Communist border guards fled to asylum in West Berlin.

The tunnel that was discovered on June 28 was built from a West Berlin apartment house under a wall and barbed wire fence to the cellar of an East Berlin apartment house.

It was built from one side of Sebastion Strasse to the other. The houses on the Western side of Sebastion Strasse are in West Berlin, but the sidewalks and street are East Berlin territory.

The tunnel was discovered just as the builders broke through into the East Berlin cellar. Communist police opened fire and hurled tear gas into the tunnel. The builders fought back, but were overwhelmed.

Mother, 27, Fails To Hurl Child, Self Into River

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Fast-moving officers stopped a distraught mother from hurling herself and her 4-year-old daughter from a bridge into the swift waters of the Mississippi River here Saturday.

Police said the 27-year-old woman had one leg over the rail of the Memphis - Arkansas bridge when Patrolman B. G. Morgan grabbed her.

She let go of the little girl she had been carrying but another patrolman, Jerry Melton, made a frantic effort and caught the child in the air.

Negotiations Meet Due In Air Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)--American Airlines and its flight engineers will meet at the Labor Department on Monday with Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg to negotiate both wages and the composition of crews on jet airliners.

The Labor Department, announcing plans for the session, said Saturday the talks would give "appropriate consideration to the Trans World Airlines settlement."

The phraseology was not explained but indicated the formula reached last month as a basis for settling the long-standing dispute between TWA and its flight engineers would be discussed as a possible basis for settlement at American, where only the wage issue was up for negotiation this year.

A Labor Department spokesman said that in effect the meeting Monday was by mutual consent, an agreement to open the talks to the crew issue also.

The TWA formula attempts to unsnarl this central issue involved between the Flight Engineers International Association, AFL-CIO, and most of the major airlines—three pilots and a flight engineer. The airlines plan to reduce crews to three men by combining the job of the flight engineer and the third pilot. The problem has been whether a member of the flight engineers or the Air Line Pilots Association would get the third job.

The TWA plan, which must still be ratified by the engineers union, provides that the airline will give pilot training to any engineers who seek it and that engineers get preference over pilots for the third job in jet crews.

Beauty Pageant To Begin Today

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Three-quarters of the contestants in the Miss Universe beauty pageant clambered in and out of bathing suits and evening gowns Saturday, then left the fitting rooms to Sunday's final arrivals.

The pageant officially opens Sunday afternoon in Miami's Bayfront Park, where the girls will gather in native costumes.

There were 79 girls on hand Saturday and more were to arrive late Saturday and early Sunday to go through the final costume-fittings and be ready for the opening ceremonies.

Only casualty so far was Gilette Hazoume, 19-year-old entry from the Republic of Dahomey in West Africa. She was hospitalized shortly after she arrived here with a virus infection, but pageant officials said she may be released in time to start the pageant.

The pageant moves into the Miami Beach Convention Hall for a four-night stand on Wednesday night, when the preliminaries for the Miss U.S.A. contest are scheduled.

A successor to the present Miss U.S.A., Sharon Brown of Louisiana, will be picked on Thursday night. Friday night, preliminaries will be held for the Miss Universe crown, now worn by West Germany's Marlene Schmidt.

The big event is Saturday night, when the new Miss Universe will be named.

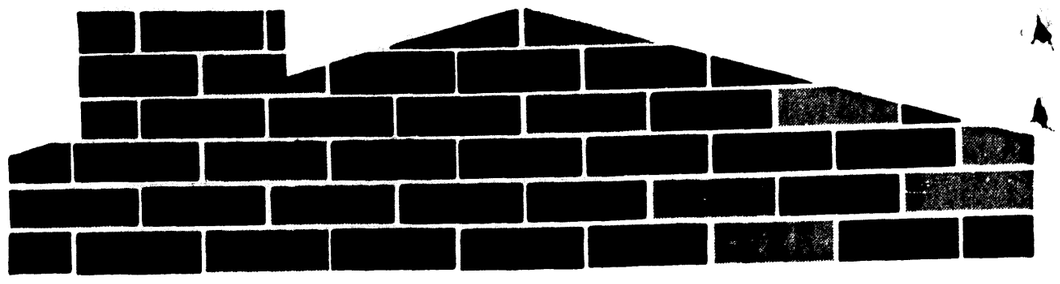

Miss Colombia, Olga Lucia Botero, a social worker from Ibague, observed her 20th birthday at pageant headquarters in Convention Hall.

"I am too busy to celebrate," she said.

Other contestants prepared a surprise party for her.

Miss Germany, Gsela Kanchuck of Wiesbaden, tired after a five-day bus trip from New York City, spent the afternoon resting. She said she was weary from constantly having to smile. "I shall feel happier after resting," she said.

Later, she planned to meet last year's Miss Germany, Marlene Schmidt, of Stuttgart, the reigning Miss Universe.

2. Give public employes a guide for their own conduct so as to enable them to follow policies that will improve public opinion regarding their services.

3. Aid in recuiting and retaining the best people for state service by making state government a place of prestige in which to work.

4. Offer further protection to the public against wrongdoing by public employes.

Sees 'Echo'

Jes' Ramblin' has learned that the glimmering and slightly wobbly path of the satellite "Echo" still is being seen by people in the Twin City area as it makes its trips around the world.

The last report of seeing the orbiting satellite came from E. W. Gipson, July 5. It was directly overhead traveling in a northeasterly direction and was visible for nine minutes.

Mother, 27, Fails To Hurl Child, Self Into River

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Fast-moving officers stopped a distraught mother from hurling herself and her 4-year-old daughter from a bridge into the swift waters of the Mississippi River here Saturday.

Police said the 27-year-old woman had one leg over the rail of the Memphis - Arkansas bridge when Patrolman B. G. Morgan grabbed her.

She let go of the little girl she had been carrying but another patrolman, Jerry Melton, made a frantic effort and caught the child in the air.

Negotiations Meet Due In Air Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)--American Airlines and its flight engineers will meet at the Labor Department on Monday with Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg to negotiate both wages and the composition of crews on jet airliners.

The Labor Department, announcing plans for the session, said Saturday the talks would give "appropriate consideration to the Trans World Airlines settlement."

The phraseology was not explained but indicated the formula reached last month as a basis for settling the long-standing dispute between TWA and its flight engineers would be discussed as a possible basis for settlement at American, where only the wage issue was up for negotiation this year.

A Labor Department spokesman said that in effect the meeting Monday was by mutual consent, an agreement to open the talks to the crew issue also.

The TWA formula attempts to unsnarl this central issue involved between the Flight Engineers International Association, AFL-CIO, and most of the major airlines—three pilots and a flight engineer. The airlines plan to reduce crews to three men by combining the job of the flight engineer and the third pilot. The problem has been whether a member of the flight engineers or the Air Line Pilots Association would get the third job.

The TWA plan, which must still be ratified by the engineers union, provides that the airline will give pilot training to any engineers who seek it and that engineers get preference over pilots for the third job in jet crews.

Beauty Pageant To Begin Today

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Three-quarters of the contestants in the Miss Universe beauty pageant clambered in and out of bathing suits and evening gowns Saturday, then left the fitting rooms to Sunday's final arrivals.

The pageant officially opens Sunday afternoon in Miami's Bayfront Park, where the girls will gather in native costumes.

There were 79 girls on hand Saturday and more were to arrive late Saturday and early Sunday to go through the final costume-fittings and be ready for the opening ceremonies.

Only casualty so far was Gilette Hazoume, 19-year-old entry from the Republic of Dahomey in West Africa. She was hospitalized shortly after she arrived here with a virus infection, but pageant officials said she may be released in time to start the pageant.

The pageant moves into the Miami Beach Convention Hall for a four-night stand on Wednesday night, when the preliminaries for the Miss U.S.A. contest are scheduled.

A successor to the present Miss U.S.A., Sharon Brown of Louisiana, will be picked on Thursday night. Friday night, preliminaries will be held for the Miss Universe crown, now worn by West Germany's Marlene Schmidt.

The big event is Saturday night, when the new Miss Universe will be named.

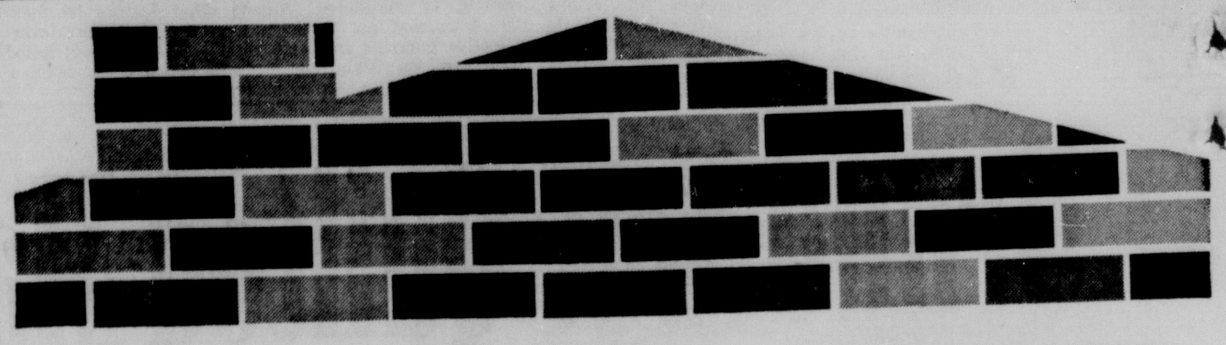

Miss Colombia, Olga Lucia Botero, a social worker from Ibague, observed her 20th birthday at pageant headquarters in Convention Hall.

"I am too busy to celebrate," she said.

Other contestants prepared a surprise party for her.

Miss Germany, Gsela Kanchuck of Wiesbaden, tired after a five-day bus trip from New York City, spent the afternoon resting. She said she was weary from constantly having to smile. "I shall feel happier after resting," she said.

Later, she planned to meet last year's Miss Germany, Marlene Schmidt, of Stuttgart, the reigning Miss Universe.

Union Slaps Radio Show Cancel Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO charged Saturday that a Birmingham, Ala., radio station cancelled Newscaster Edward P. Morgan's nightly commentary as part of a campaign by segregationists to silence "the voice of moderation" in the city.

The labor organization, which sponsors Morgan's show on the American Broadcasting Company (ABC) network, demanded that the Federal Communications Commission investigate.

It also protested to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights, the Senate Subcommittee on Freedom of Information, and the Department of Justice.

According to the AFL-CIO, radio station WBRC in Birmingham dropped Morgan's news program at the insistence of Mayor Arthur J. Hanes, who, it said, "was aroused by an erroneous description by Mr. Morgan of the drinking fountains at the Birmingham airport."

In Birmingham James Bailey, WBRC station manager, said the Morgan program was cancelled because of a time conflict with night baseball games.

Bailey said the station "had to cancel all types of network programs in order to carry baseball" and added that he himself cancelled the Morgan program.

"I made a contract with the Chicago White Sox to carry baseball in the evening beginning June 12," he said. "It had nothing to do with segregation, Mayor Arthur Hanes, Edward P. Morgan or the AFL-CIO," Bailey said.

"As a matter of fact, we get our (baseball) program from WCFL Chicago which is owned by the Chicago Federation of Labor," he said and added that "we will continue to run our station here without being intimidated by outside influences."

Morgan, in his commentary on June 19, reported that the Justice Department was suing the city to enforce desegregation of facilities at its municipal airport. He said the airport had segregated drinking fountains.

Hanes protested that this was inaccurate, and Morgan the next night reported the protest on his show.

But, the AFL-CIO said in a letter to FCC Chairman Newton Minow, "Mayor Hanes made it clear that he regarded this as inadequate. He revealed...that he had already been in touch, not only with the ABC network, but with the local station to discuss the 'possibility' of dropping the Morgan program."

The following day, the AFL-CIO said, Mayor Hanes himself announced that WBRC was cancelling the show.

LONDON (AP)—A sale of impressionist paintings and drawings brought $1.5 million at Sothebys.

Gambling Crackdown, Probe Set

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—A special grand jury investigation and a crackdown on gambling are in store for Jersey City following the discovery of two hoards of cash totaling more than $2.59 million.

Two garages have yielded the gambling loot—the second cache of $168,675.52 being found Friday a block away from where $2.4 million was discovered.

Both scenes were quiet Saturday, police said, with only a few passersby stopping out of curiosity for a look.

The finds, which also included guns, lottery slips and other numbers racket paraphernalia, have led investigators to the same man, convicted gambler Joseph (Newsboy) Moriarty.

Hudson County Prosecutor Lawrence A. Whipple said he would ask that a special grand jury be convened here Tuesday to evaluate what has been found, with a view of drawing up new charges against Moriarty.

Whipple, State Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Sills, Asst. Atty. Gen. John J. Bergin and the chief officers of the 14 law enforcement agencies in Hudson County, will meet here Wednesday to discuss the stepped-up enforcement of gambling laws in the county.

All of the money picked up in the two garages has been banked, the first bundle by federal investigators and the second by local authorities, pending the settlement of claims.

Friday's money—from $100 bills to pennies—was discovered by police in a garage at 47 Oxford Ave. On Tuesday, $2,421,840 was found in an old car left in a garage at 123 Oxford Ave.

Whipple said he was positive all of it belonged to Moriarty, who is now serving a 2- to 3-year sentence in state prison, Trenton, on a gambling conviction. Moriarty has refused to confirm or deny ownership.

Police Director William V. McLaughlin said the cinderblock garage searched Friday apparently was Moriarty's base of operations, or office, while the site of the $2.4-million cache was his bank.

The "office" had not been used since February. The numbers slips found covered 58 days of play, ending Feb. 19, the day before Moriarty went to jail, according to Police Chief Austin J. Conley.

Three X-rays found in the second garage were identified by police as pictures of the 52-year-old gambler, who suffers from a kidney ailment.

The federal government already has moved to take over the money by filing a $3,395,665.33 tax lien against Moriarty. Internal Revenue Service authorities said the total represents delinquent taxes, fraud penalties and interest for the period 1956-61.

The lien was in addition to liens totaling $355,000 that the government had filed against him earlier.

Two workmen, who discovered the $2.4 million, along with the owner of the property, Jersey City and Hudson County also were considering filing claims on portions of the hoard.

Oil Said Lying Deep In Gulf

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Columbia University scientists say there may be a vast oil field beneath the basin in the center of the Gulf of Mexico. It would be the first known oil deposit at oceanic depths.

Their evidence, uncovered by a device they say can chart formations three miles below the ocean floor, consists of a series of 21 huge domes, buried in sediments on the sea bottom.

The domes are much like the salt domes that have made the coastal region on Texas and Louisiana one of the richest oil producers in the world.

Dr. Maurice Ewing, director of Colmubia's Lamont Geological Observatory, his brother, Dr. John I. Ewing, and Dr. J. Lamar Worzel, discuss the possible existence of the oil field in the June issue of the Journal of Geographical Research.

They say the new domes might be even more productive than dome fields already producing, and add that drilling into the domes by present deep - water methods would be "comparatively easy."

To date, however, oil companies have been hesitant to investigate the possibility. The region lies in international waters, out of the jurisdiction of various tax laws. And it also lies outside the protection of American law.

The supposition that there is oil in the new location rests on a new theory for oil formation, the scientists say.

The theory states that oil primarily is formed after castatrophic landslides have buried large quantitues of plant and animal life on the ocean floor. Once buried and cut off from oxygen, the life decays and produces petroleum.

One theory on the formation of salt domes holds that they evolve where there once was an inland sea so salty that some of the salt sank to the bottom. When the resulting salt layer had been buried by some 4,000 feet of sediment, the compressed salt became plastic and seeks to flow upward.

The up-flowing of the salt produces elevated reservoirs for light-weight oil in the layers of sediment.

If the newly discovered domes are salt, it implies that the entire Gulf of Mexico once was landlocked, the scientists say.

The domes were discovered with a device that produces a profile of structures below the sediment comparable to a profile of the ocean floor inscribed by a ship's echo sounder. In this case, half-pound blocks of TNT were thrown overboard, exploded at 40 feet with echoes from the deep layers being recorded on a hydrophone towed astern of the research ship.

The scientists say they hope that some of the early drilling of the Mohole project will settle whether the domes are salt. The Mohole is a device designed ultimately to pierce the ocean floor and reach the portion of the earth's interior known as the mantle.

Vicksburg Mishap Kills Young Negro

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Ernest Edwin Gordon, 11-year-old Negro, was killed Saturday when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car on a street here.

Police said the car was driven by Robert E. Hubbard Jr., Vicksburg.

Reds' Heckling Goes Unnoticed By Chancellor

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Small groups of Communist demonstrators have tried to heckle West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on his visit to Bordeaux but there is no evidence that he is aware of their efforts.

About 30 young men with signs reading "No Nazis in Bordeaux" gathered along the route of the Adenauer motorcade Friday. The German army burned down the village of Oradour-Sur-Glane in southwestern France in 1944 and massacred 642 of the inhabitants.

A few demonstrators were out Saturday morning as the German chancellor drove to the estate where Montesquieu, French 18th Century writer and philosopher, spent most of his life. At one point a little knot of spectators along the route started shouting.

In both cases, the heavy police forces posted to guard Adenauer hustled the demonstrators away after brief scuffles. Adenauer did not see or hear them, or if he did, he took no note of them.

Muscovites Like Version Of Katyusha

MOSCOW (UPI) — As far as Moscow jazz fans are concerned, the way Joya Sherrill sings "Katyusha" could not be better.

The lush young singer with Benny Goodman's orchestra had a clear cut acquital Saturday on charges that her offering of the Russian love song is indecent.

Some 11,000 persons set up such an insistent demand last night that she sing the song that she gave in, reluctantly at first, and the fans loved it. They stomped, cheered and whistled when she finished.

"They wanted it, and Lord knows I wanted to give it to them," she said afterward. "The people won out and proved me right."

The official government newspaper Izvestia printed a letter two days ago that said the way she sang the song in a concert at Tiflis, the capital of the USSR's Georgian republic, was "indecent" and a "rough falsification."

The letter was signed by five people "and others."

In most places, the song (which Miss Sherrill sings in Russian) had been a show-stopper. But at Tiflis, it drew catcalls. The Georgians apparently objected to it being sung in Russian instead of Georgian.

Joya said she was embarrased by the letter to Izvestia.

"The last thing in the world I wanted to do is offend anyone," she said.

Sunken Gadgets To Detect Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Experiments with detection gadgets sunk thousands of feet deep on the ocean bottom or in abandoned oil wells eventually may help develop a system for detecting secret underground nuclear tests, a statement by Pentagon scientists hinted Saturday.

An announcement by the Advanced Research Projects Agency said the current underground test series in Nevada has developed a considerable amount of new information which still is being assessed.

The studies are called "Vela Uniform," which is a part of the over-all program for perfecting detection of underground and atmospheric explosions.

Continued research in earthquake effects and development of new techniques for detection now have begun to bear fruit, the announcement said.

The scientists, in talking to newsmen, cautioned against saying that any breakthrough in the over-all problem has been achieved. Research progress has been primarily in the technique of identification of seismic signals, da to determine whether they come from earthquakes or nuclear explosions

However, the announcement also discussed possibilities of extending several times the range at which seismic signals can be used for deciding whether a shockwave originated from explosion or earthquake.

Agency scientists have monitored the more than 40 underground shots set off in Nevada in the current series and compared them with recordings of hundreds of earthquakes.

A test shot in which a three-kiloton explosion was set off in hard rock was detected at 450 miles, the statement said. But a much larger shot in alluvium — a soft material — was recorded at only 250 miles with required identification features.

Then the statement added: "With the improved sensitivities now forthcoming from the Vela Uniform program, it may become possible to extend this particular criterion—of identification — with some degree of reliability to distances between 1,500 and 3,000 miles from buried nuclear explosions in the low-kiloton range."

The new technique and ranges mentioned conceivably could mean that underwater detection devices might eventually be developed which could be planted in the oceans bordering the Soviet mainland.

The announcement referred to one experiment in which seismometers were put down 4,000 feet on the floor of the ocean off Catalina Island, 300 miles from Nevada.

This experiment, the statement said, demonstrated "that these unique instruments are capable under some conditions of detecting seismic signals from underground nuclear detonations with a sensitivity comparable to that of conventional land installations."

And, the statement added, "With over 70 per cent of the world covered by international waters, the full implications of this new detection capability remain to be assessed."

HOWDY!

Gals, if you have lots of starching to do . . . why don't you try doing it in your washing machine?

After the clothes have been washed and rinsed well . . . I add a little water to the machine and pour in some cooked starch. Be sure to strain cooked starch through a tea strainer before pouring it in the machine (because sometimes it just isn't our day and it turns out lumpy!).

By setting the washing machine on about a three-minute cycle and letting the machine stir the clothes well, your starch will be evenly distributed throughout the clothes.

Many people (and I have found it works) use this method for a thin starching of entire garments.

I have found that I can save oodles of time if I use two different kinds of starch when doing laundry. Use the regular method first (such as when starching shirts) and then as the garments are removed from the machine, you can use PERMANENT starch on the collars, cuffs and, if you prefer, down the front of the shirt.

By using two different kinds of starch when you first wash . . . all you will need to do is use the washing machine method for many, many times thereafter, as the permanent starches last through many washings.

Are the permanent starches worth the extra money we pay for them? I think so when they're used for spot starching.

DEAR HELOISE:

Milk containers, especially the two-gallon size, are the answer to the daily garbage problem.

1. They can be used in two ways. Open the top completely and push your potato peelings, tomato culls and excess lettuce into the box, then fold top and discard.

2. Leave the original top closed; using a paring knife, slit the box on the side. This is wonderful for times when we have lots of garbage. The side-slit method holds about twice as much.

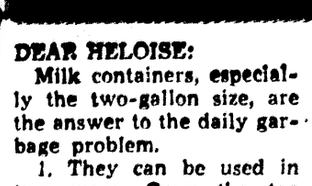

When the box has been slit on the side (in circular fashion or V shape) just push the home-manufactured top down into the box and it will hold.

EGGNOG ANYONE?

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband complains (I know he is a fanatic) when milk caps are left off the glass bottles after a bottle of milk is opened.

With three kids who always seem to discard the bottle cap, I have learned that I can take an egg and place it in the top of the bottle. This eliminates what my husband calls "unsanitariness." (I call it his nerves!).

Boston's A Mood, An Attitude, Opposing Change

By TOM HORGAN

Boston is a place where people of fickle appetite can dine in a restaurant of different culinary allegiance every day of the week. It also is a city where the changes that make for progress come very slowly. Stubborn Bostonians and an immense wealth of history may be the contributing factors to this opposition to change. Here, an adopted Boston son gives his views on the matter.

BOSTON (AP) — Boston is much more than a point of geographic interest. It is a mood, an attitude, a mental conditioning centuries in the crucible.

No one ever expressed this more concisely than a staunch Bostonian when asked where she bought her hats. Her mid-Victorian headgear vibrated as she curtly replied: "We have our hats."

She might have added we also are a center of education, medicine, letters and leadership. Bostonians feel they have arrived and there is no impulse to boast.

'THE HUB'

Other communities enjoy a variety of titles, but Boston is "The Hub." That doesn't mean hub of the nation, but the world. If Massachusetts Institute of Technology and other local scientific agencies succeed, perhaps it will mean hub of the universe.

Poet Eugene Field once said the country had but four communities worthy of residence. The order in which he named them escaped me so I list them alphabetically: Boston, Denver, New Orleans and San Francisco.

I never called at Denver, it being too far above tidewater, but if Field approved, it must be tolerable.

New Orleans disappoints me in one respect only. The oysters there are excellent, but the oyster openers lack daring. They cautiously place the bivalves in leadlined contrivances while sending the knife home. Boston oyster openers scorn such armor.

Boston feels close to San Francisco. In the gold rush, Boston ships hurried fortune seekers to El Dorado. Some crews jumped ship to join the scramble and many remained. Boston's influence may still be felt.

NOT DISGUISED

I make no attempt to disguise my devotion to Boston. Between early sorties to other cities I found myself always returning. Once I thought Shanghai the only acceptable alternative. Shanghai then was one of the most exciting cosmopolitan settlements anywhere. The Commies proved I made a fortunate choice and I have rounded out an almost uninterrupted 30-year hitch as a Bostonian.

Here are a few personal reasons why the anchor is down. Many years ago I determined never again to mow a lawn or shovel snow from walks, or waste time commuting.

My quarters are in a big granite building, built to store cargoes of sailing ships, on one of the port's oldest wharves. It is less than a 10-minute saunter from the office.

Nowhere is shopping closer to pleasure. The finest meats are found at ancient Faneuil Hall 1742, five minutes away. Oratory in the cradle of liberty on the second floor and sausages in racks below never have been considered incongruous.

Equidistant in the North End Italian quarter are the freshest of fruits and vegetables, bread piping hot from cavernous ovens, groceries and seductive delicacies of Neapolitan favor.

Lobsters and fish, both finny and shelled and fresh from the sea, are at hand on the wharf itself. My cruising ketch is tied up alongside, a convenient escape from overburdened highways. The waters gurgling past her bow wash the shores of Europe, seagulls are my most numerous neighbors.

DINING DELIGHT

Folk of fickle appetite can dine in a restaurant of different culinary allegiance each day of the week. They include French, Italian, German, Scandinavian, Greek, Syrian, Japanese and some of the best Chinese this side of Cathay.

In the realm of seafood Union Oyster House must be mentioned. Municipal records are fuzzy and the building is recorded only as far back as 1742. Exiled Louis Philippe resided there, earning his keep by teaching French before becoming king of France. It was headquarters of the Continental Army's paymaster, Ebenezer Hancock, and familiar to General Washington.

Close by are apothecaries which do not serve quick lunches or peddle automobile accessories.

One of the early French restaurants, Locke-Ober, has made some concessions to New England tastes. Its magnificent rose mahogany bar on the ground floor survived the near-beer era. No shrill voices are heard there. Women are served upstairs.

Chance acquaintances in Boston are likely to be zestful. More often than not the subject will have just arrived from or is departing for distant climes. Bostonians always have been addicted to travel and in many remote corners of the globe a visitor from the states is likely to be tagged "the man from Boston."

ACCENT PUZZLE

References to a Boston accent puzzle us. We think it is an absence of accent which attracts attention, remembering that someone said the best English is spoken not in England, but in Boston and Dublin.

Some folk gripe about Boston taxes, but the thoughtful understand we cannot be the Athens of the West without picking up the chit. Boston has $1.4 billion in taxable property against $900 million non-taxable. The latter is represented by educational, medical, charitable, religious and government holdings, all of which swell civic housekeeping expenses.

So do more than half of Boston's daylight population of 1½ million, who hie to the suburbs at day's end, leaving 690,000 to stand the night watches. This also is reflected in Boston's political structure because the migrants cannot vote here.

It is not quite clear if the early Yankees abdicated their Boston stewardship or were ousted by the Irish. Racial groups, like individuals, become weary or bored. The Irish were natural heirs but now some predict a mayor of Italian antecedents in the foreseeable future. Massachusetts currently has the second successive such governor.

PASSWORD

When Washington mounted cannon on Dorchester Heights to force the British to evacuate Boston March 17, 1776, he posted Irish sentinels, knowing they would be enthusiastically alert, and made "St. Patrick" the password.

In observing the dual Evacuation Day—St. Patrick's Day holiday it isn't quite clear whether some residents consider Washington, for expelling the British, or St. Patrick for ridding Ireland of snakes, the greater hero.

Through book banning and entertainment censorship, puritanism has't vanished under Irish rule. "Banned in Boston" boosts sales elsewhere and bookleggers always are ready to supply the contraband.

Smuggling is nothing new in these parts. Even such stout patriots as John Hancock and Samuel Adams had a go at it before signing the Declaration of Independence. Prohibition produced a late crop of smugglers who could not claim patriotic motives.

Boston is so steeped in culture even criminals find the climate stimulating and their antics often are uncommonly imaginative. The fabulous Brink's robbery, grandest, is an example. Seven men are serving life sentences but all the $1,219,000 booty has not been found.

A stroll up State Street-Kink Street of colonial days — past the towering Customs House, provides no hint it is Boston's Wall Street and, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, third most important financial center in the country. Only New York and Chicago take precedence. Wealth in Boston is not ostentatious or a test of social standing.

MORE INTERESTING

Ship chandlers and nautical instrument shops are more interesting than the money mart itself, except for the State Street Bank and Trust Company. Its quarters more resemble a marine museum than a counting-house.

Obliquely across the way, at the head of the brief thoroughfare which begins at the waterfront, is the old State House. Outside, a circle of cobblestones marks the spot where the Negro patriot Crispus Attucks fell in the Boston Massacre. It is not easy to move about Boston without treading hallowed ground.

Inside is headquarters of the Bostonian Society. Secretary Barret Williams, a font of historic lore, could not be happier about the location. The federal government, according to Williams, rates the mellowed structure 1712 the country's most important historic building.

There James Otis delivered his most significant address, causing John Adams to report: "Then and there the child of independence was born."

REMINDER

The facade is adorned with a lion and a unicorn, a reminder of occupancy by British colonial government.

Also selected for preservation as national historic sites are Faneuil Hall, Paul Revere's home, the old North Church, Dorchester Heights and Bunker Hill.

Hardly a site because she is the oldest warship in commission afloat, is USS Constitution. Few, if any, historic shrines have as many visitors as Old Ironsides.

Many communities are plagued by smog or smoke but the closest Boston comes to that is when an easterly rolls in billows of salise fog which even blind the clock in the Customs House spire. Easterlies also carry uptown the fragrant aroma of roasting coffee.

Boston is in the throes of a face-lifting and the patient is not altogether comfortable. Some of us fear the redevelopment program may remove structures, including works of the superlative architect Charles Bulfinch, which later generations will try to restore Williamsburg fashion.

Godless With Russia?

While the United States Supreme Court, in holding the recitation of prayer in New York schools to be unconstitutional, pretended to be following the intent of the drafters of the constitution, it is clear to almost anyone with ordinary intelligence that the court was tearing down and destroying that intent and that it was doing so deliberately. It also seemed that the court was virtually carrying on a crusade for Godlessness after the pattern set in Russia.

The court went out of its way to render the decision, bypassing many other cases that were patently more urgent, even if its decision had been moral and correct, which it was not.

In handing down the decision, the court appeared again to be following the precepts of the same handful of atheists, communist sympathizers, radicals and disbelievers it has followed before in rendering opinions on integration and communistic activities. It appears to be in complete accord with the Russian position of Godlessness. To say the court acted without prejudice would be stretching the imagination too far, since it went out of its way to render the decision.

In ruling against prayer in schools, the supreme court made its most far-reaching and dangerous decision of modern times, if not in the entire history of the United States.

To argue that the ruling applied only to the specific prayer recommended by the board of regents in the New York school district would be putting a false face on the whole situation.

It should be remembered that when the supreme court made another of its ideological rulings — the May 17, 1954, segregation decision — it ruled only that segregation was illegal, not that integration must be forced, and its decision affected only a handful of test cases. But the supreme court's ruling has mushroomed into a nationwide program of insistence, strongly backed by the court, on forced integration in every area of national life. Thus, we can be assured that the supreme court ruling on prayer in New York's schools will likewise mushroom into a major assault on all religious observances in public life.

As has been pointed out by Thurman Sensing, executive vice-president of the Southern States Industrial Council, Associate Justice William O. Douglas, in a separate opinion concurring in the majority ruling, frankly declared that the government should be neutral as to religion.

Unless the American people and the congress rise in protest against this decision, the supreme court undoubtedly will force the broadening of its stand in the district and circuit appeals courts, just as it did in all segregation cases, with the result that the courts will strike hard at every mention of God in public bodies and public meetings.

This will mean lawsuits or decisions to remove the motto "In God We Trust" from the nation's coinage. It will be the end of giving oaths to judges and witnesses, and, most important, the President of the United States on the occasion of his inaugural. It also will mean court action to disband the chaplain corps in the armed services or, at least, to provide for commissioning of spokesmen for agnostics and atheists.

Justice Douglas said that the United States government should be neutral toward religion. That is about what the Soviet government position is today. It is an officially Godless state that permits some religious bodies to function. But religion as such is forbidden a place in public education or public ceremonial in Russia. That is the position that the supreme court wants to adopt in and for America.

It should be realized that the decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court might have been rendered by a Russian court. Certainly, it in no way takes into account the traditions of this country. The Declaration of Independence clearly states the author's trust in a "divine Providence." Again and again through all the state papers of our country and its presidents and governors is faith in Almighty God stressed as the cardinal principle of American life.

The thousands of churches that dot our landscape and dominate our cities, the dozens of seminaries, and the respect accorded religious observances, all characterize this nation and people as religious in the deepest sense. America is a land of liberty because free citizens believe that their freedom is rooted in religious freedom and respect for God's will.

Now, after 186 years of national life, the supreme court wants to remove religion from our public life. The court wants religion behind church doors on Sunday.

You All Must Agree

The expression "you all" has become one for which the south is caricatured most. Southerners don't really mind this and they laugh tolerantly along with the northerners, easterners and westerners who laugh at them.

As a matter of fact, southerners don't misuse the expression in the way people from other parts of the country misuse it in attempting to quote them.

The Bible, in Romans 15:33, says: "Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

When the Bible says "you all" it means you all, or all of you. That is what the southerners mean when they use that expression. Southerners don't say "you all" when talking to only one person, despite the fact that people from other sections credit them with using "you all" instead of "you" on all occasions.

You all know that is right.

Benefits Of Invention

Except for one rather simple invention, half of the people in the United States might have to retire or find new positions by the time they were 40 to 45 years old. Furthermore, they would be deprived of many of the pleasures of reading and of the recreations and hobbies they now enjoy. If all the eye-glasses were suddenly destroyed, millions of us would be groping around with inadequate vision.

Boasting of his health in an address here recently, a professional man took off his glasses and said, "These are the nearest I have been to medicine in 30 years."

"Presbyopia," or the condition which causes a person to have to hold a newspaper farther away from his eyes in order to see, usually makes its appearance in the early 40s. Even this dark cloud, however, has a silver lining because near-sighted people then are able to see farther away and some oldsters of 80 or 90 easily read fine print. Before the invention of glasses, those past 40 who did close work usually had to find new employment.

What a terrible situation that would be for this country today. Even those who say nature knows best and those who oppose inventions and automation could hardly wish for a calamity of that kind.

Kennedy To Fight Recession

President Believes Most Urgent Problem Is To Get Economy To Moving Upward, Plans Action

President Kennedy, according to callers, does not believe the business recovery is flattening out. As for the stock market, the President thinks that it will fluctuate for sometime with no further appreciable drop and moderate rises when it does rise. He believes that his most urgent problem is to head off a recession, get the economy moving upward. His belief is that measures he has proposed to Congress and are pending there would be a big boost to the country if enacted. After his return here from his trip to Mexico he will devote his principal attention to domestic matters. If he thinks other measures are needed to keep the country from sliding down hill to a recession he will not hesitate to try for them. President knows that business downturn is worst sort of election medicine for the party in power. He makes no secret of his belief that Democrats are desperately in need of victory in November, especially in the House of Representatives.

SOUTH CAROLINA SETBACK – Kennedy Administration's bad luck in Southern primaries continues. State Representatives Albert Watson, who won the run-off primary in South Carolina's 2nd Congressional District Tuesday was a leader in the Democrats for the Nixon - Lodge movement in 1960. Belief is that Watson's organization will largely be for W. D. Workman, the Republican candidate for the United States Senate in South Carolina, against Senator Olin D. Johnston.

KENNEDY BACKS SUPPORTERS – Appointment of Representative Frank E. Smith, Mississippi, to the Board of Tennessee Valley Authority, at a salary of $20,500 was notice to President Kennedy's supporters, especially those in the South, that he will stand by them in case of political adversity. Smith is the only out-and-out Kennedy supporter in the Mississippi delegation. He was overwhelmingly defeated when because of a Congressional loss in membership he was thrown into the same District with Representative James L. Whitten, an ultraconservative. Also talked of for a Republican place on one of the Washington regulatory agencies is Representative Phil Weaver, of Nebraska. Weaver as defeated by Ralph F. Beerman, an ultra-conservative Republican. Weaver and Beerman were also thrown together in a reshuffling when Nebraska lost one member of Congress through reapportionment. Weaver was the only Republican to vote for the Kennedy farm bill.

LESSEN BONN RIFT – Administration believes that the talks between Secretary of State Rusk and West German officials in Bonn really lessened the rift between the United States and West Germany. No effort was made to force conclusions on points of basic difference. The talks were conducted with primary goals of clarification and exploration. Significant difference remain between the two Governments, but they have been "de-emphasized", the State Department think. One especially significant result of the talks. Instead of the West proposing new areas of negotiation on Berlin, the Soviet Union must first show willingness to accept the Western presence in Berlin.

WORLD WAR I PENSIONS – Congressional leaders, despite the sudden steam put behind the drive, think they will be able to head off the movement for a special pension for World War I veterans. Proposal would give many of the 2,400,000 survivors of World War I a pension of $102 per month. However, single veterans could not qualify if they had income other than retirement pay of more than $2,400 per year, or $3,600 if they had dependents. Principal backer of the plan is Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A. Inc. American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars are not participating in the effort.

OKLAHOMAN vs OKLAHOMAN – Thorn in the side of Representative Carl Albert, House Democratic Majority Leader, is his fellow Oklahoman and manager of Albert's successful fight for the post in January Steed, bolted the party House powers on the farm issue and is credited with taking along enough support to deal the White House and the McCormack - Albert - Boggs House triumvirate its staggering defeat. Hardly was that fight over when Steed took the leadership among oil and coal State Democrats against the Administration's tariff bill.

MESSENGERS OF CONCILLIATION – Some members of the Administration have made quiet efforts to mollify anti - Kennedy sentiment in business, one of them was Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who talked to his old friends at Ford Motor, where he served as President before entering the Cabinet. McNamara's prestige is high at Ford, but he was reported not to have convinced his old associates that the Administration is really friendly to business.

Tariff Cuts Seen

Congress Is Expected To Give Kennedy Victory On This Bill

A Congress which has become increasingly dubious of a great deal of legislation proposed by President Kennedy seems set to present him with a major victory on one measure, and the one he wants most of all.

The tariff bill, giving the President unprecedented powers to lower or entirely eliminate import duties, apparently has clear sailing ahead.

Ahead after the bill's House passage is still a long Senate Finance Committee hearing, the Senate debate and passage and a conference agreement for the Senate bill will differ materially from that of the House. But a good bet is that the completed tariff legislation will be on the President's desk before Labor Day.

It is true that the Ways and Means Committee rewrote most of the Administration text, but nevertheless the bill embodies all the Administration provisions. That doubtless will be true of the completed legislation.

Enactment of the law, which under old tariff legislative custom would have been called the Mills-Byrd law after the chairmen for the two Congressional tariff-writing committees, but will probably be known as the "Kennedy law" will mark the most far-reaching swing toward freer trade in the history of this nation.

It also marks a change in the position of President Kennedy in 1949 as a Representative from Massachusetts. Kennedy voted against extending the life of the Hull Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. As a United States Senator in 1955 Kennedy voted to extend the Trade Agreements Act but was against amendments which would have eliminated protectionist and escape clauses.

Paradoxically the feature most objectionable to the President in the House bill is the sop to protectionists—a provision that simple House majority will be sufficient to overrule the President when he rejects petitions under the "escape clause" for higher tariffs. That provision may be eliminated in the measure as finally enacted.

The reciprocal trade agreements program, which the new law will supplant, was enacted in 1934 along lines laid down by the late Cordell Hull, when Secretary of State. Hull believed Congress was incapable of selective and sensitive economic negotiation and that such powers should be delegated to the President.

The new law will go a vast distance farther than the Hull conception in delegation by Congress of its Constitutional function to "lay and collect duties" and to "regulate commerce with foreign nations." Indeed, for a period of five years Congress will have divested itself of any meaningful participation in tariff making, and without laying down any guidelines for the President, who may act without let or hindrance. It has been said, with a measure of truth, that the bill empowers the President to reorganize the U. S. economy.

One argument for the bill is impregnable. This country needs to expand its foreign trade for the very immediate purpose of erasing the payments deficit and to remove the threat to the nation's gold reserve. Just how effective the new legislation will be toward that end can only be disclosed in actual operation. It aims especially at direct trading with the European Common Market countries — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, with a combined population of 170,000,000 people. That would be upped to 220,000,000 if Britain joins, which is by no means certain with the hardening attitude of France and West Germany against letting Britain in.

There are other barriers to trade more important than tariffs. These include quotas, embargoes, equalization fees and licensing regulations. The new legislation will deal with none of these obstacles.

There is also fact that some of our goods are priced so high that we could not compete in many countries, even if there were no tariffs whatsoever.

The U. S. tariff even now are already low as compared with past periods or with tariffs of other industrial nations now. Of the yearly imports to the U. S. from other countries around $6,000,000,000 worth come in free and about $9,000,000,000 worth pay some duty.

It has been admitted by the proponents of the bill from the first that removing of duties is going to hurt some areas in this country, which are dependent on protected industries. The argument has been that this calculated sacrifice is for sake of a greater gain in terms of exports.

Court Decision Raped

Delhi, La.

To the Editor:

The First Baptist Church of Delhi has voted unanimously to wire the U. S. Senators and Representative from this district to inform them that the people of said church object very much to the recent decisions of the Supreme Court regarding prayer in the school room and their refusal to ban certain obscene literature from the mail. Included in these wires will be a list of names of many individual members.

Surely such action by the Supreme Court is contrary to the principles that have made our nation great. May I add that I appreciate very much your editorials concerning this matter. If you can use this material in urging other churches, organizations, and individuals to take similar steps in voicing protest against these decisions, you have our permission to do so.

Following is a copy of the wording of the telegram.

"We, the First Baptist Church of Delhi, voted unanimously in protest against the recent decisions of the Supreme Court regarding prayer in the school room and their refusal to ban certain obscene literature from the mails.

Killer Loose In Town

To the Editor

Running loose in our town is a heartless killer — a killer that will stop at nothing. Life means nothing to him.

Not long ago a law was passed in our town restricting dogs from running loose or playing with a child. This meant not only my dog but anyone's dog in West Monroe.

Children gave up their pets, either to some one across town, rather than see them shot before their eyes.

Two weeks ago we locked our dog up. Three times a day we took water and food to her. Each time she begged in her canine way to come home again. But we wanted her to stay alive so she could give birth to her puppies that were due soon.

But last night, here in her prison in West Monroe, the killer struck. This morning our dog was dead.

I firmly believe that anyone that will poison a defenseless dog will certainly kill a child.

So, beware. We have a killer loose in our town.

Warren's Switch

Earl Jr.'s Joining Democrats May Give Nixon Sharp Boost

The switch from Republican to Democrat last May of Earl Warren Jr., son of the Chief Justice of the United States, is still causing some stir in the nation's capital. For the junior Warren has now embarked on an all - out campaign to scuttle Richard Nixon, the GOP candidate for California's governorship. But the question has been raised: Will this turnabout hurt Mr. Nixon or help him? The smart money as of now says that it will help the Republicans.

The Warren name is anathema to California conservatives. And Mr. Nixon's great problem has been to win back those conservatives in his own party who supported Joseph Shell in the primary, giving him over one-third of the vote. He must also win over conservatives on the Democratic side who take a dim view of Governor Edmund (Pat) Brown's politics.

There is another factor. The junior Warren is clearly involved in a family vendetta. Last week he told the Hollywood Democratic Club that he had discussed his change in party loyalty with the Chief Justice. "He told me he had no objection to my making the change," the junior Warren said, "and I had the impression that if he was in my position to do so today, he'd do exactly the same thing." This will revive memories of the senior Warren's behavior towards Richard Nixon— a story forgotten in the rest of the country but fresh enough in California.

It began in 1946 when Mr. Nixon, an unknown in politics, made his first bid for a seat in Congress. Governor Warren, who posed as "non - partisan," refused to endorse Dick Nixon and gave tacit support to the Democratic incumbent, Representative Jerry Voorhis, an avowed socialist and an exponent of "funny money" theories of economics. When Harold Stassen, then at his peak of popularity among Republicans, offered to campaign for Mr. Nixon, Governor Warren vetoed the plan.

During that campaign, moreover, Mr. Voorhis produced a letter of praise he had received some time before from Governor Warren. GOP leaders urged the Governor to state that this letter was in no way an endorsement, but he insisted on remaining silent. Again in 1950, when Mr. Nixon was running for the Senate, Governor Warren very pointedly abstained from offering help and, in fact, let it be known privately that if Mr. Nixon was defeated, there would be no gubernatorial tears. Nevertheless, the Governor was outraged in 1952 when Senator Nixon swung the California delegation to General Eisenhower — thereby torpedoing Mr. Warren's Presidential hopes.

As a California politician, Mr. Warren was able to win public office by very substantial pluralities. But the magic of his name and his appeal were clearly non - transferrable. Mr. Nixon was elected handily to the House in 1946. In 1950, he polled a 600,000 - vote plurality in the Senatorial race — the largest of any candidate for the upper chamber that year. Governor Warren was unable to block Mr. Nixon in the 1952 GOP Vice Presidential stakes. There is little reason to believe that what Earl Warren, with the powers inherent in the Governor's office, could not do, the junior Warren will achieve.

California is, of course, the most politically unpredictable state in the Union. And in any campaign, small events sometimes have as much effect as the big one. One of the important causes of Helen Gahagan Douglas's defeat, when she opposed Mr. Nixon in 1950, was the fact that she had promised to intercede with President Truman to rescind an order closing a veterans hospital in California — and then admitted that she had done nothing about it.

By the same token, the junior Warren's projected stumping of the state against Mr. Nixon may well consolidate the Republican Party and win over sufficient numbers of Democrats to save the day for the GOP. For some time the Nixon forces have been saying that he has begun to come up strong — an assessment which has been brushed aside as campaign talk. But there are indications that this may be more accurate than many have assumed.

The AFL - CIO, violently in opposition to Mr. Nixon, has been taking soundings in California. And I am told by a key official of the labor organization that as of now it is an extremely tight race. How the Democrats run their campaign, he believes, will determine the outcome in November. If Richard Nixon wins, it could be that the use of the junior Warren — particularly at a time when the Supreme Court's anti - school prayer decision is stirring the country — may have been the turning point.

Godless With Russia?

While the United States Supreme Court, in holding the recitation of prayer in New York schools to be unconstitutional, pretended to be following the intent of the drafters of the constitution, it is clear to almost anyone with ordinary intelligence that the court was tearing down and destroying that intent and that it was doing so deliberately. It also seemed that the court was virtually carrying on a crusade for Godlessness after the pattern set in Russia.

The court went out of its way to render the decision, bypassing many other cases that were patently more urgent, even if its decision had been moral and correct, which it was not.

In handing down the decision, the court appeared again to be following the precepts of the same handful of atheists, communist sympathizers, radicals and disbelievers it has followed before in rendering opinions on integration and communistic activities. It appears to be in complete accord with the Russian position of Godlessness. To say the court acted without prejudice would be stretching the imagination too far, since it went out of its way to render the decision.

In ruling against prayer in schools, the supreme court made its most far-reaching and dangerous decision of modern times, if not in the entire history of the United States.

To argue that the ruling applied only to the specific prayer recommended by the board of regents in the New York school district would be putting a false face on the whole situation.

It should be remembered that when the supreme court made another of its ideological rulings — the May 17, 1954, segregation decision — it ruled only that segregation was illegal, not that integration must be forced, and its decision affected only a handful of test cases. But the supreme court's ruling has mushroomed into a nationwide program of insistence, strongly backed by the court, on forced integration in every area of national life. Thus, we can be assured that the supreme court ruling on prayer in New York's schools will likewise mushroom into a major assault on all religious observances in public life.

As has been pointed out by Thurman Sensing, executive vice-president of the Southern States Industrial Council, Associate Justice William O. Douglas, in a separate opinion concurring in the majority ruling, frankly declared that the government should be neutral as to religion.

Unless the American people and the congress rise in protest against this decision, the supreme court undoubtedly will force the broadening of its stand in the district and circuit appeals courts, just as it did in all segregation cases, with the result that the courts will strike hard at every mention of God in public bodies and public meetings.

This will mean lawsuits or decisions to remove the motto "In God We Trust" from the nation's coinage. It will be the end of giving oaths to judges and witnesses, and, most important, the President of the United States on the occasion of his inaugural. It also will mean court action to disband the chaplain corps in the armed services or, at least, to provide for commissioning of spokesmen for agnostics and atheists.

Justice Douglas said that the United States government should be neutral toward religion. That is about what the Soviet government position is today. It is an officially Godless state that permits some religious bodies to function. But religion as such is forbidden a place in public education or public ceremonial in Russia. That is the position that the supreme court wants to adopt in and for America.

It should be realized that the decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court might have been rendered by a Russian court. Certainly, it in no way takes into account the traditions of this country. The Declaration of Independence clearly states the author's trust in a "divine Providence." Again and again through all the state papers of our country and its presidents and governors is faith in Almighty God stressed as the cardinal principle of American life.

The thousands of churches that dot our landscape and dominate our cities, the dozens of seminaries, and the respect accorded religious observances, all characterize this nation and people as religious in the deepest sense. America is a land of liberty because free citizens believe that their freedom is rooted in religious freedom and respect for God's will.

Now, after 186 years of national life, the supreme court wants to remove religion from our public life. The court wants religion behind church doors on Sunday.

You All Must Agree

The expression "you all" has become one for which the south is caricatured most. Southerners don't really mind this and they laugh tolerantly along with the northerners, easterners and westerners who laugh at them.

As a matter of fact, southerners don't misuse the expression in the way people from other parts of the country misuse it in attempting to quote them.

The Bible, in Romans 15:33, says: "Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

When the Bible says "you all" it means you all, or all of you. That is what the southerners mean when they use that expression. Southerners don't say "you all" when talking to only one person, despite the fact that people from other sections credit them with using "you all" instead of "you" on all occasions.

You all know that is right.

Benefits Of Invention

Except for one rather simple invention, half of the people in the United States might have to retire or find new positions by the time they were 40 to 45 years old. Furthermore, they would be deprived of many of the pleasures of reading and of the recreations and hobbies they now enjoy. If all the eye-glasses were suddenly destroyed, millions of us would be groping around with inadequate vision.

Boasting of his health in an address here recently, a professional man took off his glasses and said, "These are the nearest I have been to medicine in 30 years."

"Presbyopia," or the condition which causes a person to have to hold a newspaper farther away from his eyes in order to see, usually makes its appearance in the early 40s. Even this dark cloud, however, has a silver lining because near-sighted people then are able to see farther away and some oldsters of 80 or 90 easily read fine print. Before the invention of glasses, those past 40 who did close work usually had to find new employment.

What a terrible situation that would be for this country today. Even those who say nature knows best and those who oppose inventions and automation could hardly wish for a calamity of that kind.

Kennedy To Fight Recession

President Believes Most Urgent Problem Is To Get Economy To Moving Upward, Plans Action

President Kennedy, according to callers, does not believe the business recovery is flattening out. As for the stock market, the President thinks that it will fluctuate for sometime with no further appreciable drop and moderate rises when it does rise. He believes that his most urgent problem is to head off a recession, get the economy moving upward. His belief is that measures he has proposed to Congress and are pending there would be a big boost to the country if enacted. After his return here from his trip to Mexico he will devote his principal attention to domestic matters. If he thinks other measures are needed to keep the country from sliding down hill to a recession he will not hesitate to try for them. President knows that business downturn is worst sort of election medicine for the party in power. He makes no secret of his belief that Democrats are desperately in need of victory in November, especially in the House of Representatives.

SOUTH CAROLINA SETBACK —Kennedy Administration's bad luck in Southern primaries continues. State Representatives Albert Watson, who won the runoff primary in South Carolina's 2nd Congressional District Tuesday was a leader in the Democrats for the Nixon - Lodge movement in 1960. Belief is that Watson's organization will largely be for W. D. Workman, the Republican candidate for the United States Senate in South Carolina, against Senator Olin D. Johnston.

KENNEDY BACKS SUPPORTERS — Appointment of Representative Frank E. Smith, Mississippi, to the Board of Tennessee Valley Authority, at a salary of $20,500 was notice to President Kennedy's supporters, especially those in the South, that he will stand by them in case of political adversity. Smith is the only out-and-out Kennedy supporter in the Mississippi delegation. He was overwhelmingly defeated when because of a Congressional loss in membership he was thrown into the same District with Representative Jamies L. Whitten, an ultraconservative. Also talked of for a Republican place on one of the Washington regulatory agencies is Representative Phil Weaver, of Nebraska. Weaver as defeated by Ralph F. Beerman, an ultraconservative Republican. Weaver and Beerman were also thrown together in a reshuffling when Nebraska lost one member of Congress through reapportionment. Weaver was the only Republican to vote for the Kennedy farm bill.

LESSEN BONN RIFT — Administration believes that the talks between Secretary of State Rusk and West German officials in Bonn really lessened the rift between the United States and West Germany. No effort was made to force conclusions on points of basic difference. The talks were conducted with primary goals of clarification and exploration. Significant difference remain between the two Governments, but they have been "de-emphasized", the State Department think. One especially significant result of the talks: Instead of the West proposing new areas of negotiation on Berlin, the Soviet Union must first show willingness to accept the Western presence in Berlin.

WORLD WAR I PENSIONS — Congressional leaders, despite the sudden steam put behind the drive, think they will be able to head off the movement for a special pension for World War I veterans. Proposal would give many of the 2,400,000 survivors of World War I a pension of $102 per month. However, single veterans could not qualify if they had income other than reitrement pay of more than $2,400 per year, or $3,600 if they had dependents. Principal backer of the plan is Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A. Inc. American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars are not participating in the effort.

OKLAHOMAN vs OKLAHOMAN — Thorn in the side of Representative Carl Albert, House Democratic Majority Leader, is his fellow Oklahoman and manager of Albert's seccessful fight for the post in January. Steed, bolted the party House powers on the farm issue and is credited with taking along enough support to deal the White House and the McCormack - Albert - Boggs House triumvirate its staggering defeat. Hardly was that fight over when Steed took the leadership among oil and coal State Democrats against the Administration's tariff bill.

MESSENGERS OF CONCILLIATION — Some members of the Administration have made quiet efforts to mollify anti - Kennedy sentiment in business, one of them was Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who talked to his old friends at Ford Motor, where he served as President before entering the Cabinet. McNamara's prestige is high at Ford, but he was reported not to have convinced his old associates that the Administration is really friendly to business.

Tariff Cuts Seen

Congress Is Expected To Give Kennedy Victory On This Bill

A Congress which has become increasingly dubious of a great deal of legislation proposed by President Kennedy seems set to present him with a major victory on one measure, and the one he wants most of all.

The tariff bill, giving the President unprecedented powers to lower or entirely eliminate import duties, apparently has clear sailing ahead.

Ahead after the bill's House passage is still a long Senate Finance Committee hearing, the Senate debate and passage and a conference agreement for the Senate bill will differ materially from that of the House. But a good bet is that the completed tariff legislation will be on the President's desk before Labor Day.

It is true that the Ways and Means Committee rewrote most of the Administration text, but nevertheless the bill embodies all the Administration provisions. That doubtless will be true of the completed legislation.

Russian Influence Noticeable Everywhere

Cuba Like A Place Where The Clocks Have Stopped

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP) — Olive-green Russian trucks move down the broad, sun-soaked streets of Havana, along with 1960 American cars.

The Coca-Cola dispensed at the Yuri Gagarin Cafeteria is an imitation product.

Russian movies double with aging Hollywood productions.

The Russian influence is evident in Havana, but the casual visitor might believe he was in some Western city where the clock stopped months ago.

Baseball is still Cuba's favorite sport, but chess is winning converts.

Sandal-shod visitors from behind the Iron Curtain are commonplace. Bootblacks have found that Czechs are more generous than Muscovites.

The Red flag, with gold hammer and sickle, shares the breeze with the Cuban ensign. From a pier in the bay the legend "Peace and Friendship," in Russian letters, greets Soviet sailors. Above it, in Spanish, appears "Fidel—Khrushchev."

2-YEAR PACT

It is 2½ years since Russia and Cuba made a 12-year credit agreement, promising the Castro regime $100 million in machinery and equipment. A five-year trade and payments pact was signed at the same time in Havana by Prime Minister Fidel Castro and Anastas I. Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier.

Mikoyan promised the Soviet Union would take a million tons of Cuban sugar a year for five years — at world market prices. Until then the United States was buying around five million tons a year and paying a premium.

Soviet-Cuban trade this year is set at 750 million pesos. The peso officially is equivalent to $1, but its actual worth in free exchanges is much less.

The government says the Russians will take 2.8 million tons of sugar this year, at an undisclosed price.

In 1958 when Castro was bringing to a close his campaign against President Fulgencio Batista, only 2.6 per cent of Cuba's exports went behind the Iron Curtain. This figure has risen to more than 80 per cent. Approximately the same proportion of the island's total imports also hails from Communist nations.

Outside these cold figures lies the technical training and cultural exchange program.

More than 900 peasant youths returned from the Soviet Union this spring, after a one-year stay at different agricultural technological centers.

Another 1,500 young Cubans are studying in universities in the Soviet Union. Still others are in Poland, East Germany and other Communist countries.

An undetermined number of Russian, Czech, Chinese and Polish technicians are working in Cuba. Their projects range from educational assistance to vague, undefined advisory posts in several ministries.

USEFULNESS DOUBTFUL

Soviet technicians are here as agriculture advisers, but their knowledge of tropical farming is so limited that their usefulness is doubtful.

Military advisers are known to be on the island. Their role appears to be the revolution's best kept secret.

A British newsman touring the hinterlands ran into a group of Czech officers in a small cafe. They wore olive-green fatigues of Castro's army.

The Soviets have promised bonus shipments of many food staples, including rice, lard and wheat. But some diplomatic sources believe the additional quantities will do little to alleviate rationing, especially if the deliveries are stretched out over the next 12 months.

"Take beans, for example," a veteran European diplomat said. "Cuba used to eat 55,000 tons of beans each year. Two-thirds were imported. The Russians are promising 8,500 tons, that's about one-sixth of the nation's total needs.

"On the other hand the Russians will ship 124,000 tons of wheat, when, as far as I know, Cuba's top consumption is around 120,000 tons per year."

The same source said he expected further rice shortages. He expressed doubt Red China could keep its commitments to Cuba.

"The Chinese failed to deliver 20,000 tons of last year's agreed on total," he said. Red China has promised Cuba 120,000 tons of rice for 1962. The Russians pledged 10,000 tons.

A diplomat from the neutral bloc, regarded as an agricultural expert, has predicted the 1962 Cuban rice harvest to be low, perhaps under 80,000 tons. Cuba's yearly need, according to this source is 300,000-350,000 tons.

Jeeps, tractors, and trucks are the most common signs of Russian aid. Hardly a ship docks in Havana that isn't carrying a half-dozen or more Soviet-made trucks.

Consumer goods are scarce. After an initial shipment of East German radios and type writers and Russian cameras, little else was sent. Pictures have appeared in newspapers showing "famous television receivers made in the People's Republic of China," but new sets are unobtainable, made in East or West. The same applies to refrigerators, air conditioners or washing machines.

Small television sets, two or three years old, are offered for sale at 350 pesos.

From Red China have come ball point pens, flashlights, fans and beautiful silk brocades, far too heavy for Cuba's torrid temperatures.

Poland has sent trucks, pickups (mainly used as pitney buses), light bulbs and cement mixers, but prefers to sell its renowned hams in the United States for dollars.

There have been no announcements on how much military aid Cuba receives from the Iron Curtain bloc. But one look at recent military parades is enough to tell the observer Cuba has a well-armed, highly mobile army, well supported by MIG jets.

Learning Much About War In South Viet Nam

By CONRAD FINK

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American officers here to advise the South Vietnamese how to win a war often find themselves learning more than they teach.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that it takes a guerrilla to kill a guerrilla.

The individual Vietnamese soldier often shows signs of being a better jungle fighter than his American advisers.

Huge government offensives planned along classic lines and involving thousands of men and millions of dollars in U.S. military hardware gain extremely limited results.

OPERATION

One four-day operation sent 2,300 troops into Communist-held country supported by scores of airplanes and ships. On the planning board it looked like a sure success, but only 43 guerrillas were killed.

Some government units move into the jungle and stay there, fighting with typical guerrilla tensively but it often is difficult to ascertain whether the people killed by napalm or fragmentation bombs were indeed guerrillas or merely farmers.

One of the biggest shocks to Americans here is the failure of the M113 armored personnel carrier to quickly give government troops the upper hand. The amphibious M113s on two occasions failed to navigate rivers.

The vaunted M1 rifle has come under close scrutiny. When range is needed, the advisers say, there is nothing like an M1. In the jungle, with visibility often limited to a few yards, a rapid fire, shorter weapon is needed.

The most sought-after rifle is the relatively new AR15, or Armalite, which many regular Army men disdain because of its small caliber .223. They call it a "varment rifle," and say regular units should be equipped with nothing less than a 30-caliber rifle.

But the Vietnamese find the Armalite's muzzle velocity, extremely rapid rate of fire and light weight a distinct advantage.

Some of the Vietnamese company commanders who were fighting guerrillas when their advisers were still in high school are being sent to the American counterinsurgency training camp on Okinawa for 12 weeks of learning how to fight guerrillas.

The big fear among the advisers is that the Vietnamese officers will be too shy to teach the teachers on Okinawa.

IN WASHINGTON

DSA Is Nearing Full Operation

By REM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new $3-billion Defense Supply Agency — DSA — is now nearing full operation.

That may turn out to be the best news taxpayers have had in years.

This unsung, almost ignored agency is now eight months old and has 16,500 employes. Ultimately, it will have 23,900.

Its job is to supply the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines with the items they use in common and to do it efficiently and effectively.

In the process, it is expected to lop $2 billion annually from the current procurement costs of the services — $2 billion that critics of the military say has been spent through sheer managerial inefficiency and service parochialism.

It already has reduced the jumbled inventory it took over from the services by $229 million.

Taxpayers have been complaining about the ineptness of military procurement clear back to the days of George Washington. Nobody has the foggiest notion of how many long-forgotten studies have been made on ways and means to improve military supply services.

ANOTHER STUDY

Last year Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara ordered another study. The final report, never published, apparently outrated his sense of tidiness for on Aug. 31 he announced the Defense Supply Agency would come into being Oct. 1.

For all practical purposes, the defense secretary abolished the quartermaster corps operations of the armed services and transferred the whole kit and kaboodle to DSA.

In so doing, McNamara not only brought a high degree of centralization to the chaotic procurement field, but by establishing the agency outside any military service and directly under his office, he nailed down civilian control of a vital section of military spending, though his first choice for chief was a military man.

To head this new empire McNamara yanked Lt. Gen. Andrew T. McNamara, 57, an affable fisherman and terrible golfer (100 plus), back from Korea where he was serving as quartermaster general to the 8th Army. The two McNamaras are unrelated.

Gen. McNamara, a man with a distinguished combat record in World War II, a native of East Providence, R.I., had been in Korea only three months and was just settling down to life among the rice paddies with his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Tripp, when the summons came.

The general and his wife Margaret, otherwise known as "Pudge," and Mrs. Tripp set up housekeeping in a two-bedroom apartment in Arlington, Va.

Since he reported for duty, Gen. McNamara has worked a 14-hour day — from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., often six days a week. His already gray hair is getting whiter.

The DSA now has charge of procuring food, clothing, medical supplies, petroleum products, construction materials, industrial, electronic and automotive supplies for all the services.

Further, it is charged with providing transportation for all supplies from where they happen to be, to where the services need them. In addition, DSA is now charged with handling the sales of all goods declared surplus.

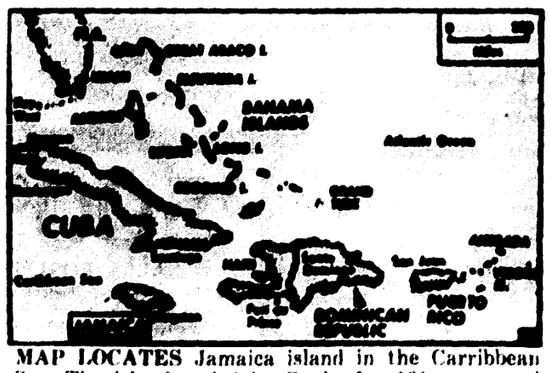

To supply the services, Gen. McNamara has a revolving stock fund of $2 billion a year. He plans to sell about $3 billion worth of goods to the services and buy a like amount from producers.

In essence, DSA operates a wholesale warehouse system which delivers to the service operated retail outlets. The serviceman is the consumer.

Just by coming into being, the DSA effected an automatic saving of $27 million. The services had it estimated it would cost $204 million a year to operate the administrative end of the quarter master business. DSA figures to do the same job for $177 million.

In the past military supply operations were a sort of never never land where efforts could be duplicated and activities overlapped.

In this happy, bureaucratic heaven, the Army could insist on shiny brass belt buckles and the Marine Corps could demand black. The Army, Navy and Marines could buy different shades of khaki shirts, none of which was the same weight. Belt loops on trousers could vary in width and the Marines could have a longer necktie than the Army. The Air Force could have a shirt ¼th of an inch higher at the collar than anybody else.

New Author Writes 2nd Top Novel

THE GOLDEN RENDEZVOUS. By Alistair MacLean. Doubleday. $3.95.

It's only in the latter part of these pages that you get the suspense of waiting for an armed nuclear device to go off. Before that, there is merely a series of murders, stealthy detective work, gun fights and sabotage. All told with finesse.

The action takes place on the S.S. Campari, a vessel in the West Indian service which carries a snob class of passengers in a very plush atmosphere.

First the ship is delayed by a search for a scientist who has disappeared, along with the working model of a small, tactical nuclear weapon. you don't hear of him again until the last few chapters, when the device is armed.

Most of the time the hero and narrator — First Officer John Carter — is helping his captain try to solve the mystery of three murders that take the lives of crew members. It wouldn't be giving the plot away to say that the trouble starts when certain cargoes and passengers come aboard at a port ruled by a dictator.

In the midst of all this bravery, cunning and sea lore there also is a romance with a multimillionaire's daughter. The author makes the violent adventures seem plausible and lightens his narrative with the dry humor of his hero.

And MacLean, who was the author of "The Guns of Navarone," has turned out a first rate thriller. It isn't supposed to be literature, but it certainly is entertaining.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many Borrowing Library Books

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

During the month of June the people of Ouachita Parish borrowed a total of 57,991 books from the Ouachita Parish Public Library System. This is the largest monthly circulation in the history of the Library and exceeds the figure for last June by 6,211 books. These books were borrowed from five different libaries of the Parish System as follows: From the Main Library — 25,560, from the West Monroe Library — 8,612, from the Anna Meyer Branch — 7,290 and from the Carver Branch — 1,195. These figures are eloquent testimony of the fact that the people of Ouachita Parish are using and enjoying their library. Also in the month of June 762 people, who had not used the library before, registered as borrowers. The total number of registrants on July 1 was 37,684.

BUSY MONTH

June was also a busy month in the cataloging department. 1,141 new books were added to the collection during the month. 502 were adult books and 639 were juvenile books. The total book collection is now 75,636 books, which is 26,000 short of the National Standard of one book per person in the population. The collection is growing rapidly and we hope to reach our goal by the end of 1965.

"Portrait in Brownstone" is the title of the new novel by Louis Auchinloss. It deals with the large and well-to-do Denison family who lived in New York around the turn of the century. It is a story of many ramifications and will appeal to all who love a good family story. Readers of western stories will welcome a new one by Leonard Foreman called "Spanish Grant."

A beautiful novel with a biblical setting is "Letter to Philemon" written by Winthrop Neilson. It is a short little book and will appeal to many readers. "Pigeon Feathers" is the title of the new book by John Updike. It is a modern story and will find a ready audience. A book for which we have had numerous requests and which we are happy to have now for our readers is "Angel Pavement" by Sergeanne Golon. A new mystery story is "The Will of the Tribe" by Arthur W. Upfield.

Non-fiction books offer a variety of material and should interest many readers. "The Strategy of Investment" by Richard N. Stillman contains sound advice for the investor. "The Nature of Communism" is a very discerning book written by Robert V. Daniels. It contains much valuable information and is one that should fill a definite place. In the merchandising field there is a new book, "Marketing for Profit" by Douglas P. Gould.

Readers interested in architecture should see a new series called "Great Ages of World Architecture," published by the Braziller press. The library has just added three new titles in this series. They are "Gothic Architecture" by Robert Branner, "Baroque and Rococo Architecture" by Henry A. Millon and "Modern Architecture" by Vincent Joseph Scully. A most useful book is called "Children's Theatre and Creative Dramatics." The authors are G. B. Siks and H. B. Dunnington and it was recently published by the University of Washington.

If you want a humorous book, be sure to get "Anybody Who Owns His Own Home Deserves It" by Alan King. It is extremely funny. The boundaries of the ancient world are constantly being pushed back by new discoveries in the world of archeology. The newest book on this subject is "The Ancient Kingdoms of the Nile" by Walter A. Fairservis. It is a book which the serious reader will enjoy.

An addition to the literature of World War II is "through the Valley of the Kwai" by Ernest Gordon. The setting is Burma and Siam and much of the action takes place in a Japanese Prison camp. It is not a pleasant book, but certainly gives a vivid picture of the way the war was.

A perfectly beautiful book was recently received at the Library as a gift of the Lago Oil Co. of Aruba. It is a history of the island of Aruba written by Johan de Hartog and is called "Aruba, Past and Present." Another book which sheds new light on the story of the American Revolution has been written by Donald Barr Chidsey. It is called "Victory at Yorktown" and deals with details of the final surrender of the British forces.

Several new additions to the reference collection are worthy of note. "Statistics Sources" by Paul Wasserman is a book which tells where one should look for statistics on a particular subject. "Clarke County, Alabama and Its surroundings from 1540 to 1877" by the Rev. T. H. Ball should be of interest to those whose ancestors came from that state. "Whitford and Allied Families" by William B. Willsford contains much valuable genealogical information.

Medicare Plan Is In Trouble

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Saskatchewan Province derives its names from the Indian word Kisiskatchewan — Swift Flowing River.

And some commentary holds that the crisis over the provincial compulsory medical care program is basically a case of trying to make the river flow too copiously in the greening fields of social welfare. Perhaps too much, too soon.

Even with the prairie province's long background of Socialist experimenting, one commentator says, the government's medical care program is a pretty big dose for one gulp. It was pushed through a special session of the legislature last fall and became effective July 1 despite powerful opposition from the medical profession.

Almost everybody, including Socialist Premier Woodrow Lloyd, expected the doctors' opposition. They are generally conservative, many of them came here from England to get away from that country's socialized medicine, and their average earnings are $15,000 a year.

Few, however, anticipated the nonsupport of the public for the medical plan. In the first days of the doctor's walkout not a picket has been reported at any hospital or any doctor's office. Public criticism of the doctors was absent.

The government's position has not been strengthened by the public attitude. In fact, opposition political parties sense a blunder on the part of the ruling Cooperative Commonwealth Federation and are trying to cash in by backing the clamor against the program.

This may turn out to be wishful thinking on their part, but it would be ironical if Canada's only Socialist government should be unseated for putting through a program the CCF has advocated since it was founded in 1932.

The CCF was born during the dirty 30s after Saskatchewan was left desolate by drought, dust storms, crop failures, depression.

It finally won the provincial election in 1944 and took over the government under the leadership of the colorful T. C. "Tommy" Douglas.

Saskatchewan became known as the Cooperative Province because of the rapid spread of the cooperative movement in farming, marketing, credit and even such projects as oil refining.

It also blazed new trails in health and social welfare programs. In 1947, the province adopted a government hospitalization program under which 97 per cent of the population received prepaid hospital care. It was the first such program in Canada.

But things are changing. The small farmer is being replaced by the bigger land owner. The urban population is growing in relation to the rural. Industrialization is increasing. Saskatchewan no longer has a single CCF representative in the national Parliament.

In last month's national election, even the veteran Tommy Douglas was badly beaten in a Regina district where he campaigned mainly on the medical program.

It is still too early to tell what will be the final outcome in the battle. Government leaders say they are confident the doctors cannot hold out indefinitely. But the doctors show no signs of cracking and some are leaving for jobs elsewhere.

The Salesman

It has been said that salesmen are a big problem to their bosses, their customers and their wives, to conservative credit managers, to hotels, and sometimes to each other.

They make more noise and mistakes, create more cheer, correct more errors, adjust more differences, spread more gossip, explain more discrepancies, hear more grievances, pacify more belligerents, and waste more time under high pressure without losing their temper, than any class we know, including ministers.

They live in hotels, cabs and tents, on trains, buses and park benches, eat all kinds of food, drink all kinds of liquids, good and bad, sleep before, during and after business with no more schedule than the weather bureau, and little, if any, effect on the public health.

And yet salesmen are a power in society and in the public economy. In many ways they are undoubtedly a tribute unto themselves, they draw and spend more money with less effort and with less return than any other group in business. They come at the most inopportune time, under the slightest pretext, stay longer under more opposition, ask more personal questions, make more comment, put up with more inconveniences, take more for granted under greater resistance, than any group or body including the U. S. Army.

They introduce more new goods, dispose of more old goods, load more freight cars, unload more ships, build more factories, start more new business, and write more debits and credits in our ledgers than all other people in America.

Yes, brother, you said it. With all their faults, they keep the wheels of commerce turning and the currents of human emotions running. More cannot be said of any man.

Be careful whom you call salesman, lest you flatter him.

Learning Much About War In South Viet Nam

By CONRAD FINK

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —American officers here to advise the South Vietnamese how to win a war often find themselves learning more than they teach.

The individual Vietnamese soldier often shows signs of being a better jungle fighter than his American advisers.

Some government units move into the jungle and stay there, fighting with typical guerrilla tricks and, therefore, killing more guerrillas.

There is reason to believe that even with their ranger and special forces training, American advisers still cannot move into the jungle for long periods and use it to their advantage. There still is a tendency to fight from the roads and rivers as the French did before losing the Indochina war.

Americans used to three meals a day carry large quantities of food into the jungle and can drink only specially treated water. Vietnamese troops carry a little rice and drink out of the nearest rice paddy.

Some American advisers who try to live like the Vietnamese troops find they can last just three or four days before a return to civilization is necessary.

Lessons are being learned also about American weapons.

The 105mm and 155mm howitzers American forces used by the hundreds in the Korean War and World War II are of limited use here due to lack of roads.

Tactical air support is used extensively but it often is difficult to ascertain whether the people killed by napalm or fragmentation bombs were indeed guerrillas or merely farmers.

One of the biggest shocks to Americans here is the failure of the M113 armored personnel carrier to quickly give government troops the upper hand. The amphibious M113s on two occasions failed to navigate rivers.

But the Vietnamese find the Armalite's muzzle velocity, extremely rapid rate of fire and light weight a distinct advantage.

Some of the Vietnamese company commanders who were fighting guerrillas when their advisers were still in high school are being sent to the American counterinsurgency training camp on Okinawa for 12 weeks of learning how to fight guerrillas.

The big fear among the advisers is that the Vietnamese officers will be too shy to teach the teachers on Okinawa.

DSA Is Nearing Full Operation

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new $3-billion Defense Supply Agency —DSA—is now nearing full operation.

That may turn out to be the best news taxpayers have had in years.

This unsung, almost ignored agency is now eight months old and has 16,500 employes. Ultimately, it will have 23,900.

Its job is to supply the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines with the items they use in common and to do it efficiently and effectively.

In the process, it is expected to lop $2 billion annually from the current procurement costs of the services—$2 billion that critics of the military say has been spent through sheer managerial inefficiency and service parochialism.

It already has reduced the jumbled inventory it took over from the services by $229 million.

Taxpayers have been complaining about the ineptness of military procurement clear back to the days of George Washington. Nobody has the foggiest notion of how many long-forgotten studies have been made on ways and means to improve military supply services.

ANOTHER STUDY

Last year Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara ordered another study. The final report, never published, apparently outrated his sense of tidiness for on Aug. 31 he announced the Defense Supply Agency would come into being Oct. 1.

For all practical purposes, the defense secretary abolished the quartermaster corps operations of the armed services and transferred the whole kit and kaboodle to DSA.

In so doing, McNamara not only brought a high degree of centralization to the chaotic procurement field, but by establishing the agency outside any military service and directly under his office, he nailed down civilian control of a vital section of military spending, though his first choice for chief was a military man.

To head this new empire McNamara yanked Lt. Gen. Andrew T. McNamara, 57, an affable fisherman and terrible golfer (100 plus), back from Korea where he was serving as quartermaster general to the 8th Army. The two McNamaras are unrelated.

Gen. McNamara, a man with a distinguished combat record in World War II, a native of East Providence, R.I., had been in Korea only three months and was just settling down to life among the rice paddies with his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Tripp, when the summons came.

The general and his wife, Margaret, otherwise known as "Pidge," and Mrs. Tripp set up housekeeping in a two-bedroom apartment in Arlington, Va.

Since he reported for duty, Gen. McNamara has worked a 14 hour day—from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., often six days a week. His already gray hair is getting whiter.

The DSA now has charge of procuring food, clothing, medical supplies, petroleum products, construction materials, industrial, electronic and automotive supplies for all the services.

Further, it is charged with providing transportation for all supplies from where they happen to be, to where the services need them. In addition, DSA is now charged with handling the sales of all goods declared surplus.

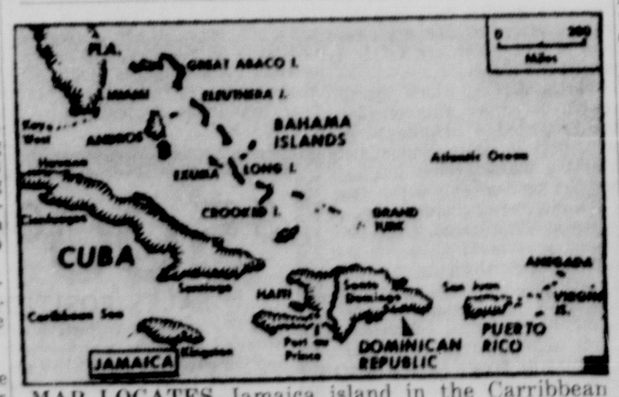

To supply the services Gen. McNamara has a revolving stock fund of $3 billion a year. He plans to sell about $3 billion worth of goods to the services and buy a like amount from producers.

In essence, DSA operates a wholesale warehouse system which delivers to the service-operated retail outlets. The serviceman is the consumer.

Just by coming into being, the DSA effected an automatic saving of $27 million. The services had it estimated it would cost $204 million a year to operate the administrative end of the quarter master business. DSA figures to do the same job for $177 million.

In the past military supply operations were a sort of never-never land where efforts could be duplicated and activities overlapped.

In this happy, bureaucratic heaven, the Army could insist on shiny brass belt buckles and the Marine Corps could demand black. The Army, Navy and Marines could buy different shades of khaki shirts, none of which was the same weight. Belt loops on trousers could vary in width and the Marines could have a longer necktie than the Army. The Air Force could have a shirt ¼th of an inch higher at the collar than anybody else.

IN SASKATCHEWAN

Medicare Plan Is In Trouble

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Saskatchewan Province derives its names from the Indian word Kisiskatchewan — Swift Flowing River.

And some commentary holds that the crisis over the provincial compulsory medical care program is basically a case of trying to make the river flow too copiously in the greening fields of social welfare. Perhaps too much, too soon.

Even with the prairie province's long background of Socialist experimenting, one commentator says, the government's medical care program is a pretty big dose for one gulp. It was pushed through a special session of the legislature last fall and became effective July 1 despite powerful opposition from the medical profession.

Almost everybody, including Socialist Premier Woodrow Lloyd, expected the doctors' opposition. They are generally conservative, many of them came here from England to get away from that country's socialized medicine, and their average earnings are $15,000 a year.

Few, however, anticipated the nonsupport of the public for the medical plan. In the first days of the doctor's walkout not a picket has been reported at any hospital or any doctor's office. Public criticism of the doctors was absent.

The government's position has not been strengthened by the public attitude. In fact, opposition political parties sense a blunder on the part of the ruling Cooperative Commonwealth Federation and are trying to cash in by backing the clamor against the program.

This may turn out to be wishful thinking on their part, but it would be ironical if Canada's only Socialist government should be unseated for putting through a program the CCF has advocated since it was founded in 1932.

The CCF was born during the "dirty '30s" after Saskatchewan was left desolate by drought, dust storms, crop failures, depression.

It finally won the provincial election in 1944 and took over the government under the leadership of the colorful T. C. (Tommy) Douglas.

Saskatchewan became known as the Cooperative Province because of the rapid spread of the cooperative movement in farming, marketing, credit and even such projects as oil refining.

It also blazed new trails in health and social welfare programs. In 1947, the province adopted a government hospitalization program under which 97 per cent of the population received prepaid hospital care. It was the first such program in Canada.

But things are changing. The small farmer is being replaced by the bigger land owner. The urban population is growing in relation to the rural. Industrialization is increasing. Saskatchewan no longer has a single CCF representative in the national Parliament.

In last month's national election, even the veteran Tommy Douglas was badly beaten in a Regina district where he campaigned mainly on the medical program.

It is still too early to tell what will be the final outcome in the battle. Government leaders say they are confident the doctors cannot hold out indefinitely. But the doctors show no signs of cracking and some are leaving for jobs elsewhere.

New Author Writes 2nd Top Novel

THE GOLDEN RENDEZVOUS. By Alistair MacLean. Doubleday. $3.95.

It's only in the latter part of these pages that you get the suspense of waiting for an armed nuclear device to go off. Before that, there is merely a series of murders, stealthy detective work, gun fights and sabotage. All told with finesse.

The action takes place on the S. S. Campari, a vessel in the West Indian service which carries a snob class of passengers in a very plush atmosphere.

First the ship is delayed by a search for a scientist who has disappeared, along with the working model of a small, tactical nuclear weapon. you don't hear of him again until the last few chapters, when the device is armed.

Most of the time the hero and narrator — First Officer John Carter — is helping his captain try to solve the mystery of three murders that take the lives of crew members. It wouldn't be giving the plot away to say that the trouble starts when certain cargoes and passengers come aboard at a port ruled by a dictator.

In the midst of all this bravery, cunning and sea lore there also is a ramance with a multimillionaire's daughter. The author makes the violent adventures seem plausible and lightens his narrative with the dry humor of his hero.

And MacLean, who was the author of "The Guns of Navarone," has turned out a first-rate thriller. It isn't supposed to be literature, but it certainly is entertaining.

Many Borrowing Library Books

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

During the month of June the people of Ouachita Parish borrowed a total of 57,991 books from the Ouachita Parish Public Library System. This is the largest monthly circulation in the history of the Library and exceeds the figure for last June by 6,211 books. These books were borrowed from five different libaries of the Parish System as follows: From the Main Library — 25,560, from the West Monroe Library— 8,612, from the Anna Meyer Branch — 7,290 and from the Carver Branch — 1,195. These figures are eloquent testimony of the fact that the people of Ouachita Parish are using and enjoying their library. Also in the month of June 762 people, who had not used the library before, registered as borrowers. The total number of registrants on July 1 was 37,684.

BUSY MONTH

June was also a busy month in the cataloging department. 1,141 new books were added to the collection during the month. 502 were adult books and 639 were juvenile books. The total book collection is now 75,636 books, which is 26,000 short of the National Standard of one book per person in the population. The collection is growing rapidly and we hope to reach our goal by the end of 1965.

"Portrait in Brownstone" is the title of the new novel by Louis Auchinloss. It deals with the large and well-to-do Denison family who lived in New York around the turn of the century. It is a story of many ramifications and will appeal to all who love a good family story. Readers of western stories will welcome a new one by Leonard Foreman called "Spanish Grant."

A beautiful novel with a biblical setting is "Letter to Philemon" written by Winthrop Neilson. It is a short little book and will appeal to many readers. "Pigeon Feathers" is the title of the new book by John Updike. It is a modern story and will find a ready audience. A book for which we have had numerous requests and which we are happy to have now for our readers is "Angelique and the King" by Sergeanne Golon. A new mystery story is

Non-fiction books offer a variety of material and should interest many readers. "The Strategy of Investment" by Richard N. Stillman contains sound advice for the investor. "The Nature of Communism" is a very discerning book written by Robert V. Daniels. It contains much valuable information and is one that should fill a definite place. In the merchandising field there is a new book, "Marketing for Profit" by Douglas P. Gould.

Readers interested in architecture should see a new series called "Great Ages of World Architecture," published by the Braziller press. The library has just added three new titles in this series. They are: "Gothic Architecture" by Robert Branner, "Baroque and Rococo Architecture" by Henry A. Millon and "Modern Architecture" by Vincent Joseph Scully. A most useful book is called "Children's Theatre and Creative Dramatics." The authors are G .B. Siks and H. B. Dunnington and it was recently published by the University of Washington.

If you want a humorous book, be sure to get "Anybody Who Owns His Own Home Deserves It" by Alan King. It is extremely funny. The boundaries of the ancient world are constantly being pushed back by new discoveries in the world of archeology. The newest book on this subject is "The Ancient Kingdoms of the Nile" by Walter A. Fairservis. It is a book which the serious reader will enjoy.

An addition to the literature of World War II is "through the Valley of the Kwai" by Ernest Gordon. The setting is Burma and Siam and much of the action takes place in a Japanese Prison camp. It is not a pleasant book, but certainly gives a vivid picture of the way the war was. A perfectly beautiful book was recently received at the Library as a gift of the Lago Oil Co of Aruba. It is a history of the island of Aruba written by Johan de Hartog and is called "Aruba; Past and Present." Another book which sheds new light on the story of the American Revolution has been written by Donald Barr Chidsey. It is called "Victory at Yorktown" and deals with details of the final surrender of the British forces.

Several new additions to the reference collection are worthy of note. "Statistics Sources" by Paul Wasserman is a book which tells where one should look for statistics on a particular subject. "Clarke Country, Alabama and its surroundings from 1540 to 1877" by the Rev. T. H. Ball should be of interest to those whose ancestors came from that state. "Wiliford and Allied Families" by William B. Williford contains much valuable genealogical information.

The Salesman

It has been said that salesmen are a big problem to their bosses, their customers and their wives, to conservative credit managers, to hotels, and sometimes to each other.

They make more noise and mistakes, create more cheer, correct more errors, adjust more differences, spread more gossip, explain more discrepancies, hear more grievances, pacify more belligerents, and waste more time under high pressure without losing their temper, than any class we know, including ministers.

They live in hotels, cabs and tents, on trains, buses and park benches, eat all kinds of food, drink all kinds of liquids, good and bad, sleep before, during and after business with no more schedule than the weather bureau, and little, if any, effect on the public health.

And yet salesmen are a power in society and in the public economy. In many ways they are undoubtedly a tribute unto themselves; they draw and spend more money with less effort and with less return than any other group in business. They come at the most inopportune time, under the slightest pretext, stay longer under more opposition, ask more personal questions, make more comment, put up with more inconveniences, take more for granted under greater resistance, than any group or body including the U. S. Army.

They introduce more new goods, dispose of more old goods, load more freight cars, unload more ships, build more factories, start more new business, and write more debits and credits in our ledgers than all other people in America.

Yes, brother, you said it. With all their faults, they keep the wheels of commerce turning and the currents of human emotions running. More cannot be said of any man.

Be careful whom you call salesman, lest you flatter him.

Clamor About Immediate Tax Cut Question Grows Louder

Two New Oil Field Finds Are Assured

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two new oil field discoveries are assured in Wilkinson and Adams counties.

Serio-Punches Oil Co. has shut in its Wilkinson wildcat, the Rosenblatt No. 1, in sec. 47-2n-4w, to erect storage tanks. The well tested at 240 barrels of oil daily from 8,385-87 feet.

Flowing pressure was 660 pounds for the well, located one mile north of Fort Adams.

In Adams County, J. C. Trahan is testing his wildcat, the Winston No. 1, sec. 46-8n-2w, located 1½ miles west of the Pine Ridge field. It is reported to have tested at 94 barrels of oil daily from 5,772-73 feet. Gravity was reported at 40 degrees.

Lyle Cashon Co. has set production casing and is preparing to test its potential new Franklin County discover, the Temple No. 1, sec. 2-6n-4e, with operators evaluating the commercial worth of a lower Tuscaloosa sand. The well went to 11,010 feet with sidewall cores indicating possible production in a zone at 10,522-34 feet.

Production tests are continuing at another possible new field, in Wayne County. Chismor Co. has set production casing and is testing its wildcat, the Wausaw No. 1, sec. 28-8n-9w, four miles northwest of the Thompson's Creek field. The well went to 12,521 feet, with 5½ inch casing set to 12,300 feet. The operators released no information on the test. Reports indicate the well may have commercial production in three zones.

In Franklin County, Dorris Ballew Inc. and L. D. Elam were below 10,600 feet in their wildcat, the Jones No. 1, sec. 31-7n-4e, with the venture to go to 11,000 feet. It is located four miles northwest of the Lyle Cashon Co. Franklin County wildcat now under test.

Dave Gammill is drilling below 10,600 feet in his closely watched Pike County wildcat, the Hampton No. 1, sec. 34-2n-7e, located four miles southwest of Magnolia. It is near an abandoned well which tested some oil from the lower Tuscaloosa before being abandoned as commercial.

Field drilling during the past week saw two new oilers and one gas well completed.

At Pool Creek in Jones County, Briggs and Hayes completed their Blue No. 1, sec. 22-9n-10w, from 11,250-11,256 feet. It flowed 282 barrels daily with a second sand closed in waiting state approval for a dual completion.

In the Deerfield Field of Adams County, Robert F. Roberts completed his USA No. 4, sec. 30-5n-1w, pumping 138 barrels daily from 6,668-69 feet.

Grain Futures Show Moderate Trade Changes

CHICAGO (AP)—Influences in the grain futures market were scarce and minor last week and prices showed only moderate net changes on the Board of Trade.

The feed grains, pinned between closely placed accumulations of resting orders, shifted only minor fractions but speculators were a little bolder in their convictions elsewhere. Wheat moved up more than two cents at the extreme, rye retreated more than two cents and soybeans ended in a broadly mixed range.

A good deal of interest was centered on the expected volume of hedge selling in wheat, which had not materialized at week's end and which may have encouraged a tendency toward establishing long positions.

The virtual absence of hedging was related, brokers said, to reports that a huge volume of the new crop was going quickly into the government's price support loan program. The reason, they said, undoubtedly was the new sedimentation scale of rating the grain for its baking quality. Advices said much of the crop on that scale had qualified for loans as much as 12 cents a bushel above the old level.

Old crop soybean deliveries held steady to firm most days, largely because of a belief that supplies in commercial positions will tighten somewhat in the final weeks of the crop year. Soybean meal was firm throughout the week, but soybean oil ran into season low levels on every trading day.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1¾-2⅜ cents a bushel higher, July $2.12¾-13; corn ⅛ higher to ⅜ lower, July $1.11⅞-12; oats ¼ lower to ½ higher, July 67½ cents; rye 1½ - 2¾ lower, July $1.28⅞-¾; soybeans 1⅜ higher to 1½ lower, July $2.50¼-⅜.

29 New District Locations Staked

Two wells were completed last week in the Monroe Oil and Gas District and three re-completed, behind a solid front of 29 new locations staked throughout eight of the 14 parishes making up the area.

Reports yesterday through the office of District Manager Duncan S. Cook showed the completions in Catahoula and Tensas Parishes, the Tew Lake and Buckhorn Fields respectively. Ouachita Parish, while not registering a completion, accounted for six of the spate of 29 new locations racked up over the week.

Most of the fresh site work, however, came in Tensas Parish, again in the Buckhorn Field, from which six applications to drill were filed for wells of the Monsanto Chemical Company - Fisher Lumber Company. A pair of wildcats also were staked in the parish. Trailing Tensas in new activity was Concordia Parish with seven sites, six of them wildcats, while Union Parish had three, Rapides Parish, two, and Catahoula Richland and Winn Parishes, one each.

Re-completions were in Concordia and LaSalle Parishes. The Lake St. John Field in section 13-9-10E of Concordia Parish held the California Company's Louisiana State 47-D No. 3, recompleted at 4648 feet, while in LaSalle Parish, the Olla Field, section 25 10-2E, was H. L. Hunt's Urania No. 1, and the Sandy Bayou Field, section 15-3E, Hunt Oil Company's Louisiana Delta H No. 154. The former was recompleted at 2400 feet, the latter at 4910 feet.

In wells actively drilling or testing in the area, LaSalle Parish was high with seven, two each in the Tullos-Urania and Little Creek Fields, a wildcat and one each in the West Searcy and Trout Creek Fields. Five were in Tensas Parish, all in the Buckhorn Field, and Grant and Catahoula Parishes had one each.

Three wells in Ouachita Parish, two in the Chemere Field, the third in the Monroe Field, all drilling, rounded out a total of 18 active rigs for the week.

Cook's records showed 10 wells plugged and abandoned over the period and the total on inactive sites rose to 104, moderately higher than a week ago. Locations numbered 82, of which 36 were drilling.

Taken from district reports, the week's summary on completions, new locations and active rigs looked like this:

Kennedy Says Cut Being Considered

• By JACK LEFLER
A Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Clamor over the question of an immediate income tax cut to aid business grew louder during the week.

President Kennedy told his news conference that his administration is seriously considering requests by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO for a reduction now.

But for the time being Kennedy stood pat on his previously announced intention of asking Congress to reduce taxes, effective next January.

He said he was watching the economic indicators and that if they seem to reflect the need for a quicker cut he will recommend it.

Three governors -- Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Republican, Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio and Edmund G. Brown of California, Democrats—joined in the plea for lower taxes.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., reiterated his demand for early action on taxes.

The proposals ran into opposition from Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman, and Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., senior Republican member, of the Senate Finance Committee.

"While it may be politically popular at this time, the long-range inflationary results for Americas would be disastrous," said Williams.

Byrd, estimating the proposal would reduce tax revenues by $9.5 billion a year, said it would lead to a deficit of more than $15 billion in the current fiscal year.

The stock market continued its recovery and some Wall Street experts saw a good chance of a sustained rally during the summer. Others, however, maintained a cautious attitude because of uncertainty of the business outlook.

The First National Bank of Chicago, in its semiannual poll of Midwest leaders of commerce and industry, found expectations of improved business during the second half of this year in the rubber and automotive products, merchandising, food, farm equipment, oil and appliance industries.

The steel industry is expected to remain at its slow pace. Representatives of the construction, rail and paper industries were pessimistic.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that consumers increased installment credit debt by $413 million in May, about $100 million less than in April. A moderate decline in the signing of new installment contracts for consumer goods was noted.

Total inventories of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May showed the smallest increase in nine months, the Commerce Department announced. Inventories were estimated at $97.4 billion, up $170 million from April.

The department said total sales of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May were estimated at $66.4 billion, a gain of less than one per cent from April.

It was announced in Tokyo that the Kennedy administration has invited Japan to invest in building factories in the United States. It would be a means of helping correct a U.S. adverse balance of payments situation.

Mentioned as regions where industrialization might be expanded with Japanese funds were Wichita, Kan., Wilmington, N.C., Maine, New Jersey and areas on the West Coast.

Fourth of July shutdowns cut into automobile and steel production.

Output of passenger cars dropped to an estimated 112,000 during the week from 126,521 the previous week but was far ahead of the 85,962 built in the July 4 week last year.

The auto industry reported it turned out 3,620,996 passenger cars in the first six months of this year, a gain of 32.3 per cent over the 2,736,804 built in the 1961 first half.

Steel production was expected to fall to another 17-month low during the week. The previous week the mills poured 1,501,000 tons of steel, down four per cent from the week before.

Employment rose by 1,336,000 in June to a record 69,539,000. But with the addition of two million teen-agers to the labor force, unemployment increased by 744,000 to 4,463,000, compared with 5,380,000 a year ago.

Briefly around the business scene: The Bell System added 731,000 telephones in the three months ended May 31. Sixty-two companies declared higher dividends in June, lowest for any month this year.

Sales Show Very Rich Get Poorer

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP) — Are we getting the first signs of a "rich man's recession?"

While one hesitates to be alarmist about consumer trends since the great stock market tumble, one cannot help being concerned by the fact that the sale of $250,000 yachts and the movement of fresh large grain Beluga caviar at $38 a pound has slowed down, leveled off, stiffened, tightened or topped out.

To put it in its proper perspective, there are reported tremors in the buying patterns of the very rich but not the very, very rich, of the new rich but not the old rich, of the capital gains rich but not the entrenched rich.

BAROMETER

The demand for Rolls-Royce cars make a good barometer of this specialized squall. While American sales generally have not yet been affected, says Richard Yorke, vice president in charge of sales in New York, the stock market plunge undoubtedly tilted "a few borderline cases."

By these, he means people who were considering buying their first Rolls, the $16,800 to $18,000 model, which the company calls its "stock car."

"This type of prospective buyer," says Yorke, with dignified compassion, "probably decided after the Wall Street drop to wait awhile."

While these fence-straddlers manfully try to get along somehow, the regular customers are holding steadfast, especially those who prefer the $30,000 Rolls, the air-conditioned, seven-passenger limousine with its hand carved, French-polished South African walnut and English leather.

YACHTS SALES

David Heilner of John D. Alden, Inc., a Boston firm of naval architects and brokers, reports a definite slump in the sale of big yachts. Particular sluggishness has been noted in the movement of the $250,000 jobs, which run about 70 feet and come complete with radar, hi-fi, color television, air conditioning and other essentials.

In the more pedestrian brackets, a greater spread has been noted between asking price and selling price. Until a few months ago, a boat seller asking $100,000 might have had to come down to $90,000. Now, he slides all the way down to $75,000.

While no one is panicking at Tiffany's, it was noted that the man who came in one day last year and bought $240,000 worth of jewelry for his wife—a pearl necklace and two diamond pins—did not repeat his performance this year. Nor did anyone else.

In some other luxury fields there is no sign of slack. Wholesale furriers report mink and sable are moving well. Art dealers say prices of fine art pieces may be going up; are definitely not going down.

Charles & Co., which specializes in corporate gifts of fancy food, reported a definite 10 per cent drop in sales immediately after the market crash but says they are now off only 5 per cent.

The decline includes sales of caviar at $38 a pound, fresh pate de fois gras at $2 an ounce and fruit baskets which go for $150 if you insist on rounding out the fruit with nuts, candies, pates, caviar and brandied cherries.

The women's fashion industry is holding its breath since it won't know the worst until the fall. What of the woman who spends $3,000 for an evening dress and $750 for a suit? How will she react to an economic pinch?

Cotton Futures Volume Light, Prices Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices on the New York Cotton Exchange held within a narrow range in light trading this week with active futures off 25 cents to up $1.50.

The previous week the range was off $4.25 to up 5 cents.

Trading in the current July delivery reflected a tendency by traders to await announcement by the U.S. Department of Agriculture of the details of its cotton sales for export program of the coming season. This report is expected at mid month.

Trading was also influenced by generally favorable word on weather, reports describing the current crop as coming along good to excellently in the far west and generally good elsewhere. Rain in the Carolinas was the chief exception.

There was also speculation over the first official report on 1962 planting, due Monday.

Exports are continuing at a good pace for so late in the season, although year-long totals lag behind last year. The New York Cotton Exchange Bureau estimated exports in the week ended last Tuesday at about 100,000 bales compared with 115,000 the week previous and 19,000 the same week a year ago.

TWO-WEEK ADVANCE

Wall Street Feels Market Improving

NEW YORK (AP)—A two-week stock market advance, including a rebound above a previous recovery peak, was interpreted last week as a sign of convalescence in Wall Street.

Not since the market began to skid sharply in April has an advance been able to top a prior rise. The previous pattern was a steeply lower zig-zag with the few rebounds always lower than the ones that preceded.

In what was regarded as a significant step, the Dow Jones industrial average on Thursday advanced to 583.87, putting it above the June 15 rally top of 478.18.

With that rise, the Dow industrials had a string of six straight daily advances, although the first of these was accomplished despite the fact that more stocks declined than rose in the over-all list.

To the surprise of no one, profit-taking took over on Friday and the market declined, but not enough to spoil a substantial gain for the week.

For the week, the Dow industrials closed with a net gain of 14.89 at 576.17.

At its Thursday top, the indicator had recovered roughly one quarter of the 109.74 points it lost since the historic high of 734.91 reached last Dec. 13.

Market theorists now look for a "test" of the June 26 closing low of 535.76 in the Dow, to see if stocks can hold above it. If the test is successful, they expect another recovery drive, this time to see if the Dow can surpass the level of 600-610.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week rose 5.40 to 214.90.

Volume for the four-day trading week, shortened by Independence Day, was 13,820,190 shares compared with 25,774,760 shares in the full five-day week preceding.

Both government and corporate bond prices slipped last week, but governments took the worst glide.

Youths Carve Swastika Marks On Girl's Legs

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) —Police said a 16-year-old Paraguayan girl was attacked Friday night by suspected Fascist youths who carved swastika crosses on her legs.

Police said Soledad Barret reported she was attacked as she left work, being forced into a waiting car by her captors. Then, according to the police, she said her attackers carved the swastikas on her legs when she refused to shout, "Down with Fidel Castro" and vivas for Hitler and the OAS, the French secret army in Algeria.

Soledad Barret is the daughter of Rafael Barret, strong opponent of Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner, who arrived a year ago in Montevideo as an exile.

Plan On Gold Is Advanced By Economist

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Amid all the words over the loss of gold by the United States and other prolems with the dollar, a New York writer and economist has advanced a proposal which he says would cure many economic ills.

He proposes that the U.S. Treasury reduce gradually, by two per cent a year, its purchase price of gold.

The author of the plan, Arthur O. Dahlberg, is president of the U.S. Economics Corporation, a business consulting firm, and director of the visual economics laboratory at Columbia University. He outlined the plan in a booklet, "Reduce the Price of Gold and Make Money Move."

Dahlberg argues that "hoardable money" rules the world.

In essence, he sets forth that money sitting still is of little help in keeping employment high, in bringing about an active exchange of goods and services; that whereas devices are used to lure it from hiding and into the active market, what is needed is a device to drive it out.

Reducing the price of gold at a fixed percentage rate would do this, he says.

"The U.S. monetary system," Dahlberg wrote, "is fortunately so designed that if we were merely to lower regularly the U.S. Treasury's purchase price for gold — and thereby up-value rather than devalue the dollar in terms of gold—the action would automatically operate to impose an ownership charge on all of our forms of money and to impel them all to move more promptly into the market in search of goods."

Economists, he wrote, agree that whenever people try to run from money into goods—buying cars, appliances, extra homes—booms occur. Whenever they go the other way, stop buying and hoard their money, recessions occur.

"The evil of hoarding is not that owners keep their money in the ground rather than in their pockets," Dahlberg wrote. "It lies in the fact that they keep their claims to goods out of the markets for an excessive length of time." He explained that by "hoarding" he meant the "decreased use of the money under one's control."

In proposing the Treasury lower its purchase price of gold by two per cent a year, Dahlberg said that he would regard it as only an interim arrangement for a few years while the basic idea of decreasing "money's excessive store of value demonstrates its merits." It would mean that the Treasury's offering price for gold would go from its $35 an ounce now, to $34.30 after one year, and to $33.63 after to years, but would stay for a long time above what he calls the use-value price of gold.

Clamor About Immediate Tax Cut Question Grows Louder

Two New Oil Field Finds Are Assured

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two new oil field discoveries are assured in Wilkinson and Adams counties.

Serio-Punches Oil Co. has shut in its Wilkinson wildcat, the Rosenblatt No. 1, in sec. 47-2n-4w, to erect storage tanks. The well tested at 240 barrels of oil daily from 8,385-87 feet.

Flowing pressure was 660 pounds for the well, located one mile north of Fort Adams.

In Adams County, J. C. Trahan is testing his wildcat, the Winston No. 1, sec. 46-8n-2w, located 1½ miles west of the Pine Ridge field. It is reported to have tested at 94 barrels of oil daily from 5,772-73 feet. Gravity was reported at 40 degrees.

Lyle Cashion Co. has set production casing and is preparing to test its potential new Franklin County discover, the Temple No. 1, sec. 2-6n-4e, with operators evaluating the commercial worth of a lower Tuscaloosa sand. The well went to 11,010 feet with sidewall cores indicating possible production in a zone at 10,522-34 feet.

Production tests are continuing at another possible new field, in Wayne County. Chismor Co. has set production casing and is testing its wildcat, the Wausaw No. 1, sec. 28-8n-9w, four miles northwest of the Thompson's Creek field. The well went to 12,521 feet, with 5½ inch casing set to 12,300 feet. The operators released no information on the test. Reports indicate the well may have commercial production in three zones.

In Franklin County, Dorris Ballew Inc. and L. D. Elam were below 10,600 feet in their wildcat, the Jones No. 1, sec. 31-7n-4e, with the venture to go to 11,000 feet. It is located four miles northwest of the Lyle Cashion Co. Franklin County wildcat now under test.

Dave Gammill is drilling below 10,600 feet in his closely watched Pike County wildcat, the Hampton No. 1, sec. 34-2n-7e, located four miles southwest of Magnolia. It is near an abandoned well which tested some oil from the lower Tuscaloosa before being abandoned as commercial.

Field drilling during the past week saw two new oilers and one gas well completed.

At Pool Creek in Jones County, Briggs and Hayes completed their Blue No. 1, sec. 22-9n-10w, from 11,250-11,256 feet. It flowed 282 barrels daily with a second sand closed in waiting state approval for a dual completion.

In the Deerfield Field of Adams County, Robert F. Roberts completed his USA No. 4, sec. 30-5n-1w, pumping 138 barrels daily from 6,668-69 feet.

Grain Futures Show Moderate Trade Changes

CHICAGO (AP)—Influences in the grain futures market were scarce and minor last week and prices showed only moderate net changes on the Board of Trade.

The feed grains, pinned between closely placed accumulations of resting orders, shifted only minor fractions but speculators were a little bolder in their convictions elsewhere. Wheat moved up more than two cents at the extreme, rye retreated more than two cents and soybeans ended in a broadly mixed range.

A good deal of interest was centered on the expected volume of hedge selling in wheat, which had not materialized at week's end and which may have encouraged a tendency toward establishing long positions.

The virtual absence of hedging was related, brokers said, to reports that a huge volume of the new crop was going quickly into the government's price support loan program. The reason, they said, undoubtedly was the new sedimentation scale of rating the grain for its baking quality. Advices said much of the crop on that scale had qualified for loans as much as 12 cents a bushel above the old level.

Old crop soybean deliveries held steady to firm most days, largely because of a belief that supplies in commercial positions will tighten somewhat in the final weeks of the crop year. Soybean meal was firm throughout the week, but soybean oil ran into season low levels on every trading day.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1¾-2⅞ cents a bushel higher, July $2.12¾-13; corn ⅛ higher to ⅜ lower, July $1.11⅞-12; oats ¼ lower to ½ higher, July 67½ cents; rye 1½ - 2¾ lower, July $1.28⅞-¾; soybeans 1⅝ higher to 1½ lower, July $2.50¼-⅝.

29 New District Locations Staked

Two wells were completed last week in the Monroe Oil and Gas District and three re-completed, behind a solid front of 29 new locations staked throughout eight of the 14 parishes making up the area.

Reports yesterday through the office of District Manager Duncan S. Cook showed the completions in Catahoula and Tensas Parishes, the Tew Lake and Buckhorn Fields respectively. Ouachita Parish, while not registering a completion, accounted for six of the spate of 29 new locations racked up over the week.

Most of the fresh site work, however, came in Tensas Parish, again in the Buckhorn Field, from which six applications to drill were filed for wells of the Monsanto Chemical Company - Fisher Lumber Company. A pair of wildcats also were staked in the parish. Trailing Tensas in new activity was Concordia Parish with seven sites, six of them wildcats, while Union Parish had three, Rapides Parish, two, and Catahoula Richland and Winn Parishes, one each.

Re-completions were in Concordia and LaSalle Parishes. The Lake St. John Field in section 13-9-10E of Concordia Parish held the California Company's Louisiana State (473) No. 3, recompleted at 4648 feet, while in LaSalle Parish, the Olla Field, section 25-10-2E, was H. L. Hunt's Urania No. 1, and the Sandy Bayou Field, section 1-5-3E, Hunt Oil Company's Louisiana Delta "H" No. 154. The former was recompleted at 2400 feet, the latter at 4910 feet.

In wells activively drilling or testing in the area, LaSalle Parish was high with seven, two each in the Tullos-Urania and Little Creek Fields, a wildcat and one each in the West Searcy and Trout Creek Fields. Five were in Tensas Parish, all in the Buckhorn Field, and Grant and Catahoula Parishes had one each.

Three wells in Ouachita Parish, two in the Cheniere Field, the third in the Monroe Field, all drilling, rounded out a total of 18 active rigs for the week.

Cook's records showed 10 wells plugged and abandoned over the period and the total on inactive sites rose to 104, moderately higher than a week ago. Locations numbered 82, of which 36 were drilling.

Cotton Futures Volume Light, Prices Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices on the New York Cotton Exchange held within a narrow range in light trading this week with active futures off 25 cents to up $1.50.

The previous week the range was off $4.25 to up 5 cents.

Trading in the current July delivery reflected a tendency by traders to await announcement by the U.S. Department of Agriculture of the details of its cotton sales for export program of the coming season. This report is expected at mid-month.

Trading was also influenced by generally favorable word on weather, reports describing the current crop as coming along good to excellently in the far west and generally good elsewhere. Rain in the Carolinas was the chief exception.

There was also speculation over the first official report on 1962 planting, due Monday.

Exports are continuing at a good pace for so late in the season, although year-long totals lag behind last year. The New York Cotton Exchange Bureau estimated exports in the week ended last Tuesday at about 100,000 bales compared with 115,000 the week previous and 19,000 the same week a year ago.

Power Company Presents West Monroe Awards

Employees of Louisiana Power and Light Company in the West Monroe District were honored recently at a "Safety Supper," recognizing their completion of another six months of operation without a lost - time injury.

F. C. McConnell, district manager for LP&L in West Monroe, said the local district of LP&L has worked nearly seven consecutive years without a lost-time injury. During this period, he said, district employees have worked more than 520,000 safe manhours.

J. W. Gaines, manager of LP&L's Northern Division, presented the West Monroe District with a superior safety award plaque, and also presented each employee with an individual award in recognition of his part in establishing the enviable safety record.

G. C. Rawls, president of LP&L, congratulated the group on its safety record, and also spoke briefly on other phases of company operation.

In addition to district employees, their wives and husbands, guests included: W. H. Senyard, vice president and director of personnel; C. A. Ponder, safety engineer for the company; C. E. Vaughan, Jr., assistant to the Northern Division manager; G. C. Rawls; and J. W. Gaines.

Kennedy Says Cut Being Considered

• By JACK LEFLER
A Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Clamor over the question of an immediate income tax cut to aid business grew louder during the week.

President Kennedy told his news conference that his administration is seriously considering requests by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO for a reduction now.

But for the time being Kennedy stood pat on his previously announced intention of asking Congress to reduce taxes, effective next January.

He said he was watching the economic indicators and that if they seem to reflect the need for a quicker cut he will recommend it.

Three governors — Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Republican, Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio and Edmund G. Brown of California, Democrats—joined in the plea for lower taxes.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., reiterated his demand for early action on taxes.

The proposals ran into opposition from Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman, and Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., senior Republican member, of the Senate Finance Committee.

"While it may be politically popular at this time, the long-range inflationary results for Americas would be disastrous," said Williams.

Byrd, estimating the proposal would reduce tax revenues by $9.5 billion a year, said it would lead to a deficit of more than $15 billion in the current fiscal year.

The stock market continued its recovery and some Wall Street experts saw a good chance of a sustained rally during the summer. Others, however, maintained a cautious attitude because of uncertainty of the business outlook.

The First National Bank of Chicago, in its semiannual poll of Midwest leaders of commerce and industry, found expectations of improved business during the second half of this year in the rubber and automotive products, merchandising, food, farm equipment, oil and appliance industries.

The steel industry is expected to remain at its slow pace. Representatives of the construction, rail and paper industries were pessimistic.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that consumers increased installment credit debt by $413 million in May, about $100 million less than in April. A moderate decline in the signing of new installment contracts for consumer goods was noted.

Total inventories of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May showed the smallest increase in nine months, the Commerce Department announced. Inventories were estimated at $97.4 billion, up $170 million from April.

The department said total sales of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May were estimated at $66.4 billion, a gain of less than one per cent from April.

It was announced in Tokyo that the Kennedy administration has invited Japan to invest in building factories in the United States. It would be a means of helping correct a U.S. adverse balance-of-payments situation.

Mentioned as regions where industrialization might be expanded with Japanese funds were Wichita, Kan., Wilmington, N.C., Maine, New Jersey and areas on the West Coast.

Fourth of July shutdowns cut into automobile and steel production.

Output of passenger cars dropped to an estimated 112,000 during the week from 126,521 the previous week but was far ahead of the 85,962 built in the July 4 week last year.

The auto industry reported it turned out 3,620,996 passenger cars in the first six months of this year, a gain of 32.3 per cent over the 2,736,804 built in the 1961 first half.

Steel production was expected to fall to another 17-month low during the week. The previous week the mills poured 1,501,000 tons of steel, down four per cent from the week before.

Employment rose by 1,336,000 in June to a record 69,539,000. But with the addition of two million teen-agers to the labor force, unemployment increased by 744,000 to 4,463,000, compared with 5,580,000 a year ago.

Briefly around the business scene: The Bell System added 731,000 telephones in the three months ended May 31 . . . Sixty-two companies declared higher dividends in June, lowest for any month this year.

Sales Show Very Rich Get Poorer

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Are we getting the first signs of a "rich man's recession?"

While one hesitates to be alarmist about consumer trends since the great stock market tumble, one cannot help being concerned by the fact that the sale of $250,000 yachts and the movement of fresh large grain Beluga caviar at $38 a pound has slowed down, leveled off, stiffened, tightened or topped out.

To put it in its proper perspective, there are reported tremors in the buying patterns of the very rich but not the very, very rich, of the new rich but not the old rich, of the capital gains rich but not the entrenched rich.

BAROMETER

The demand for Rolls-Royce cars make a good barometer of this specialized squall. While American sales generally have not yet been affected, says Richard Yorke, vice president in charge of sales in New York, the stock market plunge undoubtedly tilted "a few borderline cases."

By these, he means people who were considering buying their first Rolls, the $16,800 to $18,000 model, which the company calls its "stock car."

"This type of prospective buyer," says Yorke, with dignified compassion, "probably decided after the Wall Street drop to wait awhile."

While these fence-straddlers manfully try to get along somehow, the regular customers are holding steadfast, especially those who prefer the $30,000 Rolls, the air-conditioned, seven-passenger limousine with its hand-carved, French-polished South African walnut and English leather.

YACHTS SALES

David Heilner of John D. Alden, Inc., a Boston firm of naval architects and brokers, reports a definite slump in the sale of big yachts. Particular sluggishness has been noted in the movement of the $250,000 jobs, which run about 70 feet and come complete with radar, hi-fi, color television, air conditioning and other essentials.

In the more pedestrian brackets, a greater spread has been noted between asking price and selling price. Until a few months ago, a boat seller asking $100,000 might have had to come down to $90,000. Now, he slides all the way down to $75,000.

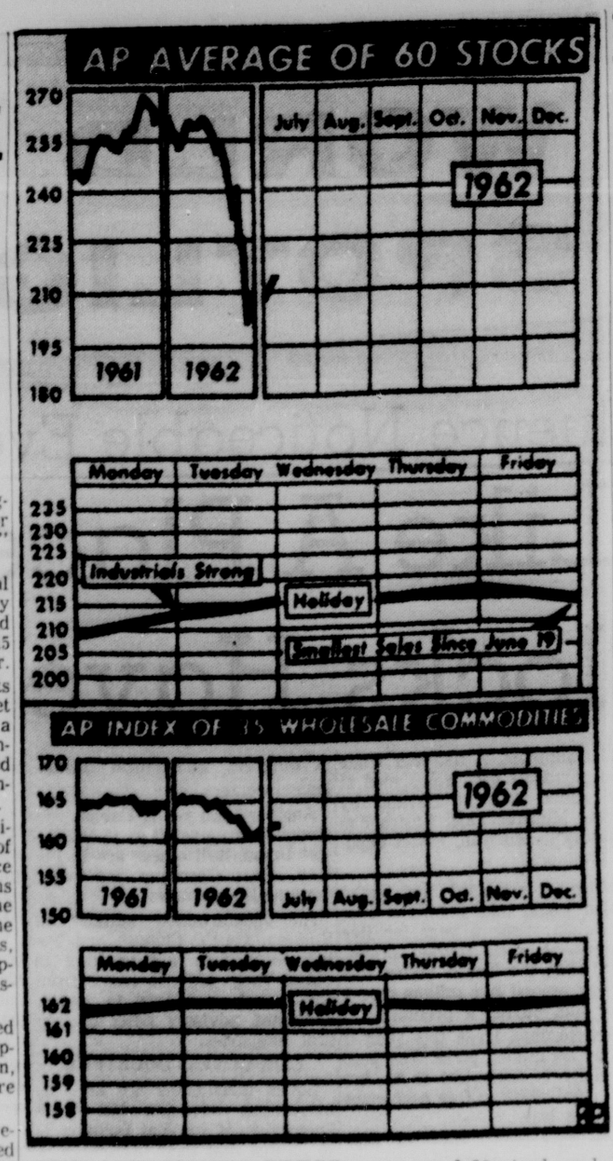

While no one is panicking at Tiffany's, it was noted that the man who came in one day last year and bought $240,000 worth of jewelry for his wife—a pearl necklace and two diamond pins—did not repeat his performance this year. Nor did anyone else.

In some other luxury fields there is no sign of slack. Wholesale furriers report mink and sable are moving well. Art dealers say prices of fine art pieces may be going up; are definitely not going down.

Charles & Co., which specializes in corporate gifts of fancy food, reported a definite 10 per cent drop in sales immediately after the market crash but says they are now off only 5 per cent.

The decline includes sales of caviar at $38 a pound, fresh pate de fois gras at $2 an ounce and fruit baskets which go for $150 if you insist on rounding out the fruit with nuts, candies, pates, caviar and brandied cherries.

The women's fashion industry is holding its breath since it won't know the worst until the fall. What of the woman who spends $3,000 for an evening dress and $750 for a suit? How will she react to an economic pinch?

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks advanced sharply for the second straight week, closing Friday at 214.9 from 209.5 a week ago. Led by food, the comodity index moved higher this week to 162.0 from 161.9 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

TWO-WEEK ADVANCE

Wall Street Feels Market Improving

NEW YORK (AP)—A two-week stock market advance, including a rebound above a previous recovery peak, was interpreted last week as a sign of convalescence in Wall Street.

Not since the market began to skid sharply in April has an advance been able to top a prior rise. The previous pattern was a steeply lower zig-zag with the few rebounds always lower than the ones that preceded.

In what was regarded as a significant step, the Dow Jones industrial average on Thursday advanced to 583.87, putting it above the June 15 rally top of 478.18.

With that rise, the Dow industrials had a string of six straight daily advances, although the first of these was accomplished despite the fact that more stocks declined than rose in the over-all list.

To the surprise of no one, profit-taking took over on Friday and the market declined, but not enough to spoil a substantial gain for the week.

For the week, the Dow industrials closed with a net gain of 14.89 at 576.17.

At its Thursday top, the indicator had recovered roughly one quarter of the 199.15 points it lost since the historic high of 734.91 reached last Dec. 13.

Market theorists now look for a "test" of the June 26 closing low of 535.76 in the Dow, to see if stocks can hold above it. If the test is successful, they expect another recovery drive, this time to see if the Dow can surpass the level of 600-610.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week rose 5.40 to 214.90.

Volume for the four-day trading week, shortened by Independence Day, was 13,820,190 shares compared with 25,774,760 shares in the full five-day week preceding.

Both government and corporate bond prices slipped last week, but governments took the worst glide.

Youths Carve Swastika Marks On Girl's Legs

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) —Police said a 16-year-old Paraguayan girl was attacked Friday night by suspected Fascist youths who carved swastika crosses on her legs.

Police said Soledad Barret reported she was attacked as she left work, being forced into a waiting car by her captors. Then, according to the police, she said her attackers carved the swastikas on her legs when she refused to shout, "Down with Fidel Castro" and vivas for Hitler and the OAS, the French secret army in Algeria.

Soledad Barret is the daughter of Rafael Barret, strong opponent of Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner, who arrived a year ago in Montevideo as an exile.

Plan On Gold Is Advanced By Economist

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Amid all the words over the loss of gold by the United States and other problems with the dollar, a New York writer and economist has advanced a proposal which he says would cure many economic ills.

He proposes that the U.S. Treasury reduce gradually, by two per cent a year, its purchase price of gold.

The author of the plan, Arthur O. Dahlberg, is president of the U.S. Economics Corporation, a business consulting firm, and director of the visual economics laboratory at Columbia University. He outlined the plan in a booklet, "Reduce the Price of Gold and Make Money Move."

Dahlberg argues that "hoardable money" rules the world.

In essence, he sets forth that money sitting still is of little help in keeping employment high, in bringing about an active exchange of goods and services; that whereas devices are used to lure it from hiding and into the active market, what is needed is a device to drive it out.

Reducing the price of gold at a fixed percentage rate would do this, he says.

"The U.S. monetary system," Dahlberg wrote, "is fortunately so designed that if we were merely to lower regularly the U.S. Treasury's purchase price for gold — and thereby up-value rather than devalue the dollar in terms of gold—the action would automatically operate to impose an ownership charge on all of our forms of money and to impel them all to move more promptly into the market in search of goods."

Economists, he wrote, agree that whenever people try to run from money into goods—buying cars, appliances, extra homes—booms occur. Whenever they go the other way, stop buying and hoard their money, recessions occur.

"The evil of hoarding is not that owners keep their money in the ground rather than in their pockets," Dahlberg wrote. "It lies in the fact that they keep their claims to goods out of the markets for an excessive length of time." He explained that by "hoarding" he meant the "decreased use of the money under one's control."

In proposing the Treasury lower its purchase price of gold by two per cent a year, Dahlberg said that he would regard it as only an interim arrangement for a few years while the basic idea of decreasing "money's excessive store of value demonstrates its merits." It woud mean that the Treasury's offering price for gold would go from its $35 an ounce now, to $34.30 after one year, and to $33.63 after to years, but would stay for a long time above what he calls the use-value price of gold.

Phillips Gets Indians Past Chicago, 5-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bubba Phillips smashed a two-run homer in the eighth inning Saturday to power the league - leading Cleveland Indians to their sixth straight triumph, a 5-3 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

The Indians and ace pitcher Dick Donovan had blown a 3-1 lead in the top of the eighth frame when a walk, Joe Cunningham's triple and a single by Floyd Robinson tied the score.

Donovan failed to win his 13th game when he was chased to the showers in the eighth inning.

Bill Dailey (2-0), who pitched the final 1 2-3 innings was the winner. Dom Zanni (5-4), who served up the homer to Phillips after Luis Aparicio opened the door with his second error, was the loser.

The White Sox scored in the third on a two-out double by Bob Sadowski and Cunningham's single.

Cleveland moved in front 2-1 in the fourth when a walk and three straight singles—by Woodie Held, Phillips and Jerry Kindall—produced two runs.

Don Dillard homered in the seventh for Cleveland, his third round-tripper in his last four games.

Donovan, who has lost only three decisions this season, was breezing along until the eighth. The All-Star hurler was aiming for his 10th complete game in 18 starts. He had permitted only five hits.

After retiring the first batter in the eighth, Donovan gave up his third walk, to Sadowski. Cunningham, who drove in two of Chicago's runs, then ripped his triple into right field. Manager Mel McGaha went out to talk to the veteran right-hander and permitted him to pitch to the dangerous Robinson, who lashed a single to left to deadlock the score.

Yanks Take 6-3 Victory Over Twins

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Reliever Marshall Bridges checked his own wildness in time to subdue an eighth inning Minnesota rally as the New York Yankees flexed their home run muscles for the second straight game to down the Twins 6-3 Saturday.

Yankee starter Bill Stafford was cruising along with a one-hitter and a 6-0 lead when the Twins finally broke his spell in the eighth.

Two singles and a walk loaded the bases before Bridges replaced Stafford. Bridges then walked in two runs and another scored on a force out before he struck out Bob Allison and Bernie Allen lined to Jack Reed who made a diving catch in right field.

The triumph enabled New York to stay a half game behind American League leading Cleveland.

Hector Lopez and Bill Skowron each swatted a two-run homer to provide the Yankee victory margin.

Giants Blast L.A., 10-3; Kuenn Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harvey Kuenn knocked in four runs and scored twice himself Saturday, propelling the San Francisco Giants into the National League lead with a 10-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Willie Mays hit a solo homer for the Giants in the first, John Roseboro hit one for the Dodgers in the top of the eighth and Jim Davenport belted one for San Francisco's final score in the bottom of the inning.

In their second straight loss, Los Angeles committed five errors as a pair of right-handers, fireballer Jack Sanford and flutterballer Stu Miller, combined for the pitching victory. They allowed five hits.

Sanford, who pitched hitless ball for the first six innings, was the winner, putting his record at 9-6, but needed help from Miller in the seventh.

The victory put the Giants a half game ahead of the second place Dodgers.

Kuenn contributed a pair of doubles and a single in the Giants' 11-hit attack.

The Giants led 9-0 at the end of six innings.

Then Jim Gilliam led off the seventh with a double, Willie Davis tripled and Tommy Davis singled. Manager Alvin Dark called in Miller who finished the inning with four pitches.

The Giants belted Dodger starter Johnny Podres (4-7) for four runs and then greeted reliever Larry Sherry with a four-run outburst in the sixth. He left without getting a man out. Ron Perranoski took over and a fifth run was charged to Sherry.

San Francisco scored two unearned runs in the second, as Podres committed the first of the Dodger error procession, putting Jose Pagan on base with one out.

BARBER SCORES ACE

Three Share Lead In Buick Tourney

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI) — Pete Cooper, Tony Lema and Bill Collins had a three-way tie in the third round of the Buick Open golf championship Saturday with four under par totals of 212, but little Jerry Barber closed to within two shots of the lead with a hole-in-one which also won a $5,200 automobile.

The 47-year-old Cooper, who was tied with Lema at the end of the second round, matched the 28-year-old Californian even-par 72 to cling to the front end, but the balding Collins fired a 71 which moved him up even with them.

That moved this trio one shot ahead of Dave Ragan, who closed a big gap with a 33-34—67, and Jim Ferree, the little Carolinian whose 70 also put him at 213.

Barber moved into a four-man group at 214 when he holed out a two-iron tee shot on the 222-yard 17th to win a new automobile—as Butch Baird of Galveston, Tex., did in the first round. That pushed the little Californian into a deadlock with burly Joe Campbell, lean Dow Finsterwald and handsome Doug Sanders. Campbell and Finsterwald fashioned 69's while Sanders had a par 72 over the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills Golf Club.

At 215, only three shots off the lead in a day of 90-degree heat, came former U. S. Open champion Cary Middlecoff, Bob Goalby, and Gardner Dickinson. Goalby had a 71 with 72's for the others.

There were six of them at even-par 216. Jacky Cupit joining this group with a two-under-par 70, Ken Venturi and former champion Billy Casper had 72's, and there were 73's carded by Johnny Pott, Al Geiberger and Dave Hill.

Bob Shave was all alone at 217 after shooting a 73 while at 218, six shots off the pace, came Baird, who had 35-33—68. Don January, Puerto Rico's Chi Chi Rodriguez, and Canada's Stan Leonard.

Those at 219 included ball-blasting George Bayer while the group at 220 included Paul Harney and Mason Rudolho. Jay Hebert and Tommy Jacobs stood among those at 221 with former U. S. Open champion Julius Boros at 222, former champion Mike Souchak at 223—after missing an ace by inches—and at 224 such as Doug Ford, Al Balding and defending champion Jackie Burke.

Purkey Wins On 10-1 Romp Of Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bob Purkey pitched his 14th victory of the season Saturday as against only two defeats as he limited Houston to six hits in a 10-1 romp by the Cincinnati Reds over the Colts.

Purkey, who now has beaten every club in the league, even aided his own cause with his second home run of the season. He is the first pitcher in the league to beat all the other clubs.

The Reds, who couldn't come close to a hit Friday night with men on base, reversed the procedure as they scored six times in the first three innings on only five hits.

Ramblers Topple Edwin Moore 4-1 In League Game

RUSTON (Special) — The Ruston Ramblers moved into undisputed second place in the North Louisiana Amateur League by defeating Edwin Moore Insurance of Shreveport 4-1 here Saturday.

Ruston's John Porter and S. M. Hammock of Edwin Moore matched strong five - hitters, but Porter, a righthanded Baylor University pitcher came out on top, Porter fanned 10, Hammock 11.

Clyde Berry and Cliff Rowe got two hits apiece to pace the attack as the Ramblers went in front 1-0 in the fifth inning, then added three more in the seventh. Moore's only run came in the ninth.

It was Porter's first decision of the season, although he has appeared in relief roles before.

Billy Peoples' two hits paced the losers.

The win upped Ruston's record to 7-3 and set the stage for today's return match in Shreveport. Ruston will send former Louisiana Tech ace righthander Charley Fuller on the mound against Charley Johnson of Northwestern in the game.

Ragan Gets Flint Open Limelight On 5-Under

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Sharp-putting Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., Calif., turned in a sizzling 5-under-par 67 over the long Warwick Hills golf course Saturday to grab the Flint Open limelight.

His score is best competitive round of the year, left him with a 213, one stroke off the pace set by Pete Cooper of West Palm Beach, Fla. Bill Collins of Miami, and Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif.

Cooper and Lema, co-leaders as the third round began on the 7,280-yard course with the temperature near the 90s, saw their lead nearly disappear as Ragan had eight putt greens and took only 28 putts for the round.

Cooper, a 47-year old veteran of the pro golf circuit, played consistent though not spectacular golf until the final hole, where he took a costly boogy. His second shot hit a trap and he came out too strong.

Collins, the long hitting, erratic putting strong man, had trap trouble on three holes on his outgoing nine but steadied down to turn in his third successive sub par round—a 71. Par is 72.

Cooper finished with an even par 72 as did Lema. Jim Ferree, Collins, the long hitting, erratic putting strong man, had trap trouble on three holes on his outgoing nine but steadied down to turn in his third successive sub par round—a 71. Par is 72.

Cooper finished with an even par 72 as did Lema. Jim Ferree of Midland Valley, S.C., finished with a 2-under-par 70 for 213 and a tie with Ragan as runner-up to the Cooper-Collins-Lema trio.

Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, who started the day two strokes behind the leaders, had an even par to stay in contention at 214. He gave the crowd its biggest thrill on the 222-yard 17th hole, where he knocked in a hole-in-one to win himself a new $5,200 "Buick" convertible.

He was the second player to pick up a new car via the ace route. Fred (Butch) Baird of Galveston, Tex., won one Thursday.

AVENGES FAMILY HONOR

Moyer Outpoints Wright In Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Denny Moyer, a wild-swinging middleweight from Portland, Ore., avenged the family honor by outpointing Teddy Wright of Detroit in a 10-round bout Saturday night in Madison Square Garden. Moyer weighed 157½, Wright 152.

Wright, a 25-year-old globetrotter who is as well known in Italy and France as here, held decisions over Denny and brother Phil Moyer in the last two months.

But he never did get started this time Moyer, except for brief lapses caused by his own wild swinging, was in command most of the way.

Moyer did his most effective punching when he stayed away from Wright. In the third he shook Wright with two lefts and a right to the head.

Right then and there, it appeared that Wright was on the way out. But he clinched and Moyer let him get away.

Moyer did nothing to discourage Wright from clinching and infighting.

Wright's best round was fifth, when he shook Moyer toward the end. Denny had just missed a roundhouse left and walked right into a solid right by the 25-year-old Wright.

The next round Moyer was out again swinging for all he was worth. One of Wright's main troubles was that he was too eager to cover up when Moyer tagged him.

Judge Artie Aidala had Moyer in front 6-3-1. Judge John Dranbo had Moyer the winner 7-3, while referee Teddy Martin had the No. 6 ranked middleweight ahead 8-2. The Associated Press Saw Moyer the winner, 6-3-1.

Moyer's record now shows 32-7. Wright had a 40-8-4 rank. The bout was televised nationally by ABC.

Giants Blast L.A., 10-3; Kuenn Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harvey Kuenn knocked in four runs and scored twice himself Saturday, propelling the San Francisco Giants into the National League lead with a 10-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Willie Mays hit a solo homer for the Giants in the first, John Roseboro hit one for the Dodgers in the top of the eighth and Jim Davenport belted one for San Francisco's final score in the bottom of the inning.

In their second straight loss, Los Angeles committed five errors as a pair of right-handers, fireballer Jack Sanford and flutterballer Stu Miller, combined for the pitching victory. They allowed five hits.

Sanford, who pitched hitless ball for the first six innings, was the winner, putting his record at 9-6, but needed help from Miller in the seventh.

The victory put the Giants a half game ahead of the second place Dodgers.

Kuenn contributed a pair of doubles and a single in the Giants' 11-hit attack.

The Giants led 9-0 at the end of six innings.

Then Jim Gilliam led off the seventh with a double, Willie Davis tripled and Tommy Davis singled. Manager Alvin Dark called in Miller who finished the inning with four pitches.

The Giants belted Dodger starter Johnny Podres (4-7) for four runs and then greeted reliever Larry Sherry with a four-run outburst in the sixth. He left without getting a man out. Ron Perranoski took over and a fifth run was charged to Sherry.

San Francisco scored two unearned runs in the second, as Podres committed the first of the Dodger error procession, putting Jose Pagan on base with one out.

Bums Cry Foul Play On Sandy, Wet Basepaths

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers implied rather pointedly Saturday that excess sand around first base in San Francisco's Candlestick Park was meant to slow the Dodgers' speedy base runners.

Not so, declared the groundskeeper. It was due to an accident.

After the third inning of Friday night's game, umpire Jocko Conlan stopped the game for 10 minutes and ordered the San Francisco ground crew to smooth the area from first base to about halfway to second.

"There was too much dirt," commented Conlan in a well-guarded reply to a reporter's question. "The groundskeeper must have forgotten to level it."

Dodgers runners, who stole four bases in their four-game series opener here and won it 11-3, stole none Friday night and today, losing 12-3 and 10-3.

Some Dodgers complained before Saturday's game that conditions around first were as bad as Friday night—wet and sandy. The ground crew worked the area over again just before the start of play.

Head groundskeeper Matty Schwab explained the conditions. "About 4 p.m. yesterday afternoon we were watering down the infield as usual when the hose broke near first base and flooded the area.

"They wouldn't play at all in that water so we had to fix it. We always use sand in making repairs. That was all there was to it."

Phillips Gets Indians Past Chicago, 5-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bubba Phillips smashed a two-run homer in the eighth inning Saturday to power the league - leading Cleveland Indians to their sixth straight triumph, a 5-3 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

The Indians and ace pitcher Dick Donovan had blown a 3-1 lead in the top of the eighth frame when a walk, Joe Cunningham's triple and a single by Floyd Robinson tied the score.

Donovan failed to win his 13th game when he was chased to the showers in the eighth inning.

Bill Dailey (2-0), who pitched the final 1 2-3 innings was the winner. Dom Zanni (5-4), who served up the homer to Phillips after Luis Aparicio opened the door with his second error, was the loser.

The White Sox scored in the third on a two-out double by Bob Sadowski and Cunningham's single.

Cleveland moved in front 2-1 in the fourth when a walk, and three straight singles—by Woodie Held, Phillips and Jerry Kindall—produced two runs.

Don Dillard homered in the seventh for Cleveland, his third round-tripper in his last four games.

Donovan, who has lost only three decisions this season, was breezing along until the eighth. The All-Star hurler was aiming for his 10th complete game in 18 starts. He had permitted only five hits.

After retiring the first batter in the eighth, Donovan gave up his third walk, to Sadowski. Cunningham, who drove in two of Chicago's runs, then ripped his triple into right field. Manager Mel McGaha went out to talk to the veteran right-hander and permitted him to pitch to the dangerous Robinson, who lashed a single to left to deadlock the score.

Pirates Take See-Saw Tilt From Phillies

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sparked by the hitting of Roberto Clemente, the Pitisburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 6-4 Saturday in a see-saw battle.

Clemente socked two singles and then drove in what turned out to be the winning run with a triple in the seventh. His second single ignited a four-run rally in the sixth that gave the Pirates a 4-3 lead.

Phils' starter Jack Hamilton was pitching a three-hitter until that point. Chris Short, the third Philadelphia hurler, ended up with the loss, his fourth in 10 decisions. Roy Face, who again sparkled in relief, won his fifth game against one defeat.

BARBER SCORES ACE

Three Share Lead In Buick Tourney

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI) — Pete Cooper, Tony Lema and Bill Collins had a three-way tie in the third round of the Buick Open golf championship Saturday with four under par totals of 212, but little Jerry Barber closed to within two shots of the lead with a hole-in-one which also won a $5,200 automobile.

The 47-year-old Cooper, who was tied with Lema at the end of the second round, matched the 28-year-old Californian even-par 72 to cling to the front end, but the balding Collins fired a 71 which moved him up even with them.

That moved this trio one shot ahead of Dave Ragan, who closed a big gap with a 33-34—67, and Jim Ferree, the little Carolinian whose 70 also put him at 213.

Barber moved into a four-man group at 214 when he holed out a two-iron tee shot on the 222-yard 17th to win a new automobile—as Butch Baird of Galveston, Tex., did in the first round. That pushed the little Californian into a deadlock with burly Joe Campbell, Jean Dow Finsterwald and handsome Doug Sanders. Campbell and Finsterwald fashioned 69's while Sanders had a par 72 over the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills Golf Club.

At 215, only three shots off the lead in a day of 90-degree heat, came former U. S. Open champion Cary Middlecoff, Bob Goalby, and Gardner Dickinson. Goalby had a 71 with 72's for the others.

There were six of them at even-par 216, Jacky Cupit joining this group with a two-under-par 70, Ken Venturi and former champion Billy Casper had 72's, and there were 73's carded by Johnny Pott, Al Gieberger and Dave Hill.

Bob Shave was all alone at 217 after shooting a 73 while at 218, six shots off the pace, came Baird, who had 35-33—68; Don January, Puerto Rico's Chi Chi Rodriguez, and Canada's Stan Leonard.

Those at 219 included ball-blasting George Bayer while the group at 220 included Paul Harney and Mason Rudolhp. Jay Hebert and Tommy Jacobs stood among those at 221 with former U. S. Open champion Julius Boros at 222; former champion Mike Souchak at 223—after missing an ace by inches—and at 224 such as Doug Ford, Al Balding and defending champion Jackie Burke.

Bertell's Single Puts Cubs Past Milwaukee, 2-1

CHICAGO (AP)—Catcher Dick Bertell singled with the bases full and two out in the tenth inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday.

It was the second time in two days the two teams played a 10 inning game, and the loss ruined the Braves' chances of climbing past the .500 mark in the National League standings for the first time this season.

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Frank LaMothe of New Orleans upset top-seeded Richard Carter of Baton Rouge 6-4, 6-4 Saturday to win the boys 18-under singles crown in the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce tennis tournament.

Putsy Trice of Baton Rouge took the 18-under girls division by trimming Peggy Moore of New Orleans 6-3, 6-2. Miss Trice reached the Jaycee International singles finals last year and lost to Sharon Prituila of Detroit, Mich.

Upton Giles of Covington downed Phillip Adams of New Orleans 7-5, 6-3 to make the boys 16 and under title.

Kay Walls of New Orleans defended her girls 16-under title by tripping Ann Moore of New Orleans, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Yanks Take 6-3 Victory Over Twins

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Reliever Marshall Bridges checked his own wildness in time to subdue an eighth inning Minnesota rally as the New York Yankees flexed their home run muscles for the second straight game to down the Twins 6-3 Saturday.

Yankee starter Bill Stafford was cruising along with a one-hitter and a 6-0 lead when the Twins finally broke his spell in the eighth.

Two singles and a walk loaded the bases before Bridges replaced Stafford. Bridges then walked in two runs and another scored on a force out before he struck out Bob Allison and Bernie Allen lined to Jack Reed, who made a diving catch in right field.

The triumph enabled New York to stay a half game behind American League leading Cleveland.

Hector Lopez and Bill Skowron each swatted a two-run homer to provide the Yankee victory margin.

Purkey Wins On 10-1 Romp Of Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bob Purkey pitched his 14th victory of the season Saturday as against only two defeats as he limited Houston to six hits in a 10-1 romp by the Cincinnati Reds over the Colts.

Purkey, who now has beaten every club in the league, even aided his own cause with his second home run of the season. He is the first pitcher in the league to beat all the other clubs.

The Reds, who couldn't come close to a hit Friday night with men on base, reversed the procedure as they scored six times in the first three innings on only five hits.

Ramblers Topple Edwin Moore 4-1 In League Game

RUSTON (Special) — The Ruston Ramblers moved into undisputed second place in the North Louisiana Amateur League by defeating Edwin Moore Insurance of Shreveport 4-1 here Saturday.

Ruston's John Porter and S. M. Hammock of Edwin Moore matched strong five - hitters, but Porter, a righthanded Baylor University pitcher came out on top. Porter fanned 10; Hammock 11.

Clyde Berry and Cliff Rowe got two hits apiece to pace the attack as the Ramblers went in front 1-0 in the fifth inning, then added three more in the seventh. Moore's only run came in the ninth.

It was Porter's first decision of the season, although he has appeared in relief roles before.

Billy Peoples' two hits paced the losers.

The win upped Ruston's racord to 7-3 and set the stage for today's return match in Shreveport. Ruston will send former Louisiana Tech ace righthander Charley Fuller on the mound against Charley Johnson of Northwestern in the game.

Ragan Gets Flint Open Limelight On 5-Under

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Sharp-putting Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., turned in a sizzling 5-under-par 67 over the long Warwick Hills golf course Saturday to grab the Flint Open limelight.

His score, his best competitive round of the year, left him with a 213, one stroke off the pace set by Pete Cooper of West Palm Beach, Fla., Bill Collins of Miami and Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif.

Cooper and Lema, co-leaders as the third round began on the 7,280-yard course with the temperature near the 90s, saw their lead nearly disappear as Ragan had eight 1-putt greens and took only 28 putts for the round.

Cooper, a 47-year-old veteran of the pro golf circuit, played consistent though not spectacular golf until the final hole, where he took a costly boegy. His second shot hit a trap and he came out too strong.

Collins, the long-hitting, erratic-putting strong man, had trap trouble on three holes on his outgoing nine but steadied down to turn in his third successive sub-par round—a 71. Par is 72.

Cooper finished with an even par 72 as did Lema. Jim Ferree of Midland Valley, S.C., finished with a 2-under-par 70 for 213 and a tie with Ragan as runner-up to the Cooper-Collins-Lema trio.

Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, who started the day two strokes behind the leaders, had an even par to stay in contention at 214. He gave the crowd its biggest thrill on the 222-yard 17th hole, where he knocked in a hole-in-one to win himself a new $5,200 (Buick) convertible.

He was the second player to pick up a new car via the ace route. Fred (Butch) Baird of Galveston, Tex., won one Thursday.

Third round scores in the Flint Open Saturday (par 72):

AVENGES FAMILY HONOR

Moyer Outpoints Wright In Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Denny Moyer, a wild-swinging middleweight from Portland, Ore., avenged the family honor by outpointing Teddy Wright of Detroit in a 10-round bout Saturday night in Madison Square Garden. Moyer weighed 157½, Wright 152.

Wright, a 25-year-old globetrotter who is as well known in Italy and France as here, held decisions over Denny and brother Phil Moyer in the last two months.

But he never did get started this time. Moyer, except for brief lapses caused by his own wild swinging, was in command most of the way.

Moyer did his most effective punching when he stayed away from Wright. In the third he shook Wright with two lefts and a right to the head.

Right then and there, it appeared that Wright was on the way out. But he clinched and Moyer let him get away.

Moyer did nothing to discourage Wright from clinching and infighting.

Wright's best round was fifth, when he shook Moyer toward the end. Denny had just missed a roundhouse left and walked right into a solid right by the 25-year-old Wright.

The next round Moyer was out again swinging for all he was worth. One of Wright's main troubles was that he was too eager to cover up when Moyer tagged him.

Judge Artie Aidala had Moyer in front 6-3-1. Judge John Dran had Moyer the winner 7-3, while referee Teddy Martin had the No. 6 ranked middleweight ahead 8-2. The Associated Press Saw Moyer the winner, 6-3-1.

Moyer's record now shows 32-7. Wright had a 40-8-4 rank. The bout was televised nationally by ABC.

Boston Hoop Star Visiting West Monroe

Bill Russell, fabulous center with the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association, is in West Monroe this week visiting his grandfather.

Russell, former All-American at the University of San Francisco, was born in West Monroe but moved when his father, Charley Russell, went to Oakland, California during World War II.

The grandfather, Jason Russell of 68 Olive, did not know how long the 6-10 Negro star would be in the Twin Cities. Russell, himself, was not available for comment.

Baltimore Wins As Tigers Muff Chances For 2

DETROIT (AP) — Baltimore scored three times in the ninth inning when the Detroit Tigers muffed two double play possibilities and the Orioles scored a 7-6 victory.

The Orioles started the ninth on singles by Jerry Adair and Hobie Landrith and got one run in with one out on Whitey Herzog's single before the Detroit infield collapsed.

Senior Circuit Rules As All-Star Favorite

BILL HARTACK, drives his mount, Big Steve, to the wire ahead of Coroebus, to win his 3,000th race in his tenth year of campaigning. The event was the fifth race Saturday at Arlington Park, a mile and one-sixteenth on turf. Jockey B. Sorenson is up on Coreobus. First Game Set Tuesday In D.C. Park

WASHINGTON (AP)—The power - packed National League, beaten only once in the last six games, ruled a 6 to 5 favorite to continue its mastery over the American League in Tuesday's All - Star contest, the first of two mid-season meetings between the best of each circuit.

A capacity crowd of 45,015 is assured for this 32nd inter-league classic, the third in Washington and the first in the Senators' spanking new District of Columbia Stadium. The game, starting at 12 noon, EST, will be broadcast and televised nationally (NBC-TV).

The second game will be played in Chicago's Wrigley Field Monday, July 30.

The American League holds an overall 16 to 14 edge with one game ending in a tie since the inaugural of the mid-summer game in 1933. The National, however, has lost only once since the two game plan was started in 1959. They've won four and tied one. In previous Washington encounters, the Americans won 8-3 in 1937 and the Nationals prevailed 7-4 in 1956.

Because the National will present an all right-handed batting line-up, led by San Francisco's socking twins Orlando Cepeda and Willie Mays, Manager Ralph Houk of the Americans is virtually certain to open with a right handed pitcher. His most likely choice appears to be between Camilo Pascual of Minnesota and Jim Bunning of Detroit. The 28-year old Pascual (12-4) leads the American League in victories, shutouts and strikeouts. Bunning, 30, is the Tigers' leading pitcher (8-4) with 86 strikeouts in 114 innings.

Opening pitchers won't be announced until Monday, but it won't surprise many if Fred Hutchinson, National League manager, names one of the Los Angeles Dodgers' stars, either southpaw Sandy Koufax (12-4) or right hander Don Drysdale (5-4).

All four probable starters have pitched and starred in previous All Star games. Pascual pitched three hitless and scoreless innings in 1961, striking out four and walking one. Bunning has appeared four times and last year hurled five perfect innings in the two games.

Koufax, the 25-year old strike out sensation who hurled a no-hit, no-run game against the New York Mets June 30, also pitched in one of the games last year, allowing three hits and no runs in two innings. Drysdale, the majors' biggest winner, started both 1960 contests. He hurled three perfect innings in the first but was clipped for four hits and three runs in three innings of the second.

The American League starting line-up, named by the players themselves, as was the National League starting squad, will present three left-handed hitters plus the switch-hitting Mickey Mantle, who will start in right field instead of his accustomed center field position. Roger Maris will be in center field as has been the case on the Yankees since Mantle returned to the line-up after an early season injury. The southpaw swingers, besides Maris, are Jim Gentile, Baltimore first baseman, and Los Angeles' Leon Wagner, the league's home run leader.

There are five repeaters on the starting squads—Cepeda, Mays, Clemente, Mantle and Maris. Cepeda, the top vote-getter, was the starting left fielder in 1961. It is mandatory for all starters to play at least three innings, barring injury. The pitchers may not work more than three innings unless the game goes into extra innings.

One of the National League coaches will be Casey Stengel, 72-year old New York Mets' manager, who piloted 10 American League All-Star teams, winning four and losing six. Manager Johnny Keane of the Cards will be the other NL coach. Managers Mickey Vernon of Washington and Billy Hitchcock of Baltimore will be the AL coaches.

Athletics Follow Old Script; Top Washington, 9-8

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics followed a script they wrote Friday night, came from behind with an eighth inning rally featuring Bobby Del Greco's home run and beat the Washington Senators 9-8 Saturday night.

The Senators, with the aid of a pair of home runs by Bud Zipfel and Jim King, had built up a 6-4 margin at the end of seven innings behind the pitching of Pete Burnside and Dave Stenhouse. Then in their half of the eighth the Washingtonians added another two runs off Ed Rakow, the third A's pitcher of the night, to go ahead 8-4.

But the Athletics, who had scored seven runs in the same inning Friday night to beat out the Senators 12-9, came into Stenhouse with a vengeance.

Manny Jimenez walked to start the inning and Norm Siebern doubled. After Ed Charles was called out on strikes, Jimenez came home as Haywood Sullivan grounded out. Billy Consolo followed with a triple and Wayne Causey, sitting for relief pitcher Bill Fischer, walked. Then Del Greco unloaded his homer to decorate the sacks and give the Athletics the game.

The Senators walloped 16 hits, their high total for the season, but lost their sixth straight decision to the A's.

8TH AMERICAN

Hartack Claims 3,000th Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Hartack became the eighth American jockey in history to register 3,000 victories when he piloted Big Steve to a photo-finish triumph in the fifth race at Arlington Park Saturday.

The 29-year-old rider hit the 3,000 mark in his tenth year of campaigning, becoming the second jockey ever to achieve such a record in less than 10 years.

He brought Big Steve home with a nose victory over Coroebus in the 1 1-16 mile event on the turf.

Big Steve, timed in 1:45 2-5, returned $5.20.

Bill Shoemaker, Hartack's perennial rival, is the only other jockey who scored 3,000 victories in fewer than 10 years.

Shoemaker, who later this month will renew his annual head-to-head feuding with Hartack at Arlington Park, started riding in April of 1949 and got No. 3,000 on Jan. 31, 1958—little more than 8½ years later. Hartack began riding Oct. 11, 1952, thus getting his 3,000th winner in roughly 9½ years.

Johnny Longden, first American to ride 3,000 winners, hit that mark in 1948 in his 22nd riding year.

Ted Atkinson needed 17 seasons of riding to bag his 3,000th winner. Eddie Arcaro, Steve Brooks and Johnny Adams hit that total during their 21st season, while Ralph Neves needed 24 seasons.

Hartack's three consecutive national riding championships, 1955 through 1957, stands as an all-time jockey record.

The hard-bitten Hartack, who says what he thinks about his mounts, sent his mounts in 1956 to earnings of $2,343,955, breaking Shoemaker's record established in 1954.

In 1957 Hartack broke his own record and established the existing mark for winnings of $3,060,501 and also established a record for stakes victories with 43, topping Arcaro's record of 40 set in 1952.

Hartack won the national riding crown again in 1960 with 307 winners.

Pagliaroni's Homer Gives Red Sox Win

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jim Pagliaroni's second eighth inning homer in two days produced the deciding run Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Los Angeles Angels 5-4.

Lu Clinton, who has had 19 hits in his last 31 at bats, drove in the first three Boston runs with a homer in the fourth.

Don Schwall, the 1961 American League rookie of the year, pitched a four-hitter for seven innings and picked up his third victory in 13 decisions. Schwall struck out nine and walked four.

Leon Wagner pulled the Angels into a 3-3 tie in the fifth with his 25th homer—a 430-foot shot over the right field fence. Albie Pearson was aboard on an error when Wagner connected.

Right-hander Don Lee, touched for 10 hits and four runs in seven innings, suffered his sixth loss in 12 decisions.

Pagliaroni hit his game winning homer off reliever Art Fowler. Dick Radatz took over for Schwall in the eighth and allowed only one hit the rest of the way.

Kennedy Might View All-Stars

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy may attend the All-Star baseball game in Washington next Tuesday.

The Cape Cod White House said Saturday Kennedy has been invited to watch the American and National League teams square off at the District of Columbia Stadium and is giving it strong consideration.

Kennedy has been to the ball park twice since taking office, each time to throw out the first ball at the season's openers.

Oakland Raiders Make Player Swap

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—The Oakland Raiders announced Saturday they traded end Doug Asad to the Buffalo Bills for guard John Dettrich in an American Football League player swap.

Asad was Oakland's leading pass receiver last year with 43 receptions for 592 yards and 2 touchdowns. Dettrich was a starting guard for Buffalo in 1961.

The trade is the third announced between the two clubs since 1961.

STARTS MONDAY

Nicklaus And Palmer Duel Forecast For British Open

TROON, Scotland (AP)—Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the two big men in American golf, renew their rivalry Monday in different circumstances in a different land—in the British Open over the lakeland layout.

Nicklaus, the 22-year-old power player from Columbus, Ohio, defeated Palmer in a playoff for the U.S. Open at Oakmont (Pa.) Country Club last month.

That playoff defeat robbed Palmer of a chance this year at the modern grand slam the U.S. top money winner on the American circuit in 1961, are bracketed at 11-2.

Peter Thomson, four time winner from Australia, is 6-1. Sam Snead, the 50-year-old golf great from White Sulphur Springs, Va., is 7-1, and Gene Littler, winner of the U.S. Open in 1961, is 8-1.

Phil Rodgers, the former American Marine from La Jolla, Calif., is a 12-1 shot.

About 20 Americans are expected to tee off Monday in the first of two qualifying rounds. Troon officials forecast that crowds of between 20,000 and 30,000 will turn out each day with Palmer and Nicklaus getting the biggest galleries.

Qualifying rounds will be played Monday and Tuesday over two courses, the Troon championship links and the public course of Loch Green, two miles away.

Both courses run beside the Firth of Clyde and strong winds usually make things rough and tough for even the finest shot makers.

A maximum of 120 low scorers will go into the 72-hole tournament proper Wednesday. Single rounds Wednesday and Thursday will cut the field to a maximum of 50 for the final two rounds Friday.

The four championship rounds will be decided over the 7,045-yard par 36-36—72 Troon links. The Loch Green course measures 6,388 yards and has a par 37-35—72.

The Troon course has been lengthened 500 yards since the Open was last held here in 1950, when Bobby Locke of South Africa won with 279.

Nicklaus, who had trouble throughout practice in making 40 on the home nine, predicted something like 288 should be good enough to win the championship.

The reconstructed 11th hole is the one giving players most trouble in practice. The dog-leg stretches 485 yards and runs along the railroad line. A bad drive could send the ball screaming on to the tracks and out of bounds.

Both Palmer and Rodgers have had their troubles at the hole. In one round, Palmer had a seven and in another Rodgers twice sent his tee shot out of bounds.

Another hole that could cause heartbreak is the 125-yard 8th—better known as the "postage stamp." It was at that hole in 1923 that Walter Hagen visited the bunkers and took a disastrous five that cost him the British Open. He was beaten one stroke by Arthur Havers.

Three Americans—Snead, back in 1946, Ben Hogan (1953) and Palmer (1961)—have won the British championship since the end of World War II.

Peter Thomson of Australia took the title in 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1958. Bobby Locke won in 1949, 1950, 1952, and 1957. Gary Player won in 1959, and Kel Nagle of Australia collared it in 1960.

The other three post - war championships were won by Fred Daly of Ireland, Henry Cotton of England and Max Faulkner of England.

All of them — except Hogan — are entered this time.

The British Open carries a first prize of only $3,920—peanuts compared with the $17,500 won by Nicklaus in the U.S. Open this year.

Senior Circuit Rules As All-Star Favorite

BILL HARTACK, drives his mount, Big Steve, to the wire ahead of Coroebus, to win his 3,000th race in his tenth year of campaigning. The event was the fifth race Saturday at Arlington Park, a mile and one-sixteenth on turf. Jockey B. Sorenson is up on Coreobus. First Game Set Tuesday In D.C. Park

WASHINGTON (AP)—The power - packed National League, beaten only once in the last six games, ruled a 6 to 5 favorite to continue its mastery over the American League in Tuesday's All - Star contest, the first of two mid-season meetings between the best of each circuit.

A capacity crowd of 45,015 is assured for this 32nd inter-league classic, the third in Washington and the first in the Senators' spanking new District of Columbia Stadium. The game, starting at 12 noon, EST, will be broadcast and televised nationally (NBC-TV).

The second game will be played in Chicago's Wrigley Field Monday, July 30.

The American League holds an over-all 16 to 14 edge with one game ending in a tie since the inaugural of the mid-summer game in 1933. The National, however, has lost only once since the two-game plan was started in 1959. They've won four and tied one. In previous Washington encounters, the Americans won 8-3 in 1937 and the Nationals prevailed 7-3 in 1956.

Because the National will present an all-right-handed hitting line-up, led by San Francisco's socking twins, Orlando Cepeda and Willie Mays, Manager Ralph Houk of the Americans is virtually certain to open with a right-handed pitcher. His most likely choice appears to lie between Camilo Pascual of Minnesota and Jim Bunning of Detroit. The 28 year old Pascual (12-4) leads the the American League in victories, shutouts and strikeouts. Bunning, 30, is the Tigers' leading pitcher (8-4) with 86 strikeouts in 114 innings.

Opening pitchers won't be announced until Monday, but it won't surprise many if Fred Hutchinson, National League manager, names one of the Los Angeles Dodgers' stars, either southpaw Sandy Koufax (12-4) or right-hander Don Drysdale (15-4).

All four probable starters have pitched and starred in previous All-Star games. Pascual pitched three hitless and scoreless innings in 1961, striking out four and walking one. Bunning has appeared four times and last year hurled five perfect innings in the two games.

Koufax, the 25-year old strikeout sensation who hurled a no-hit, no-run game against the New York Mets June 30, also pitched in one of the games last year, allowing three hits and no runs in two innings. Drysdale, the majors' biggest winner, started both 1960 contests. He hurled three perfect innings in the first but was clipped for four hits and three runs in three innings of the second.

The American League starting line-up, named by the players themselves, as was the National League starting squad, will present three left-handed hitters plus the switch-hitting Mickey Mantle, who will start in right field instead of his accustomed center field position. Roger Maris will be in center field as has been the case on the Yankees since Mantle returned to the line-up after an early season injury. The southpaw swingers, besides Maris, are Jim Gentile, Baltimore first baseman; and Los Angeles' Leon Wagner, the league's home run leader.

There are five repeaters on the starting squads—Cepeda, Mays, Clemente, Mantle and Maris. Cepeda, the top vote-getter, was the starting left fielder in 1961. It is mandatory for all starters to play at least three innings, barring injury. The pitchers may not work more than three innings unless the game goes into extra innings.

One of the National League coaches will be Casey Stengel, 72-year old New York Mets' manager, who piloted 10 American League All-Star teams, winning four and losing six. Manager Johnny Keane of the Cards will be the other NL coach. Managers Mickey Vernon of Washington and Billy Hitchcock of Baltimore will be the AL coaches.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Following are the complete squads of the National and American Leagues for the first All-Star game Tuesday in Washington, D.C., with uniform numbers, (Batting averages through games of Thursday, July 5 in parentheses):

Nicklaus And Palmer Duel Forecast For British Open

TROON, Scotland (A — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the two big men in American golf, renew their rivalry Monday in different circumstances in a different land—in the British Open over the lakeland layout.

Nicklaus, the 22-year-old power player from Columbus, Ohio, defeated Palmer in a playoff for the U.S. Open at Oakmont (Pa.) Country Club last month.

That playoff defeat robbed Palmer of a chance this year at the modern grand slam—the U.S. and British Opens, the U.S. Masters and the U.S. PGA in one season. Palmer won the Masters.

Palmer, winner of the British Open at Birkdale last year, and Nicklaus head the strongest American challenge for the British Open in years.

British bookies rate Palmer a 2-1 favorite in the field of more than 350 golfers from 19 countries.

Nicklaus and South Africa's Gary Player, winner of the British championship in 1959 and the top money winner on the American circuit in 1961, are bracketed at 11-2.

Peter Thomson, four-time winner from Australia, is 6-1. Sam Snead, the 50-year-old golf great from White Sulphur Springs, Va., is 7-1, and Gene Littler, winner of the U.S. Open in 1961, is 8-1.

Phil Rodgers, the former American Marine from La Jolla, Calif., is a 12-1 shot.

About 20 Americans are expected to tee off Monday in the first of two qualifying rounds. Troon officials forecast that crowds of between 20,000 and 30,000 will turn out each day with Palmer and Nicklaus getting the biggest galleries.

Qualifying rounds will be played Monday and Tuesday over two courses—the Troon championship links and the public course of Loch Green, two miles away.

Both courses run beside the Firth of Clyde and strong winds usually make things rough and tough for even the finest shotmakers.

A maximum of 120 low scorers will go into the 72-hole tournament proper Wednesday. Single rounds Wednesday and Thursday will cut the field to a maximum of 50 for the final two rounds Friday.

The four championship rounds will be decided over the 7,045 yard, par 36-36—72 Troon links. The Loch Green course measures 6,788 yards and has a par 37-35—72.

The Troon course has been lengthened 500 yards since the Open was last held here in 1950, when Bobby Locke of South Africa won with 279.

Nicklaus, who had trouble throughout practice in making 40 on the home nine, predicted: "something like 288 should be good enough to win the championship."

The reconstructed 11th hole is the one giving players most trouble in practice. The dog-leg stretches 485 yards and runs along the railroad line. A bad drive could send the ball screaming onto the tracks and out of bounds.

Both Palmer and Rodgers have had their troubles at the hole. In one round, Palmer had a seven and in another Rodgers twice sent his tee shot out of bounds.

Another hole that could cause heartbreak is the 125-yard 8th—better known as the "postage stamp." It was at that hole in 1923 that Walter Hagen visited the bunkers and took a disastrous five that cost him the British Open. He was beaten one stroke by Arthur Havers.

Three Americans—Snead back in 1946, Ben Hogan (1953) and Palmer (1961)—have won the British championship since the end of World War II.

Peter Thomson of Australia took the title in 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1958. Bobby Locke won in 1949, 1950, 1952, and 1957. Gary Player won in 1959, and Kel Nagle of Australia collared it in 1960.

The other three post - war championships were won by Fred Daly of Ireland, Henry Cotton of England and Max Faulkner of England.

All of them — except Hogan — are entered this time.

The British Open carries a first prize of only $3,920—peanuts compared with the $17,500 won by Nicklaus in the U.S. Open this year.

Maxvill's score would have broken an eighth inning 3-3 tie in the opener of the Cardinal-Met twinbill. The Mets copped the opener, 5-4. (AP Wirephoto)

MUSIAL GETS ANOTHER

Mets, Cards Split On 2 Circuit Hits

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial hit his 453rd National League home run in the eighth inning of the second game Saturday for a 3-2 St. Louis victory over the New York Mets after Marv Throneberry's two-run pinch homer in the ninth had given the Mets the opener 5-4.

Throneberry, one of the least spectacular Mets, also hit a homer in the seventh inning of the second game, tying the score before Musial's blow won it for St. Louis. With two out in the last of the ninth, Throneberry tripled but was left there when pinch hitter Gene Woodling grounded out.

All the runs in the second game came on homers. Sam Taylor hit one for the Mets in each game and Kenny Boyer hit his 15th with a man on in the fourth inning of the second game.

The Cards lost an important run in the eighth inning of the opener when pinch runner Del Maxvill failed to touch third base en route from second to the plate on a pinch "single" by Red Schoendienst. Maxvill was on second on second and Carl Sawatski on first when Schoendienst slashed a ball off Gil Hodges' glove. Maxvill failed to touch third and his run was nullified as well as Schoendienst's hit.

Curt Flood had tied the score with his eighth homer of the year in the top of the ninth of the opener before Joe Christopher's single and Throneberry's homer won it for the Mets.

Ray Daviault was the first game winner on relief and Craig Anderson lost the second. Ernie Broglio, fourth Card pitcher in the opener, was the loser. Rookie Ray Washburn needed help from Lindy McDaniel to get the last out in the second game for his eventh victory.

Athletics Follow Old Script; Top Washington, 9-8

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics followed a script they wrote Friday night, came from behind with an eighth inning rally featuring Bobby Del Greco's home run and beat the Washington Senators 9-8, Saturday night.

The Senators, with the aid of a pair of home runs by Bud Zipfel and Jim King, had built up a 6-4 margin at the end of seven innings behind the pitching of Pete Burnside and Dave Stenhouse. Then, in their half of the eighth the Washingtonians added another two runs off Ed Rakow, the third A's pitcher of the night to go ahead 8-4.

But the Athletics, who had scored seven runs in the same inning Friday night to beat out the Senators 12-9, tore into Stonhouse with a vengeance.

Manny Jimenez walked to start the inning and Norm Siebern doubled. After Ed Charles was called out on strikes, Jimenez came home as Haywood Sullivan grounded out. Billy Consolo followed with a triple and Wayne Causey, atting for relief pitcher Bill Fischer, walked. Then Del Greco unloaded his homer to clear the sacks and give the Athletics the game.

The Senators walloped 16 hits, their high total for the season, but lost their sixth straight decision to the A's.

Hartack Claims 3,000th Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Hartack became the eighth American jockey in history to register 3,000 victories when he piloted Big Steve to a photo-finish triumph in the fifth race at Arlington Park Saturday.

The 29-year-old rider hit the 3,000 mark in his tenth year of campaigning, becoming the second jockey ever to achieve such a record in less than 10 years.

He brought Big Steve home with a nose victory over Coroebus in the 1 1-16 mile event on the turf.

Big Steve, timed in 1:45 2-5, returned $5.20.

Bill Shoemaker, Hartack's perennial rival, is the only other jockey who scored 3,000 victories in fewer than 10 years.

Shoemaker, who later this month will renew his annual head-to-head feuding with Hartack at Arlington Park, started riding in April of 1949 and got No. 3,000 on Jan. 31, 1958—little more than 8½ years later. Hartack began riding Oct. 11, 1952, thus getting his 3,000th winner in roughly 9½ years.

Johnny Longden, first American to ride 3,000 winners, hit that mark in 1948 in his 22nd riding year.

Ted Atkinson needed 17 seasons of riding to bag his 3,000th winner. Eddie Arcaro, Steve Brooks and Johnny Adams hit that total during their 21st season, while Ralph Neves needed 24 seasons.

Hartack's three consecutive national riding championships, 1955 through 1957, stands as an all-time jockey record.

The hard-bitten Hartack, who says what he thinks about his mounts, sent his mounts in 1956 to earnings of $2,343,955, breaking Shoemaker's record established in 1954.

In 1957, Hartack broke his own record and established the existing mark for winnings of $3,060,501, and also established a record for stakes victories with 43, topping Arcaro's record of 40 set in 1952.

Hartack won the national riding crown again in 1960 with 307 winners.

Pagliaroni's Homer Gives Red Sox Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Pagliaroni's second eighth-inning homer in two days produced the deciding run Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Los Angeles Angels 5-4.

Lu Clinton, who has had 19 hits in his last 31 at-bats, drove in the first three Boston runs with a homer in the fourth.

Don Schwall, the 1961 American League rookie of the year, pitched a four-hitter for seven innings and picked up his third victory in 13 decisions. Schwall struck out nine and walked four.

Leon Wagner pulled the Angels into a 3-3 tie in the fifth with his 25th homer—a 450-foot shot over the right field fence. Albie Pearson was aboard on an error when Wagner connected.

Right-hander Don Lee, touched for 10 hits and four runs in seven innings, suffered his sixth loss in 12 decisions.

Pagliaroni hit his game-winning homer off reliever Art Fowler.

Kennedy Might View All-Stars

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy may attend the All-Star baseball game in Washington next Tuesday.

The Cape Cod White House said Saturday Kennedy has been invited to watch the American and National League teams square off at the District of Columbia Stadium and is giving it strong consideration.

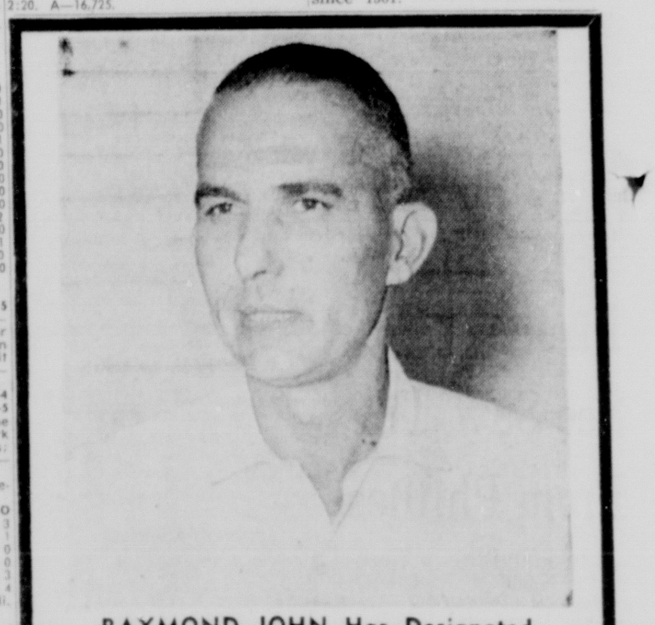

Kennedy has been to the ball park twice since taking office—each time to throw out the first ball at the season's openers.

Oakland Raiders Make Player Swap

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Raiders announced Saturday they traded end Doug Asad to the Buffalo Bills for guard John Dittrich in an American Football League player swap.

Asad was Oakland's leading pass receiver last year with 43 receptions for 592 yards and 2 touchdowns. Dittrich was a starting guard for Buffalo in 1961.

The trade is the third announced between the two clubs since 1961.

Universal Fishing License

BATON ROUGE — The Louisiana Wildlife Federation's $1 universal fishing license — proposed year after year — received fewer votes this session than ever before.

Only 15 members of the house voted for the bill — 83 against.

This is a sad commentary for the Federation's strength in Louisiana.

The bill was designed to bring more funds to the state for its game and fisheries program by requiring all adult fishermen, whether they be canepole fishermen or otherwise — to purchase a $1 annual license.

This doesn't seem like too much to ask for, in view of the thousands of people who are fishing, creating more demand on the state's lakes and streams.

Louisiana, as has been pointed out in this corner before, could increase its revenue for Wildlife by increasing the number of fishing license sold, thus entitling the state to additional federal funds through excise taxes.

But the truth of the matter is the federation's failure, plus the commission's failure, to remove the political stigma from the $1 universal license.

It's popular for a legislator to scream on the floor about the poor people who can ill afford to plunk out a buck for a license.

This is just a lot of political tripe and everybody who cares knows it.

A bill that would have placed an additional $1 fee on a select group managed to muster only 15 votes. Yet a bill placing a $60-million bond issue for the children to pay for weat through with flying colors.

Unfortunately, the merits of legislation are seldom the deciding factors. It's who's behind the bills that count.

If the Davis administration had supported the fishing license bill like it did the $60-million bond issue, you can bet your fishing license dollar that there would have been more than 15 votes for it.

Had the governor wanted the universal fishing license, the poor people who can ill afford a $1 license could have found a way to afford it.

Limit Increase Proposed

Rep. Chester Floyd of Jena has a bill in the legislature of vital interest to fishermen.

Floyd's bill, which incidentially is not opposed by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, would increase the limit on bream to 100.

It also will jack up the limits on white perch and barfish to 50.

It may seem strange to some that the commission would not be opposed to this bill, since the commission is charged with the preservation and conservation of the state's fisheries and game.

But the reason for this is that the modern theory on fish is that the more you catch the more the lakes and streams produce.

It's almost impossible to overfish a stream.

At any rate, if Floyd's bill becomes law, there aren't too many fishermen who will take the time and trouble to catch a hundred bream, much less clean them.

Hunter Safety Bill

A hunter safety bill sponsored by Sen. J. C. Gilbert and Rep. Lasley Downes seems to have died a quiet death. The bill was written to encourage safety on the part of the hunters — to make hunters stop and think before they pull the trigger.

It's a good bill, in our opinion, and we hope it'll be pushed on through the legislative channels for final adoption.

Laws on the books cover negligence, that's true, but a law written specifically against negligent hunting accident is in order.

Gilbert so far has been successful with other wildlife bills — fines against the theft of dogs, fines against the sale or purchase of deer, the prohibiting of shooting deer from boats with motors attached.

Almost Through

The legislature is almost through for the current session and fortunately the systems for tagging deer, turkey and bear have not been abolished.

Bills were introduced to accomplish this, but none passed.

Sportsmen should continue to support the laws that require hunters to tag deer, turkey and bear after the kill.

Other Bills Pending

Other wildlife bills are pending as follows:

SB 26 by Sen. Martin to prohibit the killing of game behind a rail driven or pulled by a vehicle. It was passed by the Senate and is now in the House.

SB 85 by Sen. Jones to increase penalties for night hunting is now before the House.

HB 91 by Rep. Strother to prohibit the killing of doe deer in Allen Parish game refuge. This bill has passed the House, but faces trouble in the Senate.

HB 167 by Rep. Fulco to abolish the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. This bill has been withdrawn.

HB 480 by Rep. Falgout to legalize slat traps is now before the House.

HB 704 by Rep. Bernard to eliminate landowners from being libel for hunting accidents on their property. The bill is still in the House and is in trouble.

HB 1189 by Rep. Dyson to authorize the commission to sell shell, sand, gravel from reefs and deposits passed the House and awaits committee action in the Senate.

SB 217 by Sen. Rappelet to permit the taking of 100 pounds of shrimp per boat for sports trawlers using 16 foot or smaller trawls. Now in the House.

SAN FRANCISCO catcher Joe Pignatano (2) and an unidentified park policeman appear to be trying a new dance step as they attempt to corner a fleeing chicken during the Giants-Dodger game at Candlestick Park in San Francisco Saturday. The chicken eluded the two, but was finally cornered in the Giants' bull pen. San Francisco whipped Los Angeles, 10-3, to take over first place in the National League. (AP Wirephoto)

Koufax Selected Best In June For No-Hit Game

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who pitched a no-hit game against New York on the last day of the month, was named Saturday as the National League's player-of-the-month for June.

The selections are made by a committee of 50 sports writers and broadcasters.

Koufax, who will be the only southpaw on the National League's All-Star team pitching staff for the game against the American League Tuesday, polled 15 votes. Runner-up was Milwaukee's outfielder, Hank Aaron, with 11 votes.

Although Koufax had only a 4-2 record during the month, he had the no-hitter, struck out 74 in 58 1-3 innings, allowed only 24 hits and had a 1.24 earned run average.

Aaron batted .376 for the month and drove in 35 runs in 28 games.

Don Drysdale, a pitching teammate of Koufax, finished third in the balloting with nine votes. He was 6-1 for June with a 2.90 ERA.

Universal Fishing License

BATON ROUGE — The Louisiana Wildlife Federation's $1 universal fishing license — proposed year after year — received fewer votes this session than ever before.

Only 15 members of the house voted for the bill — 83 against.

This is a sad commentary for the Federation's strength in Louisiana.

The bill was designed to bring more funds to the state for its game and fisheries program by requiring all adult fishermen, whether they be canepole fishermen or otherwise — to purchase a $1 annual license.

This doesn't seem like too much to ask for, in view of the thousands of people who are fishing, creating more demand on the state's lakes and streams.

Louisiana, as has been pointed out in this corner before, could increase its revenue for Wildlife by increasing the number of fishing license sold, thus entitling the state to additional federal funds through excise taxes.

But the truth of the matter is the federation's failure, plus the commission's failure, to remove the political stigma from the $1 universal license.

It's popular for a legislator to scream on the floor about the poor people who can ill afford to plunk out a buck for a license.

This is just a lot of political tripe and everybody who cares knows it.

A bill that would have placed an additional $1 fee on a select group managed to muster only 15 votes. Yet a bill placing a $60-million bond issue for the children to pay for went through with flying colors.

Unfortunately, the merits of legislation are seldom the deciding factors. It's who's behind the bills that count.

If the Davis administration had supported the fishing license bill like it did the $60-million bond issue, you can bet your fishing license dollar that there would have been more than 15 votes for it.

Had the governor wanted the universal fishing license, the poor people who can ill afford a $1 license could have found a way to afford it.

Limit Increase Proposed

Rep. Chester Floyd of Jena has a bill in the legislature of vital interest to fishermen.

Floyd's bill, which incidentially is not opposed by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, would increase the limit on bream to 100.

It also will jack up the limits on white perch and barfish to 50.

It may seem strange to some that the commission would not be opposed to this bill, since the commission is charged with the preservation and conservation of the state's fisheries and game.

But the reason for this is that the modern theory on fish is that the more you catch the more the lakes and streams produce.

It's almost impossible to overfish a stream.

At any rate, if Floyd's bill becomes law, there aren't too many fishermen who will take the time and trouble to catch a hundred bream, much less clean them.

Hunter Safety Bill

A hunter safety bill sponsored by Sen. J. C. Gilbert and Rep. Lasley Downes seems to have died a quiet death. The bill was written to encourage safety on the part of the hunters — to make hunters stop and think before they pull the trigger.

It's a good bill, in our opinion, and we hope it'll be pushed on through the legislative channels for final adoption.

Laws on the books cover negligence, that's true, but a law written specifically against negligent hunting accident is in order.

Gilbert so far has been successful with other wildlife bills — fines against the theft of dogs, fines against the sale or purchase of deer, the prohibiting of shooting deer from boats with motors attached.

Almost Through

The legislature is almost through for the current session and fortunately the systems for tagging deer, turkey and bear have not been abolished.

Bills were introduced to accomplish this, but none passed.

Sportsmen should continue to support the laws that require hunters to tag deer, turkey and bear after the kill.

Other Bills Pending

Other wildlife bills are pending as follows:

SB 26 by Sen. Martin to prohibit the killing of game behind a rail driven or pulled by a vehicle. It was passed by the Senate and is now in the House.

SB 85 by Sen. Jones to increase penalties for night hunting is now before the House.

HB 91 by Rep. Strother to prohibit the killing of doe deer in Allen Parish game refuge. This bill has passed the House, but faces trouble in the Senate.

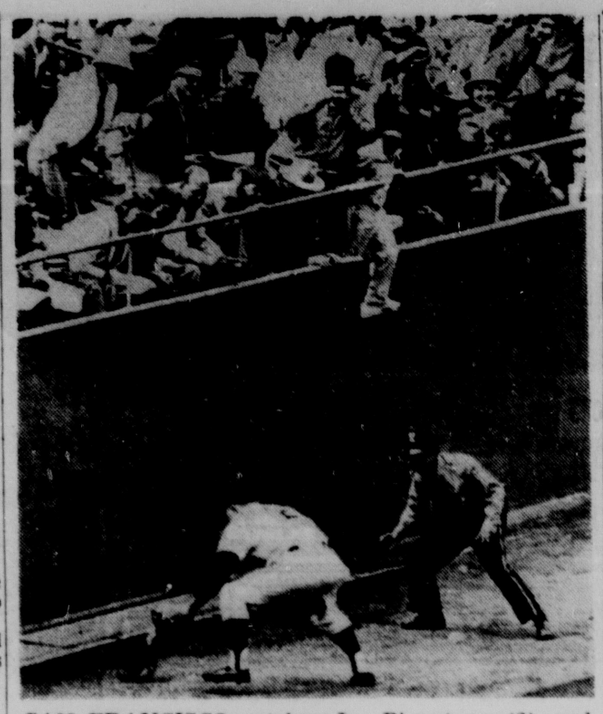

HB 167 by Rep. Fulco to abolish the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. This bill has been withdrawn.

HB 480 by Rep. Falgout to legalize slat traps is now before the House.

HB 704 by Rep. Bernard to eliminate landowners from being libel for hunting accidents on their property. The bill is still in the House and is in trouble.

HB 1189 by Rep. Dyson to authorize the commission to sell shell, sand, gravel from reefs and deposits passed the House and awaits committee action in the Senate.

SB 217 by Sen. Rappelet to permit the taking of 100 pounds of shrimp per boat for sports trawlers using 16 foot or smaller trawls. Now in the House.

SAN FRANCISCO catcher Joe Pignatano (2) and an unidentified park policeman appear to be trying a new dance step as they attempt to corner a fleeing chicken during the Giants-Dodger game at Candlestick Park in San Francisco Saturday. The chicken eluded the two, but was finally cornered in the Giants' bull pen. San Francisco whipped Los Angeles, 10-3, to take over first place in the National League. (AP Wirephoto)

Coaches All-Star Tilts Coming Up

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana's finest prep athletes will assemble here later this month for a week's concentrated preparation for the annual Louisiana High School Coaches' Association All-Star games, and indications are that a pair of evenly matched contests will be offered in basketball and football.

The games, held in conjunction with the Louisiana High School Coaches' Association football and basketball clinics, climax the high school careers of some of the state's top schoolboy stars. The basketball game will be played Tuesday, July 31 and the football game is slated for Memorial Stadium Thursday, August 2.

Coaching the East All - Star basketballers will be Reed Perilloux of Colfax while Jimmy Bates of Athens will lead the West. Coaches James E. Brown of AAA champion Istrouma, C. G. Felder of Kentwood and Eddie Harelson of Jennings will form the brain trust for the East football team and the West will be headed by Racer Holstead of Tallulah, Jack Doland of Sulphur and Mike Lyle of Oberlin.

According to rosters released Saturday by association secretary T. H. "Muddy" Waters, size and speed are the keynote of the All-Star selectees.

Coach Perilloux will have a tall cage team headed by 6-6 Harry Heroman of Baton Rouge's Lee High, 6-5 Ted Waters of Hammond and 6-5 Ronnie Register of Port Allen. In addition, talented New Orleans stars Charles Brandt of Nichols, Sidney Alexander of De La Salle and Art Reif of McDonough should help the cause. Other East starts are David Neal, Chalmette; James Little, French Settlement; Cecil Lavergne, Leonville; Henry Gaudet, Romeville; Terrell Bourgeois, Gonzales, and Robert Meeker, Colfax.

The West hoopsters will feature super - stars Don Henry of Athens and Barry Haynie of Ringgold. Haynie, a 6-5 jumping jack, was an outstanding player at Ringgold for the past three years while Henry was one of the most sought-after Louisiana prep stars in recent years.

Other West players will be Dwight Carpenter, Athens; Ken Lyons, Sulphur; Ken Arthur, Natchitoches; Calvin Fluitt, Gueydan; Joe Moore, Fair Park of Shreveport; Deane McKinley, Byrd of Shreveport; Charles Mins, LaGrange of Lake Charles; Frank Brown, Oakdale, and Dennis Alexander, Bossier City. The West will add one more player to its roster since one of the selections, Charles Shuffield of Ruston, has moved from the state and will not play.

Players selected for the football classic follow the pattern of other All-Star squads — big, fast and strong. Arnold Cannon, a 225-pound tackle from Byrd of Shreveport and 230 - pound center George Lobrano head the West beef trust. Connie Marie Wheeler Becomes Bride Of Nathaniel Ragland Troy Saturday

Hotel Guests Urged To Snoop On Departure

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —Be the snoopy kind when checking out of a hotel at vacation's end.

Get down on all fours and look under the beds.

Your chances of finding a slipper or handkerchief are excellent. Other times, the prize might include one beach clog or one earring or the heel cushions from your dress pumps.

While at the low level, look under all the other furniture. Chances are your effort will be rewarded with a coin or two, a lipstick, a nail file—yours, of course!

You might even spot something odd that doesn't belong to you. Tell the hotel management if such occurs.

Alan Mald, dispenser of the "search before you check out" advice, said in an interview that his hotel was most grateful recently when a guest following the look-before-you - leave formula reported seeing a turtle under a dresser.

"We retrieved the turtle," he said in an interview, "and were happy to have it handy when a harassed mother called from the airport nearby. The creature belonged to her son. We arranged a reunion."

Mald, general manager of the El San Juan Hotel in Puerto Rico, said that the forgetful patrons are so common that he has instituted the check-out checklist to make sure guests remove all their possessions when they remove themselves.

Women are the most forgetful, Mald said better than 50 per cent of the females leave something behind. The most common item: A shower cap.

Male guests most frequently forget to retrieve their razors or electric razor cords.

The most unlikely to be forgotten possessions left behind in the San Juan hotel during the last year included a diamond-loaded jewel case — and a Schnauzer pooch. The latter was found snoozing under a bed.

And the jewel case? It had been tucked far back in a dresser drawer — too far back to be seen in a hasty check-out.

Mald said it isn't a bad idea to prepare a check list as you pack at home. Use it to take an inventory before leaving the hotel at vacation's end.

Mald tries to practice what he preaches. But on a recent trip to New York, his wife left a hat box in the hotel lobby.

"The hotel air-freighted it to us in San Juan," he said.

WHAT'S NEW

United Press International

New for hanging assorted household items from cutlery to tie racks, a double - coated pressure foam tape. The tape first is stuck to the object to be hung, and then the object and tape are stuck to a wall, door, mirror or other surface. The manufacturer says the adhesive on both sides of the tape enables even heavy objects to be stuck in place and used immediately, without waiting for the adhesive to develop further strength. The tape is being introduced to consumers with a line of kitchen utensils. Otherwise, it will be available initially only to commercial users.

MR. AND MRS. GARY WAYNE WHITE

White-Jones Vows Read

Miss Mary Kathryn Jones, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Eldridge Jones, Bastrop, and Gary Wayne White, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. White, also of Bastrop, exchanged wedding vows Thursday, June 28 at 7 p.m. in the Second Baptist Church. Rev. Don Bowman officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Tall baskets of white gladioli and pots of fern, interspersed with white tapers in branched candelabra entwined with ivy, formed a setting at the altar. White satin bows and sprigs of ivy marked family pews.

Miss Patsy Fleming, organist, presented a concert of wedding music and accompanied Miss Anne Hohman who sang "O Promise Me," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, styled with portrait neckline and capped sleeves. Appliques of lace etched in pearls and sequins adorned the bodice. Back of the gown featured a bustle effect and the full skirt swept into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a jeweled tiara. She carried a cascade arrangement of yucca blossoms.

Mrs. Johnny Jones served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Dottie Kay Messinger, Miss Monica Chamberlain, Miss Nancy Becton and Mrs. Camille Domino. They wore identical gowns of orchid crystalline taffeta with belled skirts featuring back ruffle detail; matching slippers and white lace mitts. Their headpieces were short veils held in place by circlets of white taffeta and they carried bouquets of orchid gladioli.

Harvey White attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Johnny White, James Parker, Mike White and Eddie Fair.

Mrs. Jones chose for her daughter's wedding a beige silk sheath with cocoa embroidery, matching accessories and a white corsage. The bridegroom's mother, wore a mauve lace dress with matching slippers and white sequin hat, and a white corsage.

A reception was held in the social room of the church following the ceremony. White blossoms and baskets of fern decorated the room. The table was covered with an imported lace cloth. A centerpiece of white gladioli, stock and yucca graced the table where punch was served from a crystal bowl. Mrs. James Jones served the wedding cake. Tea girls were Miss Patsy Hughes and Miss Rita Bounds. A memory candle with yucca blooms and fern at the base, graced the table where Miss Kathy Monney presided at the bride's book.

For a wedding trip to Florida the bride changed into a tangerine ensemble with white accessories and the corsage from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home in Bastrop.

Connie Marie Wheeler Becomes Bride Of Nathaniel Ragland Troy Saturday

Gold altar vases holding arrangements of white California ruffled gladioli and agapanthus and gold candelabra holding cathedral tapers formed a setting in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church for the wedding Saturday, July 7, of Miss Connie Marie Wheeler and Nathaniel Ragland Troy. Father David Dabria performed the double ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Echard Wheeler Sr., 216 Lakeshore Drive and Mr. Troy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matthew Troy Sr., 404 Loop Road, Monroe.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a Bianchi gown of white peau de soie, styled with close fitted bodice with short sleeves and shallow square neckline notched in front above a flat self bow. The draped demi-belled skirt was caught up at the hipline in two folds which formed a tiered low pointed peplum in back from which swept the full court train. Her wrist length bouffant veil of silk illusion was attached to a miniature pillbox of peau de soie. She wore full length white kid gloves and carried a bouquet of white spathaphilium. A single strand of matched pearls worn by the bride was a gift of the bridtgroom.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Troy, wore a seafoam green silk chiffon gown with ripple cape collar and cascades of tiers down the back. Her hat was of matching chiffon and pearls and she wore bone accessories and a corsage of white japhet orchids.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. In the entrance was an antique cupid epergne filled with white stock, lily of the Nile and miniature chrysanthemums. The reception room, overlooking the bayou, was highlighted by a lighted water fountain.

CAKE TABLES

The bride's cake table was covered with a white organdy cloth, garlanded with bridal smilax and the refreshment table, also covered in white organdy had as its central decor an arrangement of stock, lilies of the Nile and autantum lilies in a silver and crystal epergne. A glass top wrought iron table with an arrangement of native foliage and white chrysanthemums reflecting through the base, held the groom's cake. Hotel Guests Urged To Snoop On Departure

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —Be the snoopy kind when checking out of a hotel at vacation's end.

Get down on all fours and look under the beds.

Your chances of finding a slipper or handkerchief are excellent. Other times, the prize might include one beach clog or one earring or the heel cushions from your dress pumps.

While at the low level, look under all the other furniture. Chances are your effort will be rewarded with a coin or two, a lipstick, a nail file—yours, of course!

You might even spot something odd that doesn't belong to you. Tell the hotel management if such occurs.

Alan Mald, dispenser of the "search before you check out" advice, said in an interview that his hotel was most grateful recently when a guest following the look-before-you - leave formula reported seeing a turtle under a dresser.

"We retrieved the turtle," he said in an interview, "and were happy to have it handy when a harassed mother called from the airport nearby. The creature belonged to her son. We arranged a reunion."

Mald, general manager of the El San Juan Hotel in Puerto Rico, said that the forgetful patrons are so common that he has instituted the check-out checklist to make sure guests remove all their possessions when they remove themselves.

Women are the most forgetful. Mald said better than 50 per cent of the females leave something behind. The most common item: A shower cap.

Male guests most frequently forget to retrieve their razors or electric razor cords.

The most unlikely to be forgotten possessions left behind in the San Juan hotel during the last year included a diamond-loaded jewel case — and a Schnauzer pooch. The latter was found snoozing under a bed.

And the jewel case? It had been tucked far back in a dresser drawer — too far back to be seen in a hasty check-out.

Mald said it isn't a bad idea to prepare a check list as you pack at home. Use it to take an inventory before leaving the hotel at vacation's end.

Mald tries to practice what he preaches. But on a recent trip to New York, his wife left a hat box in the hotel lobby.

"The hotel air-freighted it to us in San Juan," he said.

WHAT'S NEW

United Press International

New for hanging assorted household items from cutlery to tie racks: a double - coated pressure foam tape. The tape first is stuck to the object to be hung, and then the object and tape are stuck to a wall, door, mirror or other surface. The manufacturer says the adhesive on both sides of the tape enables even heavy objects to be stuck in place and used immediately, without waiting for the adhesive to develop further strength. The tape is being introduced to consumers with a line of kitchen utensils. Otherwise, it will be available initially only to commercial users.

Miss Mary Kathryn Jones, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Eldridge Jones, Bastrop, and Gary Wayne White, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. White, also of Bastrop, exchanged wedding vows Thursday, June 28 at 7 p.m. in the Second Baptist Church. Rev. Don Bowman officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Tall baskets of white gladioli and pots of fern, interspersed with white tapers in branched candelabra entwined with ivy, formed a setting at the altar. White satin bows and sprigs of ivy marked family pews.

Miss Patsy Fleming, organist, presented a concert of wedding music and accompanied Miss Anne Hohman who sang "O Promise Me," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, styled with portrait neckline and capped sleeves. Appliques of lace etched in pearls and sequins adorned the bodice. Back of the gown featured a bustle effect and the full skirt swept into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a jeweled tiara. She carried a cascade arrangement of yucca blossoms.

Mrs. Johnny Jones served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Dottie Kay Messinger, Miss Monica Chamberlain, Miss Nancy Becton and Mrs. Camille Domino. They wore identical gowns of orchid crystalline taffeta with belled skirts featuring back ruffle detail; matching slippers and white lace mitts. Their headpieces were short veils held in place by circlets of white taffeta and they carried bouquets of orchid gladioli.

Harvey White attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Johnny White, James Parker, Mike White and Eddie Fair.

Mrs. Jones chose for her daughter's wedding a beige silk sheath with cocoa embroidery, matching accessories and a white corsage. The bridegroom's mother, wore a mauve lace dress with matching slippers and white sequin hat, and a white corsage.

A reception was held in the social room of the church following the ceremony. White blossoms and baskets of fern decorated the room. The table was covered with an imported lace cloth. A centerpiece of white gladioli, stock and yucca graced the table where punch was served from a crystal bowl. Mrs. James Jones served the wedding cake. Tea girls were Miss Patsy Hughes and Miss Rita Bounds. A memory candle with yucca blooms and fern at the base, graced the table where Miss Kathy Monney presided at the bride's book.

For a wedding trip to Florida the bride changed into a tangerine ensemble with white accessories and the corsage from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home in Bastrop.

Better In And Out

Finding room in the kitchen for a new electric refrigerator-freezer is not the problem homemakers may fear. Since modern electric refrigerators - freezers are constructed with thinner walls, thanks to more efficient insulation, they can provide much more food storage space than older models, without occupying a larger floor area.

Leather Is Fashion--From Head To Toe

NEW YORK — Leather is fashion this fall.

You'll see it in the flash of a polished leather pump on a well turned ankle, in the swing of a suede leather coat, in the tilt of a grained leather pillbox. You'll wear it by day in a crushed leather belt, you'll carry it by night in a lustre leather clutch, you'll drive in it at all hours in pigskin gloves.

These were the highlights of a preview of fall fashions presented here by Leather Industries of America.

Seen among the array of new feminine shoes were a variety of new strap shoes, D'Orsay cut pumps, boots and bootlets, as well as flats and walking shoes. Adding depth to this greater-than-usual selection of styles was a wide range of leather textures — grain, smooth, polished, suede and patent leather, as well as some reptile trim. Combinations of several leather textures were scattered through the array, while colors also tended to come in groups.

COLOR RANGE

Black with at least one other hue will be very popular in daytime shoes, while evening pumps will frequently show the same color in two different textures such as suede and patent leather or suede and polished leather. Scalloped, dipping and uneven toplines add a new footnote, while slender leather soles set off snipped, rounded and pointed toes. The brown to beige range of leather colors will be followed in popularity by greens, scarlet and yellow-gold.

Suede leather and smooth share the fashion sun in coats and jackets that hug the figure or flare at the skirt.

Both carried cascade bouquets of white daisies.

William Michael Word attended the bridegroom as best man and ushers were John Griffin Lofton and R. F. Wilson.

The bride's mother wore a beige linen dress embroidered in brown with beige accessories and the bridegroom's mother was wearing blue linen with beige accessories. Both had corsages of white carnations.

RECEPTION

A reception was held in the social room of the church, where the bride's table, covered in white linen was centered with a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The guest book table was covered with a beige lace cloth and adorned with two candles, encircled by layers of illusion and daisies. Miss Ann Grafton presided at the guest book. Miss Linda Lane and Miss Sandra Vigg served the wedding cake and alternating at the punch bowl were Miss Judy Swayze and Miss DeLane Cooper.

For a wedding trip to Vicksburg, the bride changed to a green cotton satin frock with white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home at 4210 DeSiard.

Mrs. James graduated from Ouachita Parish High School and is presently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. The bridegroom also graduated from Ouachita high school, attended Northeast and is now employed in Monroe.

Better In And Out

Finding room in the kitchen for a new electric refrigerator-freezer is not the problem homemakers may fear. Since modern electric refrigerators - freezers are constructed with thinner walls, thanks to more efficient insulation, they can provide much more food storage space than older models, without occupying a larger floor area.

MRS. ROBERT SMITH CLARK

Linda Katharine Hill Marries California Man

In a double ring ceremony at the First Methodist Church in Bastrop, Miss Linda Katharine Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Fleming Hill of Bastrop and Robert Smith Clark of San Francisco, Calif., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith Clark of Winchester, Mass., exchanged wedding vows.

Rev. Robert L. Peyton performed the ceremony on Saturday, June 23 at 4 p.m. before the altar which was decorated with white tapers among massive arrangements of palms, fern and white stock. Clusters of fern and stock marked the pews.

She wore short white gloves and carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH was as glorious as ever in these parts, with gatherings both large and small, by land and water. Celebrations were family-size private parties or a community-size gala such as we had going all day in Forsythe park or any size in between.

Several parties for the younger set brightened the week's calendar, with out of town visitors here for the Fourth. On Friday last, AMANDA COBB was hostess at luncheon honoring MIDGE PHILLIPS, here from Richardson, Texas. The guests gathered in Bayou DeSiard country club's private dining room, which was decorated with a pyramid arrangement of pink gladioli and roses in a darker shade. Pale pink roses centered the table, where places were marked for twenty guests.

Midge spent last weekend in Marion with SUE and ARTIS PHILLIPS, and was in town again on Tuesday for an overnight trip up the river on the Ben Cobbs' boat. The party returned to Monroe late in the afternoon of the Fourth. Midge will be here several weeks with her grandmother, LEONORE KELLER.

Honoring her visitor, MISSY MITCHELL of Opelousas, CARROLL HUSTED entertained with a conversational hour at home on Tuesday afternoon. Twenty members of the junior high set were invited for a visit with the honoree and games in the yard. A patriotic theme was carried out in red, white, and blue decorations.

On the buffet table, rockets and flags were used with red, white, and blue carnations in a white container. Bottled soft drinks were served with cookies and sandwiches.

On Friday, ANN TERZIA and WAVA FRAZER invited a group of Missy's friends for an informal morning party at the Frazer home. Guests came in play clothes for badminton in the back yard or record playing and cards on the porch. Bottled drinks were iced in a black kettle decorated with ivy and daisies. On the refreshment table was a wicker basket lined with a bandanna handkerchief and filled with daisies. Bandanna napkins completed the appointments. About twenty girls attended.

Here from Plaquemine over the Fourth was BITSY M'HENRY NADLER and her children BILL, NEAL, and GENNY, who were guests of her parents, the NEAL M'HENRYS on the Columbia road.

On Tuesday MARY M'HENRY invited a group of old friends for luncheon with Bitsy at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table on the porch was centered with a bouquet of pink roses in a cut glass bowl. Melon ball cocktail, broiled chicken, broccoli, and a choice of desserts comprised the menu served to nine guests.

A group of friends who graduated from Neville together were reunited at a luncheon given by HELEN ALLEN at the Paragon last Thursday. Guest of honor was EVELYN JANE CRITES, here from Yakima, Washington, visiting her parents, the D. CURTIS SMITHS. Red gladioli decorated the luncheon table. Others present included IRMA GEORGE, MARTHA EDMONDSON, JOYCE KELLOGG and ROSEANN FRAZIER.

Joyce's compliment to Evelyn Jane was luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club on Tuesday at noon. The table in the private dining room was centered with a wicker bird cage filled with daisies, yellow chrysanthemums, and ivy. Green glasses completed the appointments. There were eight guests.

□ □ □

Newcomers JUDY and JIMMY WOODRUFF were honored at a festive Fourth of July party given at their camp Wednesday by the JOE DIXONS. Guests arriving in mid-afternoon found the flag flying overhead and red, white and blue decorations throughout the camp. One arrangement featured bottle rockets with red crepe myrtle, and another Roman candles and flags . . . Barbecued hamburgers with potato salad, homemade ice cream and Brownies were served later on red plates at tables covered with blue and white checked cloths. Red and white candles were used with flags on the buffet. Twenty guests attended this party.

Also honoring Judy Woodruff was the luncheon given Thursday by TOMMIE SUE SARTOR and JEANNE DOWNING at Bayou DeSiard country club. A blue and silver theme was carried out in table appointments, using blue hydrangeas with white phlox in a silver bowl and silver goblets at each place. A trisalad plate with fresh fruit was served with hot cheese rolls to twelve guests.

An annual party for eight couples and their children is held each Fourth of July at the home of BYRNIE and BILL SMITH. Each family brings a dish or two to contribute to the picnic lunch, which is spread for all-day nibbling. The menu includes fried chicken, potato salad, ham and such specialties as JAYNE PEARCE's angel food cake and ALICE CARBREY's decorated muffins. Croquet and badminton games are set up in the Smith's yard, with swimming and water skiing on the bayou also on schedule.

Speaking of parties on the water, there was the housewarming given by friends for the ALLEN BARHAMS last Friday night. A group of some fourteen couples surprised the honorees, arriving by boat at the Barham bayou bank. The "guests" brought their own refreshments and a house present, a charcoal cooker which Allen had had his eye on.

An outdoor party was given by the ED SEYMOURS JR. in the home of the elder Seymours on the evening of the Fourth. Flags decorated the yard, where guests gathered for a dip in the pool. Supper was served from a buffet decorated with white phlox in a straw hat. The menu for forty guests included chicken spaghetti, combination salad, French bread, Brownies, and coffee.

Leaving on the Fourth for a flying trip to Hawaii were GAIL and CARL KINNEY. They will be guests at the Hawaiian Village in Honolulu and plan to be away about ten days.

Saturday evening will mark the official opening of Bayou DeSiard country club's elegant new ballroom, to be celebrated with a mid-summer formal dance. The party will begin at seven, with drinks and hors d'oeuvres to be served until nine o'clock. Billy Williams and his orchestra will play for dancing from nine until one, with breakfast available after midnight. Price of the party is ten dollars per couple, including social hour, dance, and breakfast.

Here is a poem by Bonnie May Malody, a year 'round poem which seems particularly appropriate for summer, the children's season. "A Boy Who Is Never Alone

Adventure goes where he goes—
It tangles in his hair
Puts freckles on his peeling nose
Or wags beside his chair
It slithers, harmless, through the grass
And makes his sister scream—
Or lifts his kites so high they pass
His rivals' At the stream
Adventure flirts a tail and fin
The minute he appears
Someday he'll catch and put it in

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH was as glorious as ever in these parts, with gatherings both large and small, by land and water. Celebrations were family-size private parties or a community-size gala such as we had going all day in Forsythe park or any size in between.

Several parties for the younger set brightened the week's calendar, with out of town visitors here for the Fourth. On Friday last, AMANDA COBB was hostess at luncheon honoring MIDGE PHILLIPS, here from Richardson, Texas. The guests gathered in Bayou DeSiard country club's private dining room, which was decorated with a pyramid arrangement of pink gladioli and roses in a darker shade. Pale pink roses centered the table, where places were marked for twenty guests.

Midge spent last weekend in Marion with SUE and ARTIS PHILLIPS, and was in town again on Tuesday for an overnight trip up the river on the Ben Cobbs' boat. The party returned to Monroe late in the afternoon of the Fourth. Midge will be here several weeks with her grandmother, LEONORE KELLER.

Honoring her visitor, MISSY MITCHELL of Opelousas, CARROLL HUSTED entertained with a conversational hour at home on Tuesday afternoon. Twenty members of the junior high set were invited for a visit with the honoree and games in the yard. A patriotic theme was carried out in red, white, and blue decorations . . . On the buffet table, rockets and flags were used with red, white, and blue carnations in a white container. Bottled soft drinks were served with cookies and sandwiches.

On Friday, ANN TERZIA and WAVA FRAZER invited a group of Missy's friends for an informal morning party at the Frazer home. Guests came in play clothes for badminton in the back yard or record playing and cards on the porch. Bottled drinks were iced in a black kettle decorated with ivy and daisies. On the refreshment table was a wicker basket lined with a bandanna handkerchief and filled with daisies. Bandanna napkins completed the appointments. About twenty girls attended.

Here from Plaquemine over the Fourth was BITSY M'HENRY NADLER and her children, BILL, NEAL, and GENNY, who were guests of her parents, the NEAL M'HENRYS on the Columbia road . . . On Tuesday MARY M'HENRY invited a group of old friends for luncheon with Bitsy at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table on the porch was centered with a bouquet of pink roses in a cut glass bowl. Melon ball cocktail, broiled chicken, broccoli, and a choice of desserts comprised the menu served to nine guests.

A group of friends who graduated from Neville together were reunited at a luncheon given by HELEN ALLEN at the Paragon last Thursday. Guest of honor was EVELYN JANE CRITES, here from Yakima, Washington, visiting her parents, the D. CURTIS SMITHS. Red gladioli decorated the luncheon table. Others present included IRMA GEORGE, MARTHA EDMONDSON, JOYCE KELLOGG and ROSEANN FRAZIER.

Joyce's compliment to Evelyn Jane was luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club on Tuesday at noon. The table in the private dining room was centered with a wicker bird cage filled with daisies, yellow chrysanthemums, and ivy. Green glasses completed the appointments. There were eight guests.

□ □ □

Newcomers JUDY and JIMMY WOODRUFF were honored at a festive Fourth of July party given at their camp Wednesday by the JOE DIXONS. Guests arriving in mid-afternoon found the flag flying overhead and red, white and blue decorations throughout the camp. One arrangement featured bottle rockets with red crepe myrtle; and another Roman candles and flags . . . Barbecued hamburgers with potato salad, homemade ice cream and Brownies were served later on red plates at tables covered with blue and white checked cloths. Red and white candles were used with flags on the buffet. Twenty guests attended this party.

Also honoring Judy Woodruff was the luncheon given Thursday by TOMMIE SUE SARTOR and JEANNE DOWNING at Bayou DeSiard country club. A blue and silver theme was carried out in table appointments, using blue hydrangeas with white phlox in a silver bowl and silver goblets at each place. A trisalad plate with fresh fruit was served with hot cheese rolls to twelve guests.

An annual party for eight couples and their children is held each Fourth of July at the home of BYRNIE and BILL SMITH. Each family brings a dish or two to contribute to the picnic lunch, which is spread for all-day nibbling. The menu includes fried chicken, potato salad, ham and such specialties as JAYNE PEARCE's angel food cake and ALICE CARBREY's decorated muffins. Croquet and badminton games are set up in the Smith's yard, with swimming and water skiing on the bayou also on schedule.

Speaking of parties on the water, there was the housewarming given by friends for the ALLEN BARHAMS last Friday night. A group of some fourteen couples surprised the honorees, arriving by boat at the Barham bayou bank. The "guests" brought their own refreshments, and a house present: a charcoal cooker which Allen had had his eye on.

An outdoor party was given by the ED SEYMOURS JR., in the home of the elder Seymours on the evening of the Fourth. Flags decorated the yard, where guests gathered for a dip in the pool. Supper was served from a buffet decorated with white phlox in a straw hat. The menu for forty guests included chicken spaghetti, combination salad, French bread, Brownies, and coffee.

Leaving on the Fourth for a flying trip to Hawaii were GAIL and CARL KINNEY. They will be guests at the Hawaiian Village in Honolulu, and plan to be away about ten days.

Saturday evening will mark the official opening of Bayou DeSiard country club's elegant new ballroom, to be celebrated with a mid-summer formal dance. The party will begin at seven, with drinks and hors d'oeuvres to be served until nine o'clock. Billy Williams and his orchestra will play for dancing from nine until one, with breakfast available after midnight. Price of the party is ten dollars per couple, including social hour, dance, and breakfast.

Here is a poem by Bonnie May Malody, a year - round poem which seems particularly appropriate for summer, the children's season. "A Boy Who Is Never Alone":

Adventure goes where he goes—
It tangles in his hair,
Puts freckles on his peeling nose
Or wags beside his chair.
It slithers, harmless, through the grass
And makes his sister scream—
Or lifts his kites so high they pass
His rivals'. At the stream.
Adventure flirts a tail and fin
The minute he appears.
(Someday he'll catch and put it in His bucket.) Past his ears
Adventure whistles in November,
Cold and slightly blue.
Capped and ear-muffed in December,
He goes whistling too.
Adventure walks where he walks,
Grows taller as he grows;
Fielding thunder, racing hawks,—
I wonder if he knows?

Colonial Style Homes

Wood panel doors were a basic feature of Colonial American homes. Today architects specify panel doors for the Colonial style homes they design, but they needn't be custom made as they were in years gone by.

Building material dealers carry stock panel doors of ponderosa pine that exactly duplicate the designs created by Colonial craftsmen. They come in a wide variety of designs and sizes and are ready to install and paint or stain.

Colonial Style Homes

Wood panel doors were a basic feature of Colonial American homes. Today architects specify panel doors for the Colonial style homes they design, but they needn't be custom made as they were in years gone by.

Building material dealers carry stock panel doors of ponderosa pine that exactly duplicate the designs created by Colonial craftsmen. They come in a wide variety of designs and sizes and are ready to install and paint or stain.

Vary Breakfast Fare With Fruit

To start the day off with a bright "good morning" include bananas as part of the most important meal of the day — breakfast. Bananas provide natural energy to give a real "wake up" feeling and they can perk up breakfast in a number of ways.

Try a sliced banana with cold orange and grapefruit sections—or split a banana and top with bright colored melon balls. Add a sliced banana to canned fruit cocktail, or for a dish that's practically a meal by itself, have a banana shake with milk and raspberries or strawberries.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The anatomy of the woman rules the fashion designers' thinking for fall, reports the New York couture group.

"The natural lines and curves of the body become the focus... the figure is no longer encased in a cocoon, a capsule or a free form shape," said the group, whose members represent many of the New York fashion industry's pace-setting designers.

"Words like 'lithe', 'lean', and 'seductive' will come back into fashion talk," the group continued. "Even the bulkiest of fabrics ..are arranged to be carefully figure-conscious somewhere —at a high bosom perhaps, or at a swagger-belted waistline."

The shape of clothes to come was outlined in the group's "watch for" roundup Saturday as it opened its 39th "Press Week" —a semi-annual event to give visiting reporters in a concentrated one week of fashion show highlights of new collections.

Event Almost Cancelled

The event, which began in 1942, almost was cancelled this summer because of differences among members.

Some resignations of top names such as Jane Derby and Christian Dior-New York have brought the group's membership down to 24, from its usual 30-plus.

But Eleanor Lambert, couture group press director, said Derby and Dior would show as auxiliary members. "Press Week" always has included auxiliaries such as the silk association, the millinery industry, accessories manufacturers, hair stylists and the cosmetics industry.

This year, Miss Lambert said, about 250 reporters from newspapers, television and radio are expected to register.

The group's "Watch For" roundup indicated that almost any fashion "mood" will fit the new season. It listed three—one, a precisely skinned-down mood with every hair in place, another, muffled, bloused, wrapped and dashing; and the third, a natural outline with bias cut, wide sleeves and full skirt "as soft and ammple as a classic Greek costume or a friar's habit."

Period Costumes Influence

Watch also for

- Period costume echoes of the directoire (1795-1800) in high-wrapped necks, foppish cutaways with velvet collars, high-shaped coats and dresses, capes both long and short; the Byzantine, (500-900) in richly embroidered and jewelled borders, tunics, deep-toned velvets; and the Russia of Catherine the Great in fur-bordered coats, jackets and dresses, in muffs, cassock jackets, and wide-flaring sleeves.

—Remembrance of the Picasso art exhibition in nine New York galleries last spring, showing mostly in colors such as sharp blues and greens, reds and oranges, odd browns.

—Little trimming except for fur, self-fabric and braid. Many more belts than in previous seasons.

—The widened shoulder and the squared back in most coats and suit jackets. All have a definite, fitted line at the front.

—Skirt interest of all descriptions. Slim and gathered, panelled, pleated, yoked, gored, bordered, flared, draped and circular.

—Foamy fabrics, thick yet light as eiderdown. Velvet makes a strong return. Other fabrics include tweeds, mohairs, brushed wools, boucles, puffy silk matelasse, wide ribbed ottoman and faille. Lacy, thick mohair shows for bare-topped evening dresses. Brocades, satins or metallic clothes are often combined with tweed or flannel.

—A patterned fall, with plaids, checks, paisleys and giant flowers everywhere in the collections.

Simplicity Is Keynote To Well-Dressed Look

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q What type of clothing will I need for a summer trip to the Scandinavian countries. I will be going by freighter.

A Light woolens and summer cottons can both be taken. Clothes for the ship can be simple, casual, with simply - styled dresses worn for dinner. Use three-piece suit and jacket - dress costumes which can meet variations in the weather. Take a top coat.

Q For a week's cruise to Nassau in July, what kind of clothes and how much should my husband and I take?

A Summer sport wear is what you'll need for the most part, with a summer suit for him and short semiformals for you. The evening dresses should be chiffon or similarly light material. Quantity should be based on what you would wear in a week at home, plus a few extras. Take sweater jackets or other small wraps.

Q For a trip to the West Coast in the summer, would a mink jacket be too warm as a wrap? Could a black crepe cocktail dress be used?

A The jacket may be too warm. If, however, you have worn it in current spring weather here, it is light enough for northern California. A black crepe can be worn at any time of year.

Q Having visited San Francisco once before, I remember that it was surprisingly cool during the summer. Now I'm planning to go at the same time, and take in the Seattle Fair as well. How should I plan my wardrobe?

A Plan it as if it were for spring in this climate, basing it on topcoat, suit which can shed its jacket to reveal overblouse and skirt. Use light wools, cotton knits, synthetics which travel well. Take sweater jackets or other wraps. Plan the clothes so that items can be shed or put on to meet weather changes.

Q What kind of clothing would be needed for a two weeks' train trip to Lake Louise and the Canadian Rockies?

A Weather there varies from hot and sunny middays to definitely cool mornings and evenings. Take your spring suits, topcoat, dress - jacket costumes, in medium fabrics such as light wools, cotton and synthetic knits. Shoes should be flat - heeled for walking, with one pair of pumps for dress. Small wraps will be useful. Clothes should have a smart country air, not look citified. Skirts and sweaters would do nicely, too.

Two years . . . maybe three . . . that's a lot to lift out of a boy's life and plunk down thousands of miles from Main Street. Especially when he's just 21 . . . maybe away from home for the first time.

MR. AND MRS. JACK E. MARTIN

Martin-Sones Wedding Held In Methodist Church

Baskets of white gladioli and fern, interspersed with seven branched candelabra entwined with greenery formed a setting in Stone Avenue Methodist Church for the wedding of Miss Rosemary Sones, West Monroe and Airman Second Class Jack E. Martin, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sones, 811 Arkansas Road, West Monroe, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ola Mae Tisdale, Leesville, and Carter W. Martin, Birmingham, Ala.

Rev. I. L. Yeager performed the double ring ceremony on June 23 at 6 p.m. Candles were lighted by Miss Janet Tisdale, sister of the groom and appropriate nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Carson Pridgen, organist and Mrs. P. L. Foreman, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was wearing a floor length gown of white lace, fashioned with long sleeves that tapered to points over the wrists, scalloped neckline traced with pearls and iridescent sequins and elongated waistline. The bouffant skirt featured six diamond shaped inserts of tulle, each of which were centered with reembroidered lace motifs. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was attached to a queen's crown of pearls and lace and she carried a bouquet of feathered white carnations and stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Billy Hearne, matron of honor and bridesmaids, Mrs. Jimmy Cordell and Miss Kay Dean, wore identical gowns of camellia pink silk organza, styled with full skirts and four tiny bows accenting the scoop necklines. They wore white organza bows with eyelash veils for headpieces and carried bouquets of pink carnations. Miss Judy Cummings, niece of the bride, served as flower girl, and wore a full - skirted frock of white cotton satin with cummerbund of camellia pink silk organza, a halo of white flowers and carried a white net and satin basket of rose petals.

Serving as best man for the bridegroom was Billy Hearne and ushers were Louis Price and Leon Price. Wayne Gray acted as ringbearer.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Social Room of the First National Bank in West Monroe. The bride's mother received wearing a gown of gray lace over pink taffeta with pink accessories and corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a blue silk sheath with accessories to match and a pink carnation corsage.

Covered with a white cutwork cloth the bride's table held a central arrangement of pink carnations. Mrs. Billie Harrell and Mrs. Lowery Herrington poured pink punch from a crystal bowl and Mrs. Shelby Braley and Mrs. Robert Willett served the wedding cake. Mrs. Herrington also had charge of the guest book at the church.

For travel when the couple left for Montgomery, Ala., where they will be at home, the bride was wearing a blue and white embroidered eyelet sheath with blue accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

She is a graduate of West Monroe High School and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston. Mr. Martin graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and is presently with the U. S. Air Force, stationed at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery.

ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Martha Allan Balch, daughter of Angus A. Balch and the late Mrs. Balch of Swartz to Clifford Carl Ramsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ramsey, also of Swartz, is announced today by her father. Vows will be exchanged September 7 at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Swartz with Rev. H. M. Roach officiating.

MISS GINNY WILLIAMSON's engagement to Jim Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Melvin Brown of Tallulah, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cordes Earl Williamson, Tallulah. The wedding will take place in the First Baptist Church in Tallulah, July 28 at 6:30 p.m. with Rev. Oster R. Daniels officiating. Miss Williamson and her fiance are both students at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Watson, Page Reunited In The 'Carnival'

The couple first met when Miss Watson was starring in the London production of "West Side Story." When she signed for the national touring company of "Carnival," Page also joined the show.

When she replaced Anna Maria Alberghetti in the New York troupe, however, he had to continue on tour. He finally obtained a transfer as a replacement for George Marcy — who left to appear in West Coast production of "West Side Story."

Team Of Nichols And May Back

NEW YORK (AP) — The comedy team of Mike Nichols and Elaine May returns to Broadway next season in altered shape.

Nichols will portray the lead role in "A Matter of Position," a play written by Miss May as her first White Way venture. Fred Coe is to produce and also direct the entertainment.

Miss May describes the work as concerning "a man who cannot bear NOT to be liked by everybody."

Crosby, Hope In New 'Road' Picture Here

After nine years Norman Panama and Melvin Frank wrote, produced and directed a new "road" picture—seventh in the famous series—and succeeded in getting Bing Crosby and Bob Hope to stay in the same place at the same time long enough to film the comedy.

Co-starring Joan Collins, Robert Morley—and their special cup of tea, Dorothy Lamour (without whom the boys haven't hit a road in 21 years) "The Road to Hong Kong" opens Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre, through United Artists release.

As usual, Bing and Bob play a couple of con-men singing and dancing their way around the world ("Teamwork").

PURSUIT OF LOOT

This time, their pursuit of loot takes them to India, Hong Kong, the bottom of the ocean . . . and the top of the stratosphere. Filmed in Shepperton Studios, in London, "The Road to Hong Kong" required a fantastic array of costumes and sets, including a Tibetan Lamasery and a distant planet.

For the underwater headquarters of Bad Guy Robert Morley's Third Echelon, 30,000 pounds of scientific equipment was built and installed. That's what it cost—not what it weighed. The myriad of winking and blinking lights, electric-eye doors and hatches were used for 'sight' gags.

Above ground, the crowded streets of Hong Kong were also built, on another stage. Houses, shops, rickshaws, stalls, fruitshops all recreated the confusion of this exotic city. To animate the scenes filmed there, 300 extras were recruited from London's Chinese.

WINNING TEAM

The multiple award winning team of Sammy Cahn and Jimmy van Heusen wrote five new musical numbers for "The Road to Hong Kong," which was sung by Bing, Bob, Dottie and Joan. Academy Award winning Jack Hildyard ("Bridge on the River Kwai") was in charge of the photography with special effects done by Wally Veevers and Ted Samuels.

Not billed, several surprise guest stars popped in and out of the film, including two special friends who candidly explain their appearance in the final scene by saying "We heard you were having trouble finding an end to this picture, so we flew over to help out." This is exactly what had happened!!

Dancing Troupe Of Ivory Coast Will Visit U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) —A troupe of dancers and musicians from Africa's Ivory Coast are to visit the U. S. next year.

Representatives of 78 tribes are to be included in the group which is being organized by Thomas Skelton, a graduate student at New York University.

"One of the big problems," Skelton said, "is taking these people from farms and villages and giving them a knowledge of stage presence without making them self-conscious."

SAYS CRAWFORD

Taylor, Monroe Pair Of Children

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Academy Award winner Joan Crawford says glamorous stars Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe are a pair of "children."

Miss Monroe recently was fired from the movie "Something's Got To Give" after repeatedly failing to report for work. The picture later was shelved when Dean Martin refused to appear in it without Miss Monroe.

The beautiful Miss Taylor has been criticized for her actions on the set of "Cleopatra" in Rome. She separated from her husband Eddie Fisher and has been keeping company with "Cleopatra" co-star Richard Burton.

Miss Crawford, a star before either Liz or Marilyn stood before a camera, feels neither actress is behaving like a leading lady.

"Marilyn and Liz are of an age to be women, but unfortunately for them and the people around them, they're children," Joan said.

"I was proud to be part of this industry when Marilyn was fired. I don't think she has a friend. She hasn't taken time to make a friend in this industry. And many people have tried to befriend her.

"And the same with Liz, she's a taker, not a giver. I was raised at the same studio, Metro Goldwin Mayer, and pampered as much as she was. But I didn't take it for granted, ever."

Miss Crawford, who is costarring with Robert Stack in "The Caretakers," said she didn't believe either Marilyn or Liz had enough box office drawing power to warrant their temperamental conduct.

"I think Miss Monroe deserved what she got," Miss Crawford said. "And Miss Taylor deserves the same but nobody has guts enough to fire her. But she'll get it. Liz can get what Liz wants only so long."

Besides "Caretakers," Miss Crawford has two more pictures scheduled, "The Lady in a Cage" and "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane," the latter costarring Bette Davis.

Spook Show Set Friday At Paramount

The Paramount Theatre will present a special "Spook Show" for one performance only beginning at 11:30 p.m. Friday. The special horror show will include two films, "The Headless Ghost," and "Night of The Blood Beast."

The lucky number for this day will be 13 as Ted Hatfield, theatre manager, said anyone having 13 letters in his name, as listed on the social security card, will be admitted free. Every 13th box of jumbo popcorn will contain a free ticket to a future movie.

The Friday-the-13th "Spook Show" will also be the time to collect black cats. The theatre management will accept as free admission any live black cat the night of the show. Patrons are cautioned not to allow any variety of dog in the vicinity of the theatre during this attraction.

The couple first met when Miss Watson was starring in the London production of "West Side Story." When she signed for the national touring company of "Carnival," Page also joined the show.

When she replaced Anna Maria Alberghetti in the New York troupe, however, he had to continue on tour. He finally obtained a transfer as a replacement for George Marcy — who left to appear in West Coast production of "West Side Story."

Team Of Nichols And May Back

NEW YORK (AP) — The comedy team of Mike Nichols and Elaine May returns to Broadway next season in altered shape.

Nichols will portray the lead role in "A Matter of Position," a play written by Miss May as her first White Way venture. Fred Coe is to produce and also direct the entertainment.

Miss May describes the work as concerning "a man who cannot bear NOT to be liked by everybody."

Crosby, Hope In New 'Road' Picture Here

After nine years Norman Panama and Melvin Frank wrote, produced and directed a new "road" picture—seventh in the famous series—and succeeded in getting Bing Crosby and Bob Hope to stay in the same place at the same time long enough to film the comedy.

Co-starring Joan Collins, Robert Morley—and their special cup of tea, Dorothy Lamour (without whom the boys haven't hit a road in 21 years) "The Road to Hong Kong" opens Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre, through United Artists release.

As usual, Bing and Bob play a couple of con-men singing and dancing their way around the world ("Teamwork").

PURSUIT OF LOOT

This time, their pursuit of loot takes them to India, Hong Kong, the bottom of the ocean . . . and the top of the stratosphere. Filmed in Shepperton Studios, in London, "The Road to Hong Kong" required a fantastic array of costumes and sets, including a Tibetan Lamasery and a distant planet.

For the underwater headquarters of Bad Guy Robert Morley's Third Echelon, 30,000 pounds of scientific equipment was built and installed. That's what it cost—not what it weighed. The myriad of winking and blinking lights, electric-eye doors and hatches were used for 'sight' gags.

Above ground, the crowded streets of Hong Kong were also built, on another stage. Houses, shops, rickshaws, stalls, fruitshops all recreated the confusion of this exotic city. To animate the scenes filmed there, 300 extras were recruited from London's Chinese.

WINNING TEAM

The multiple award winning team of Sammy Cahn and Jimmy van Heusen wrote five new musical numbers for "The Road to Hong Kong," which was sung by Bing, Bob, Dottie and Joan. Academy Award winning Jack Hildyard ("Bridge on the River Kwai") was in charge of the photography with special effects done by Wally Veevers and Ted Samuels.

Not billed, several surprise guest stars popped in and out of the film, including two special friends who candidly explain their appearance in the final scene by saying "We heard you were having trouble finding an end to this picture, so we flew over to help out." This is exactly what had happened!!

Dancing Troupe Of Ivory Coast Will Visit U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) —A troupe of dancers and musicians from Africa's Ivory Coast are to visit the U. S. next year.

Representatives of 78 tribes are to be included in the group which is being organized by Thomas Skelton, a graduate student at New York University.

"One of the big problems," Skelton said, "is taking these people from farms and villages and giving them a knowledge of stage presence without making them self-conscious."

SAYS CRAWFORD

Taylor, Monroe Pair Of Children

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Academy Award winner Joan Crawford says glamorous stars Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe are a pair of "children."

Miss Monroe recently was fired from the movie "Something's Got To Give" after repeatedly failing to report for work. The picture later was shelved when Dean Martin refused to appear in it without Miss Monroe.

The beautiful Miss Taylor has been criticized for her actions on the set of "Cleopatra" in Rome. She separated from her husband Eddie Fisher and has been keeping company with "Cleopatra" co-star Richard Burton.

Miss Crawford, a star before either Liz or Marilyn stood before a camera, feels neither actress is behaving like a leading lady.

"Marilyn and Liz are of an age to be women, but unfortunately for them and the people around them, they're children," Joan said.

"I was proud to be part of this industry when Marilyn was fired. I don't think she has a friend. She hasn't taken time to make a friend in this industry. And many people have tried to befriend her.

"And the same with Liz, she's a taker, not a giver. I was raised at the same studio, Metro Goldwin Mayer, and pampered as much as she was. But I didn't take it for granted, ever."

Miss Crawford, who is costarring with Robert Stack in "The Caretakers," said she didn't believe either Marilyn or Liz had enough box office drawing power to warrant their temperamental conduct.

"I think Miss Monroe deserved what she got," Miss Crawford said. "And Miss Taylor deserves the same but nobody has guts enough to fire her. But she'll get it. Liz can get what Liz wants only so long."

Besides "Caretakers," Miss Crawford has two more pictures scheduled, "The Lady in a Cage" and "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane," the latter costarring Bette Davis.

Show Is Slated For The Road

NEW YORK (AP) — "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" goes traveling next March.

A touring company is scheduled to start then on extensive cross-country travels. In preparation, sets are now being constructed and casting started.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranging Is Theme

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The T. V. and Garden Center program last week was slightly different from the usual flower arranging shows. "Containers for Flower Arranging," was the theme.

Mrs. E. M. Baber, member of College Heights Garden Club of Monroe, furnished the containers and the lovely arrangements to demonstrate their use in the home. She is considered one of our best flower arrangers in the fifth district, and many seek her advice about containers as well as flower arranging in general.

STRESSING

Since "flower containers" is such a broad subject this program was mainly stressing the basic containers, one that every housewife arranger should have in her own collection. So often we find it hard to use certain containers and will push them back on the shelf. This is because they are of either too ornate or difficult shape to use in our homes.

Mrs. Baber hoped to help the new arranger by showing the basic type containers. These are useful for so many different kinds of flower lines, colors, and places to be used in the home. Containers should blend with the flowers, not stand out too prominently when used. Just as an accessory with a new dress. It is only a part of the whole design. Alone they may express certain ideas, or, inspire certain types of arrangements.

The very materials of which they are made are expressive. Costly materials express elegance. Inexpensive pottery and wooden containers may suggest simplicity or ruggedness. Glass containers, if thin, express fragility and elegance. Metal expresses strength or permanence. Silver, however, expresses elegance. The forms of the containers are expressive, too. Tall ones are aspiring and dignified. Low ones are solid and contented.

Mrs. Baber illustrated the large compote container. This was a soft green porcelain container with a satin mat finish. This container is very useful when a large arrangement is needed, as on the tea table, the buffet or the church sanctuary.

CHURCH TYPE

The church arrangement is the one Mrs. Baber chose to make for our show. She had just made this same arrangement for her own church. She used the bright gold-en yellow "Cut and Come Agains" to form the symmetrical triangle design. Young aspidestra leaves were used as a filler to strengthen this line. They were lovely in every way. Yellow is one of the best colors to use in a large church auditorium.

There were 11 arrangements in all that were displayed on the show, so, I won't attempt to describe them all. The cylinder vase, the low rectangular bowl, low round bowl, oblong compote, smoked glass compote (hand made), and pitchers of all kinds were shown and illustrated. The colored bottles that so many arrangers collect were shown. One in particular, amber in color, was used with two shades of dried dock and permanent gilded roses. Very attractive for the den or on the small corner shelf in the kitchen or dining nook.

Mrs. Baber also furnished different types of oriental containers. One was the popular and useful usubata. She had fixed one black oriental tubular vase for display using the clipped pine to form the typical "Heaven-Man-Earth" triangular line.

LONG LASTING

She explained that this is a very useful and longlasting design to use in the den, the entrance hall or the man's bedroom.

If we could give our first thought to where an arrangement is to be used, then consider our flower materials on hand, the container most suitable will then be easier to select. We should consider these three things in making arrangements for our own homes. The containers that we collect with this consideration will be useful to us and can be used endlessly without our tiring of them.

The ornate ones are nice to have in our collection, just to look at, but when making arrangements stick to the basic types that we know can be used over and over again in many ways. It is better to own one or two basic containers than a dozen fancy - ornate ones.

We thank Mrs. Baber for this wonderful program. We hope to have her again in the near future.

"The Art of Flower and Foliage Arrangement," by Anna Rutt; "Design in Flower Arrangement," by John Taylor Arms; "Flower Arrangements for All Occasions," by Marie Johnson Fort; "Flower Arrangement the American Way," by Ione Richardson; and "Flowers in Glass," by Julia S. Berrall, are some of the books available in the garden center library that will help you select the proper containers for your home use as well as for large parties or banquets, and church arrangements. Holiday arranging and how to make your own containers can also be found in the library books here at the center. So, if you have a problem or want new ideas come to see me, and we'll do something about it.

REMINDER

Reminder — annual seeds that may still be sown for autumn bloom are marigolds, cosmos, portulaca, and zinnias. Be sure to keep the soil moist at all times until seeds germinate. Bulbs that may be divided and reset in new locations are autumn crocus, hyacinth, scillas, Hanson lily, madonna lily, regal lily, spider "lily," narcissi, snowdrop and tulips. If stored, protect lily bulbs against drying.

Corrective pruning of fast-growing shrubs should be done in midsummer. These include abelia, pyracantha, weigela, ligustrum, eleagnus, Pfitzer juniper and Cannart juniper. It will make them become bushier, fruit and flower more heavily when pruned now. Give camellias a last application of fertilizer in July. A good one is five parts of cottonseed meal three parts of superphosphate and two parts muriate of potash. This is a good time to root gardenias, azaleas, camellias, and hollys, using this season's growth.

If it is necessary to spray slick leaf plants for white fly, scale or red spider, use malathion.

Next program for T.V. and Garden Center will be brought to you by Dr. John Wright, professor of horticulture at Louisiana Tech, Ruston.

Camera Notes

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It doesn't take a studio and a lot of expensive lighting and equipment to make good portraits. You can do it with just a camera, a flash unit and the bare corner of a room.

Bob Wands of Wide World Photos Inc., who is frequently called upon to make spur - of - the - moment portraits, calls it the "Scotsman's method." It's that simple. Here's how it works.

PLACEMENT

Place the subject in the bare room corner so that one wall is behind him and the other is by his side. Pose him turned slightly to the side wall.

Point the camera directly at the back wall and, with the flash unit detached from the camera, bounce the light off the side wall. That's all there is to it.

The soft light bounced off the wall cuts the harsh shadows and, at the same time, avoids that flat, washed - out look obtained when the flash is directed straight at the subject.

For best results, the back wall should be a solid color. The side wall should be light in tone but if it is dark, a page of newspaper taped to it can be a fine makeshift reflector.

Planting Tips On Day Lilies

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mid July until early fall is the best time to plant one of our very oldest popular plants for the garden, day lilies.

So if you want to add that something to your garden, give some thought to day lilies. They have been excellent qualities and especially for the lazy gardener. They can be planted most any time of the year even while they are in bloom. So, Mrs. Gardener, you can be sure of getting that special color in just the right spot. Another quality that's important is very few pests and disease attack day lilies.

They need very little care. Place them where they get about four hours of sunshine and a little fertilizer and that's about the greatest care that they must have and for this small amount of energy you get ever, ever so many blooms. Day lilies are excellent to use to stop washing of soil if you live on a hillside.

There are many colors of day lilies now. Of course, there are ever so many shades of color too, from the very bright yellow to the pastel and oranges from bright to pastel. Other colors you may want are red, pink, pastels and the bi-colors. So if you want something more for your garden, you couldn't go wrong by selecting a few day lilies.

Be sure to check your plants for mildew. With all the moisture this past month may find development of mildew spores. Be sure to check crape myrtle, zinnias, phlox and roses for mildew. To control mildew, dust with sulphur.

PRESERVING FOODS

I know that you, Mrs. Homemaker, are busy freezing and canning at this season, so if you do not have our bulletin, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables and Home Freezing of Foods," call our office FA 3-2251 and ask for a copy to be mailed to you.

This is another service of your Agriculture Extension Department. Another bulletin which you may like is on pickle and relish and also, jellies, jams and preserves. So if you need help with preserving foods, freezing or canning, be sure to call for one of our bulletins.

HOME AND GARDEN WEEK

Our Home and Garden Week has been set for August 20-23 on the campus of LSU.

The Home Economics program will feature topics related to housing, house furnishings and clothing. The gardening program will cover flower growing, landscaping and flower arrangement. A tentative program now calls for a tea on Monday evening, August 20; a lecture and demonstration on religious symbolism of flowers on Tuesday evening by Dr. L. J. Talle of Michigan State University, and the annual dress revue on Wednesday evening.

Ouachita Parish will be represented in the dress revue by Mrs. Danny Sullivan, a member of the McGuire Home Demonstration Club. So if you, Mrs. Homemaker, have the three days, August 20-23, to spare, plan to attend Home and Garden Week. All who attend will be housed free in one of the dormitories on the campus.

APPLIANCES

Of all electrical appliances the sewing machine has the longest life expectancy. Twenty - four years for a new one and 16 years for a used one. New refrigerators last about 16 years and television sets about 11 years. Nine years of service can be expected from all types of washing machines. A new automatic toaster has a service life of 15 years. A non automatic, however, is kept on an average of only seven years. The appeal of new models may influence a homemaker to replace.

Stamp News

A senior girl scout in front of the American Flag will be the main design of the new 4 - cent Girl Scouts of America commemorative stamp. It will be issued July 24 in connection with ceremonies at Button Bay, site of the 50th anniversary senior roundup.

The place of issuance, however, on July 24, will be Burlington, 25 miles northeast of Button Bay. The circular portion of the first day cancellation will read "BURLINGTON, VERMONT 9:00 A.M., July 24, 1962," with "BUTTON BAY STATION FIRST DAY OF ISSUE" in the bars.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 4 - cent Girl Scouts commemorative stamp may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Burlington, Vt. Requests for first - day covers should not be sent to the Philatelic Sales Agency, Washington, D. C. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be clearly marked "First Day Covers Girl Scout Stamp."

The U. S. Treasury Department has announced the first commemorative documentary revenue stamps ever issued by the federal government have gone on sale. This year marks the 100th birthday of the Internal Revenue Service.

The commemorative documentary stamp is in 10 - cent denomination and replaced the previous 10 - cent issue used on bonds, deeds, debentures and other legal documents. THESE STAMPS CANNOT BE USED FOR MAILING PURPOSES.

Pictured on the commemorative stamp is a steel engraving of the Internal Revenue Headquarters Building in Washington D. C. This building, completed in 1930, was the first in what is now known as the Federal Triangle between Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Beginner's Cyclamens

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Of all the little hardy out-door cyclamens, cyclamen neapolitanum is the easiest for southern gardeners to grow. This charming plant is native to Southern Europe in the woods from France to Greece.

It is accustomed to some hot weather and droughts and seems right at home here in the south and even in the warmer parts of California. Miss Lawrence is certainly right in her book, "The Little Bulbs," when she calls it the cyclamen for beginners.

The bulbs of cyclamens are called corms. Those of C. neapolitanum are like fat biscuits, and they like to grow just underneath the surafce of the soil with the top just barely showing and with an inch or so of leafmold over the soil.

A slightly tilted location where the drainage is perfect, in the shade of trees, is most natural to them.

Since our woods soil may be somewhat on the acid side, bone meal should be worked into the top six inches of leafy soil. This is good bulbfood and will both feed the cyclamens and neutralize acidity. In their native haunts, the soil is limestone underneath the leaf mold, but bone meal seems to be an adequate neutralizer in southern gardens.

About one thing you must be sure: plant the corms of cyclamen neapolitanum with the roots on top, i.e., pointing to the sky. This species has not a single root on the bottom. They all come out from the TOP and sides of the corm and then run through the inch or so of leaf mold. They do not feed on the soil to any great extent. For this reason, it is necessary to scatter bone meal over the leaf mold every year.

FAMOUS GARDEN

In a former column, we described your columnist's visit to the famous garden of the late E. A. Bowles near London. The seeds gathered from a huge corm planted by Mr. Bowles' mother in 1856 were brought home and planted in my experimental garden in 1957. They should have been planted while still fresh, but they germinated beautifully and sent up their first flowers — tiny violet and pink cyclamens and, surprise of surprises, several white ones—in 1959. The corms have gotten bigger and bigger and flowered from the 4th of July until frost every year right through the hottest weather.

Last week, I decided to find out at first hand just how deep in the ground these little cyclamens like to live. The patch of corms from the Bowles seeds was examined by gently feeling through the leaf mold. All through the two inches of leaf mold, there was a mass of hairlike roots coming directly from the tops of the cyclamen corms. When my fingers discovered a corm, it was easy to pick it right out of the soil, for there was no tap root or other roots growing from the bottom of the corms.

Styne Is Busy On 3 Musicals

NEW YORK (AP) — Jule Styne is one up and three to go.

Dividing his time between the artistic and business ends of theatrical activity, Styne is currently completing work on the score for "A Very Special Person." After that he turns his attention to production of three other musicals.

"A Very Special Person," musical based on the life of Fanny Brice, is due in November.

The other projects are dramatizations of novels. "The Portofino P. T. A.," by Gerald Green, is slated for conversion into a tuneshow—with Sammy Fain instead of Styne attending to the songs. Aubrey Menen is adapting his own book, "She-La," but there is no decision yet on a composer. After those items, Styne plans to supervise a musical derived from Nine Farewell's "The Unfair Sex." For it he will write the music.

Alone they may express certain ideas, or, inspire certain types of arrangements.

The very materials of which they are made are expressive. Costly materials express elegance. Inexpensive pottery and wooden containers may suggest simplicity or ruggedness. Glass containers, if thin, express fragility and elegance. Metal expresses strength or permanence. Silver, however, expresses elegance. The forms of the containers are expressive, too. Tall ones are aspiring and dignified. Low ones are solid and contented.

Mrs. Baber illustrated the large compote container. This was a soft green porcelain container with a satin mat finish. This container is very useful when a large arrangement is needed, as on the tea table, the buffet or the church sanctuary.

CHURCH TYPE

The church arrangement is the one Mrs. Baber chose to make for our show. She had just made this same arrangement for her own church. She used the bright golden yellow "Cut and Come Agains" to form the symmetrical triangle design. Young aspidestra leaves were used as a filler to strengthen this line. They were lovely in every way. Yellow is one of the best colors to use in a large church auditorium.

There were 11 arrangements in all that were displayed on the show, so, I won't attempt to describe them all. The cylinder vase, the low rectangular bowl, low round bowl, oblong compote, smoked glass compote (hand made), and pitchers of all kinds were shown and illustrated. The colored bottles that so many arrangers collect were shown. One in particular, amber in color, was used with two shades of dried dock and permanent gilded roses. Very attractive for the den or on the small corner shelf in the kitchen or dining nook.

Mrs. Baber also furnished different types of oriental containers. One was the popular and useful usubata. She had fixed one black oriental tubular vase for display using the clipped pine to form the typical "Heaven-Man-Earth" triangular line.

LONG LASTING

She explained that this is a very useful and longlasting design to use in the den, the entrance hall or the man's bedroom.

If we could give our first thought to where an arrangement is to be used, then consider our flower materials on hand, the container most suitable will then be easier to select. We should consider these three things in making arrangements for our own homes. The containers that we collect with this consideration will be useful to us and can be used endlessly without our tiring of them.

The ornate ones are nice to have in our collection, just to look at, but when making arrangements stick to the basic types that we know can be used over and over again in many ways. It is better to own one or two basic containers than a dozen fancy - ornate ones.

We thank Mrs. Baber for this wonderful program. We hope to have her again in the near future.

"The Art of Flower and Foliage Arrangement," by Anna Rutt; "Design in Flower Arrangement," by John Taylor Arms; "Flower Arrangements for All Occasions," by Marie Johnson Fort; "Flower Arrangement the American Way," by Ione Richardson; and "Flowers in Glass," by Julia S. Berrall, are some of the books available in the garden center library that will help you select the proper containers for your home use as well as for large parties or banquets, and church arrangements. Holiday arranging and how to make your own containers can also be found in the library books here at the center. So, if you have a problem or want new ideas come to see me, and we'll do something about it.

REMINDER

Reminder — annual seeds that may still be sown for autumn bloom are marigolds, cosmos, portulaca, and zinnias. Be sure to keep the soil moist at all times until seeds germinate. Bulbs that may be divided and reset in new locations are autumn crocus, hyacinth, scillas, Hanson lily, madonna lily, regal lily, spider "lily," narcissi, snowdrop and tulips. If stored, protect lily bulbs against drying.

Corrective pruning of fast-growing shrubs should be done in midsummer. These include abelia, pyracantha, weigela, ligustrum, elaegnus, Pfitzer juniper and Cannart juniper. It will make them become bushier, fruit and flower more heavily when pruned now. Give camellias a last application of fertilizer in July. A good one is five parts of cottonseed meal three parts of superphosphate and two parts muriate of potash. This is a good time to root gardenias, azaleas, camellias, and hollys, using this season's growth.

If it is necessary to spray slick leaf plants for white fly, scale or red spider, use malathion.

Next program for T.V. and Garden Center will be brought to you by Dr. John Wright, professor of horticulture at Louisiana Tech, Ruston.

Planting Tips On Day Lilies

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mid July until early fall is the best time to plant one of our very oldest popular plants for the garden, day lilies.

So if you want to add that something to your garden, give some thought to day lilies. They have been excellent qualities and especially for the lazy gardener. They can be planted most any time of the year even while they are in bloom. So, Mrs. Gardener, you can be sure of getting that special color in just the right spot. Another quality that's important is very few pests and disease attack day lilies.

They need very little care. Place them where they get about four hours of sunshine and a little fertilizer and that's about the greatest care that they must have and for this small amount of energy you get ever, ever so many blooms. Day lilies are excellent to use to stop washing of soil if you live on a hillside.

There are many colors of day lilies now. Of course, there are ever so many shades of color too, from the very bright yellow to the pastel and oranges from bright to pastel. Other colors you may want are red, pink, pastels and the bi-colors. So if you want something more for your garden, you couldn't go wrong by selecting a few day lilies.

Be sure to check your plants for mildew. With all the moisture this past month may find development of mildew spores. Be sure to check crape myrtle, zinnias, phlox and roses for mildew. To control mildew, dust with sulphur.

PRESERVING FOODS

I know that you, Mrs. Homemaker, are busy freezing and canning at this season, so if you do not have our bulletin, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables and Home Freezing of Foods," call our office FA 3-2251 and ask for a copy to be mailed to you.

This is another service of your Agriculture Extension Department. Another bulletin which you may like is on pickle and relish and also, jellies, jams and preserves. So if you need help with preserving foods, freezing or canning, be sure to call for one of our bulletins.

HOME AND GARDEN WEEK

Our Home and Garden Week has been set for August 20-23 on the campus of LSU.

The Home Economics program will feature topics related to housing, house furnishings and clothing. The gardening program will cover flower growing, landscaping and flower arrangement. A tentative program now calls for a tea on Monday evening, August 20; a lecture and demonstration on religious symbolism of flowers on Tuesday evening by Dr. L. J. Talle of Michigan State University, and the annual dress revue on Wednesday evening.

Ouachita Parish will be represented in the dress revue by Mrs. Danny Sullivan, a member of the McGuire Home Demonstration Club. So if you, Mrs. Homemaker, have the three days, August 20-23, to spare, plan to attend Home and Garden Week. All who attend will be housed free in one of the dormitories on the campus.

APPLIANCES

Of all electrical appliances the sewing machine has the longest life expectancy. Twenty - four years for a new one and 16 years for a used one. New refrigerators last about 16 years and television sets about 11 years. Nine years of service can be expected from all types of washing machines. A new automatic toaster has a service life of 15 years. A non automatic, however, is kept on an average of only seven years. The appeal of new models may influence a homemaker to replace an appliance that should still give good service. Many homemakers do not get the full value from their appliances.

NEW IN FURNITURE

No longer is it necessary to tug and shove a chair or sofa to change its position in a room, because castors have become a decorative and useful part of many pieces of furniture. Some castors are concealed under bases of chests, dressers or buffets and others add a decorative touch to legs of chairs, small tables and serving carts. House cleaning becomes much simpler with mobile furniture and chairs with castors make possible conversation grouping to suit the party mood.

OUTDOOR FURNITURE

If you've furnished your lawn and backyard with picnic furniture, swings, gliders and other accessories to outdoor living and entertainment, you would like these pieces to last as long as possible.

Here's some information which will be helpful in adding years to the useful life of your wooden outdoor furnishings. Treat them with a wood preservative. Two excellent materials which can be easily applied in either concentrated or ready to use form, from your hardware, paint store or lumber yard. They are pentachloraphenal often referred to as "penta," and copper naphthenate. Each is sold under various trade names, but the label will indicate when one of these is present and give directions for applying it.

All wood in constant contact with the soil is subject to rot, though the heartwood of some species such as cedars, catalpa, cypress, and redwood will resist decay for a longer period than others.

A THOUGHT

Guard your thoughts — what you think, you are.

Camera Notes

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It doesn't take a studio and a lot of expensive lighting and equipment to make good portraits. You can do it with just a camera, a flash unit and the bare corner of a room.

Bob Wands of Wide World Photos Inc., who is frequently called upon to make spur - of - the - moment portraits, calls it the "Scotsman's method." It's that simple. Here's how it works:

PLACEMENT

Place the subject in the bare room corner so that one wall is behind him and the other is by his side. Pose him turned slightly to the side wall.

Point the camera directly at the back wall and, with the flash unit detached from the camera, bounce the light off the side wall. That's all there is to it.

The soft light bounced off the wall cuts the harsh shadows and, at the same time, avoids that flat, washed - out look obtained when the flash is directed straight at the subject.

For best results, the back wall should be a solid color. The side wall should be light in tone but if it is dark, a page of newspaper taped to it can be a fine makeshift reflector.

Stamp News

A senior girl scout in front of the American Flag will be the main design of the new 4 - cent Girl Scouts of America commemorative stamp. It will be issued July 24 in connection with ceremonies at Button Bay, site of the 50th anniversary senior roundup.

The place of issuance, however, on July 24, will be Burlington, 25 miles northeast of Button Bay. The circular portion of the first day cancellation will read "BURLINGTON, VERMONT 9:00 A.M., July 24, 1962," with "BUTTON BAY STATION FIRST DAY OF ISSUE" in the bars.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 4 - cent Girl Scouts commemorative stamp may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Burlington, Vt. Requests for first - day covers should not be sent to the Philatelic Sales Agency, Washington, D. C. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be clearly marked "First Day Covers Girl Scout Stamp."

The U. S. Treasury Department has announced the first commemorative documentary revenue stamps ever issued by the federal government have gone on sale. This year marks the 100th birthday of the Internal Revenue Service.

The commemorative documentary stamp is in 10 - cent denomination and replaced the previous 10 - cent issue used on bonds, deeds, debentures and other legal documents. THESE STAMPS CANNOT BE USED FOR MAILING PURPOSES.

Pictured on the commemorative stamp is a steel engraving of the Internal Revenue Headquarters Building in Washington D. C. This building, completed in 1930, was the first in what is now known as the Federal Triangle between Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Beginner's Cyclamens

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Of all the little hardy out-door cyclamens, cyclamen neapolitanum is the easiest for southern gardeners to grow. This charming plant is native to Southern Europe in the woods from France to Greece.

It is accustomed to some hot weather and droughts and seems right at home here in the south and even in the warmer parts of California. Miss Lawrence is certainly right in her book, "The Little Bulbs," when she calls it the cyclamen for beginners.

The bulbs of cyclamens are called corms. Those of C. neapolitanum are like fat biscuits, and they like to grow just underneath the surafce of the soil with the top just barely showing and with an inch or so of leafmold over the soil.

A slightly tilted location where the drainage is perfect, in the shade of trees, is most natural to them.

Since our woods soil may be somewhat on the acid side, bone meal should be worked into the top six inches of leafy soil. This is good bulbfood and will both feed the cyclamens and neutralize acidity. In their native haunts, the soil is limestone underneath the leaf mold, but bone meal seems to be an adequate neutarlizer in southern gardens.

About one thing you must be sure: plant the corms of cyclamen neapolitanum with the roots on top, i.e., pointing to the sky. This species has not a single root on the bottom. They all come out from the TOP and sides of the corm and then run through the inch or so of leaf mold. They do not feed on the soil to any great extent. For this reason, it is necessary to scatter bone meal over the leaf mold every year.

FAMOUS GARDEN

In a former column, we described your columnist's visit to the famous garden of the late E. A. Bowles near London. The seeds gathered from a huge corm planted by Mr. Bowles' mother in 1856 were brought home and planted in my experimental garden in 1957. They should have been planted while still fresh, but they germinated beautifully and sent up their first flowers — tiny violet and pink cyclamens and, surprise of surprises, several white ones—in 1959. The corms have gotten bigger and bigger and flowered from the 4th of July until frost every year right through the hottest weather.

Last week, I decided to find out at first hand just how deep in the ground these little cyclamens like to live. The patch of corms from the Bowles seeds was examined by gently feeling through the leaf mold. All through the two inches of leaf mold, there was a mass of hairlike roots coming directly from the tops of the cyclamen corms. When my fingers discovered a corm, it was easy to pick it right out of the soil, for there was no tap root or other roots growing from the bottom of the corms.

Styne Is Busy On 3 Musicals

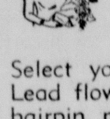

NEW YORK (AP) — Jule Styne is one up and three to go.

Dividing his time between the artistic and business ends of theatrical activity, Styne is currently completing work on the score for "A Very Special Person." After that he turns his attention to production of three other musicals.

"A Very Special Person," musical based on the life of Fanny Brice, is due in November.

The other projects are dramatizations of novels. "The Portofino P. T. A.," by Gerald Green, is slated for conversion into a tuneshow—with Sammy Fain instead of Styne attending to the songs. Aubrey Menen is adapting his own book, "She-La," but there is no decision yet on a composer. After those items, Styne plans to supervise a musical derived from Nine Farewell's "The Unfair Sex." For it he will write the music.

Sir Winston Shows Signs Of Phlebitis

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill, recuperating from a thigh fracture, showed early signs Saturday night of phlebitis in his left leg.

Phlebitis is inflammation of a vien.

A bulletin issued by middlesex hospital said.

"Sir Winston Churchill had a comfortable night. There are early signs of phlebitis in his left leg and the appropriate steps have been taken to deal with the condition."

The bone he broke in a fall in Monte Carlo 10 days ago is in his left leg, near the hip. The bone was pinned in an operation here last week.

The Saturday bulletin was issued some two hours later than the usual afternoon report.

Hospital officials apologized for the delay in issuing the bulletin, saying "investigations had been in progress."

The bulletin carried the usual three signatures of Sir Winston's doctors, plus a fourth one. This was Dr. B. E. Bedford, a physician at the hospital who has not until now figured in the daily examinations.

The hospital spokesman said the next bulletins will be issued Sunday morning.

During the afternoon Sir Winston's wife visited him in his private room at the hospital. She stayed about 45 minutes.

"He seemed very quiet and peaceful," she told reporters as she emerged.

Asked how serious the latest development seemed, she replied:

"I am afraid if you want to know about the medical aspects of this, you must ask those at the hospital concerned."

Commenting on the nature of phlebitis in general, one doctor said:

"I suppose it is due to the fact that Sir Winston has been lying down a good deal, and it is the sort of thing that could happen in a person of his age, particularly after a fractured femur. Treatment of the condition would include extra rest in bed."

Another medical expert commented: "It is quite a frequent sort of complication and does not necessarily mean anything serious."

Jobs Await Nine Riders At Concord

CONCORD, N. H. (AP) — Prospective jobs and temporary housing await the arrival Sunday of New Hampshire's first contingent of "Reverse Freedom Riders" from the South.

Nine Negro men boarded a bus in New Orleans Saturday, their one-way tickets to New Hampshire paid for by the white Citizens Council of Greater New Orleans.

In Concord, James J. Barry, state health and welfare commissioner, said two barracks at Grenier Air Force Base in Manchester had been made available as temporary housing for the Negroes.

The barracks were released by the Air Force on condition that the state provide sheets, blankets and similar items, along with taking on the responsibility for feeding the occupants if they are unable to purchase food on their own.

This appeared a strong likelihood, at least for the first day or two, since George Singelmann, a director of the citizens council in New Orleans, gave each rider $5 in spending money before sending them on their way.

He predicted that a much larger group of "first class citizens for the new frontier" would leave New Orleans next week with tickets for Concord.

Barry said he has had many inquiries about job qualifications that the group may have, and several bona fide offers await the arrival of the men.

Barry said a resort hotel needs three waiters and a dishwasher, and a restaurant in Keene has offered employment for one man.

"This resort hotel closes at the end of the summer and takes its help down south to another resort," Barry said.

NLSC Slates Guest Lecturer

The summer reading institute at Northeast Louisiana State College will include a fourth guest lecturer July 9 at 2 p.m. in Biedenharn Hall on campus.

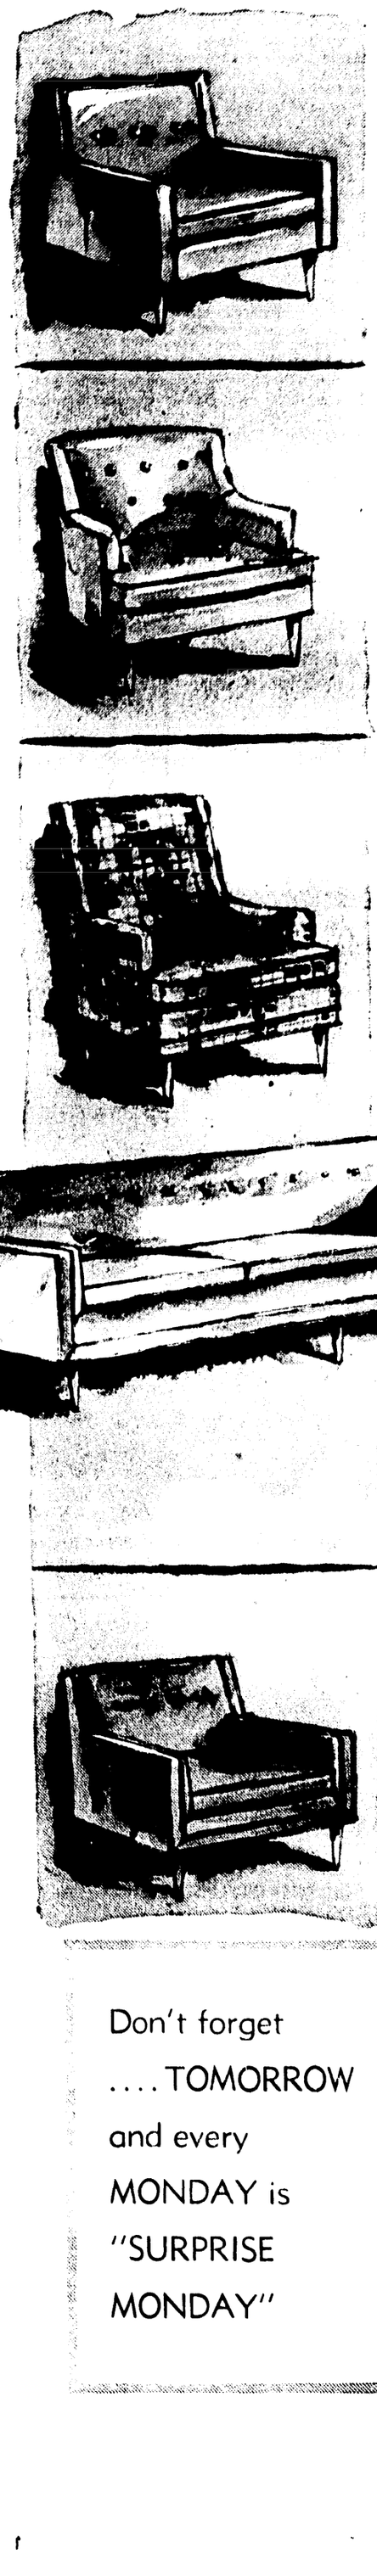

Dr. George D. Spache, head of the Reading Laboratory and Clinic at the University of Florida, will appear under auspices of Northeast's Special Education Center, directed by Dr. Levelle Haynes.

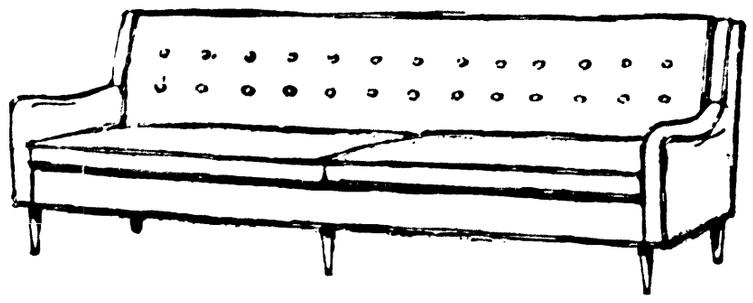

The guest speaker was active in the National Association for Remedial Reading and he held the office of president just prior to the organization's merger with the International Reading Association in 1955. He became the association's president for the 1958-59 year and served on the IRA board of directors since its inception until 1960.

William Faulkner Laid To Rest In Mississippi

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Novelist William Faulkner was buried Saturday in the rural Mississippi countryside where he found the dirt-farmers, Negroes and poor whites that he immortalized with his literary genius.

The 64-year-old Nobel prize-winning author was laid to rest in Oxford Memorial Cemetery following graveside rites and a brief Episcopal ceremony in his columned, colonial home. Only close relatives were permitted to attend.

Faulkner, who died of a heart attack Friday, was born, lived and produced most of his novels and short stories within a few miles of his final resting place.

Before the funeral, the body lay in state in a plain wooden coffin in the Faulkner home.

The coffin was kept closed, a relative said, except for a moment when two Negroes who had been life-long servants of the Faulkner family were granted their request to view the body.

A policeman was posted in a cedar grove outside the house to stop any intruders.

His burial in this little community that failed to understand him even in death was in accordance with his own wishes.

Speaking of his native land and himself, he once said:

"He was born of it and his bones will sleep in it."

But Saturday, as usual the town of Oxford, a community of 8,000 that Faulkner made famous as "Jefferson" in his fictionalized "Yochnapatawpha" County, went on without him.

The square was jammed with trucks and farmers who had come to town to shop, sell produce and gossip. But little of the talk concerned Faulkner.

In late years townspeople had come to look upon the man that many hailed as one of the greatest talents of 20th Century as just somewhat of a "character."

Inequality Hit Over Nation During Meet

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People deplored Saturday racial inequality in any form in any section of the nation.

The organization, nearing an end to its annual national convention, urged the President, Congress and the governors of the various states to take positive action to wipe out segregation and discrimination based on race.

And delegates took a slap at their host city for the segregation barriers they found at many major hotels and restaurants, which turned away Negro delegates. There was no organized picketing of these establishments Saturday however, as there had been earlier during the NAACP convention.

Without dissent, the convention adopted the preamble to the resolutions committee report, which said, "We . . . are directly faced once again with the sheer stupidity, inhumaneness, not to mention inconveniences, which racial segregation entails. Despite the fact that Atlanta is a large metropolis with modern facilities of every kind sufficient to meet the needs of a convention such as ours, the housing, feeding and transportation of our delegates presented great and unnecessary problems, simply because of adherence to outmoded racist traditions of the South. . . ."

With a minimum of discussion, delegates approved a series of resolutions decrying segregation practices in education, housing, the armed forces and especially the National Guard of Southern States, veterans hospitals, registration and voting.

The convention also voiced support of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling outlawing the use of an official prayer in public schools. The resolution said the "decision adheres to the principle of separation of church and state which the NAACP has always supported."

It added that the loudest outcries against the ruling came from "the same voices which bemoan the school desegregation decision and preach a doctrine of white supremacy supported by state and violence."

After mentioning various forms of discrimination the Negro faces, the resolutions committee report added, "even more sombre cause for grave concern are the weeping rlatives and friends gathered at funerals of persons who have met death at the hands of law enforcement officers who believe that they have the right to arrest, prosecute, convict, and execute in the short space of time that it takes to pull a pistol from a service holster."

CREATING IN THE CELL BLOCK

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska Penitentiary inmates who aspire to become authors or composers are getting a chance to try to market their products.

Warden Maurice Sigler has authorized the convicts to submit original material — such as songs, poetry and novels — to publishers.

A few restrictions apply.

Material must be moral and in good taste.

No real - life pentientiary incidents or personnel may be mentioned.

ANTI-PILFER COIN

NEWTON, Iowa (UPI) — The Maytag Co. says it has solved the vexing problem of pilferage from coin - operated machines. Maytag proposes to substitute for coins a plastic wafer which is cancelled electrically and cannot be reused.

Freeze Leaves Areas Of Cane Weak, Skimpy

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Two specialists said Saturday sugarcane growers have some areas of weak and skippy cane as a result of the hard freeze last winter.

Denver Loupe, sugarcane specialist with the LSU cooperative extension service, and E. R. Stamper, patholigist with the agricultural experiment station, said many more weeds and much more grass are sprouting than normal for this time of year in the thin areas.

They reported some plants not usually seen growing in cane fields are beginning to show up and require special attention if their growth is to be stopped. These included red purslane, pigweed and carless weed

Farmers were urged to get in touch with their extension agent for information on recommended mixtures and methods of application of weed and grass killers

Freeze Leaves Areas Of Cane Weak, Skimpy

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Two specialists said Saturday sugarcane growers have some areas of weak and skippy cane as a result of the hard freeze last winter.

Denver Loupe, sugarcane specialist with the LSU cooperative extension service, and E. R. Stamper, patholigist with the agricultural experiment station, said many more weeds and much more grass are sprouting than normal for this time of year in the thin areas.

They reported some plants not usually seen growing in cane fields are beginning to show up and require special attention if their growth is to be stopped. These included red purslane, pigweed and carless weed.

Farmers were urged to get in touch with their extension agent for information on recommended mixtures and methods of application of weed and grass killers.

William Faulkner Laid To Rest In Mississippi

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Novelist William Faulkner was buried Saturday in the rural Mississippi countryside where he found the dirt-farmers, Negroes and poor whites that he immortalized with his literary genius.

The 64-year-old Nobel prize-winning author was laid to rest in Oxford Memorial Cemetery following graveside rites and a brief Episcopal ceremony in his columned, colonial home. Only close relatives were permitted to attend.

Faulkner, who died of a heart attack Friday, was born, lived and produced most of his novels and short stories within a few miles of his final resting place.

Before the funeral, the body lay in state in a plain wooden coffin in the Faulkner home.

The coffin was kept closed, a relative said, except for a moment when two Negroes who had been life-long servants of the Faulkner family were granted their request to view the body.

A policeman was posted in a cedar grove outside the house to stop any intruders.

His burial in this little community that failed to understand him even in death was in accordance with his own wishes.

Speaking of his native land and himself, he once said:

"He was born of it and his bones will sleep in it."

But Saturday, as usual the town of Oxford, a community of 8,000 that Faulkner made famous as "Jefferson" in his fictionalized "Yochnapatawpha" County, went on without him.

The square was jammed with trucks and farmers who had come to town to shop, sell produce and gossip. But little of the talk concerned Faulkner.

Inequality Hit Over Nation During Meet

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People deplored Saturday racial inequality in any form in any section of the nation.

The organization, nearing an end to its annual national convention, urged the President, Congress and the governors of the various states to take positive action to wipe out segregation and discrimination based on race.

And delegates took a slap at their host city for the segregation barriers they found at many major hotels and restaurants, which turned away Negro delegates. There was no organized picketing of these establishments Saturday however, as there had been earlier during the NAACP convention.

Without dissent, the convention adopted the preamble to the resolutions committee report, which said, "We . . . are directly faced once again with the sheer stupidity, inhumaneness, not to mention inconveniences, which racial segregation entails. Despite the fact that Atlanta is a large metropolis with modern facilities of every kind sufficient to meet the needs of a convention such as ours, the housing, feeding and transportation of our delegates presented great and unnecessary problems, simply because of adherence to outmoded racist traditions of the South. . . ."

With a minimum of discussion, delegates approved a series of resolutions decrying segregation practices in education, housing, the armed forces and especially the National Guard of Southern States, veterans hospitals, registration and voting.

The convention also voiced support of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling outlawing the use of an official prayer in public schools. The resolution said the "decision adheres to the principle of separation of church and state which the NAACP has always supported."

It added that the loudest outcries against the ruling came from "the same voices which bemoan the school desegregation decision and preach a doctrine of white supremacy supported by state and violence."

After mentioning various forms of discrimination the Negro faces, the resolutions committee report added, "even more sombre cause for grave concern are the weeping rlatives and friends gathered at funerals of persons who have met death at the hands of law enforcement officers who believe that they have the right to arrest, prosecute, convict, and execute in the short space of time that it takes to pull a pistol from a service holster."

NEW NATION OF BURUNDI

Africans Impose Stern, Swift Law

USUMBURA (UPI)—The law of the African is stern, swift and sure.

If I ever had any doubts on this after two years reporting for United Press International in Africa, they were dispelled forever Friday night.

I was invited by a group of Burundi students to visit their headquarters in what, before independence, was known as the "African quarter."

It is a part of Usumbura where Europeans do not go unless invited.

Before independence invitations were not extended.

The student locale is a tin-roofed brick building whose main features are a rough, wooden bar, mosquitoes and crates of beer.

As I entered with the students, silence fell on the 50-odd occupants. I learned later I was the first European to set foot in the bar.

In sing-song Kiburundi by student-guides explained I was a foreign reporter and not a slumming Bwana.

We conversed in French. After a few curious looks I was accepted. The tension disappeared. The conversation in mixed French and Kiburundi was about independence, the future of Burundi and the possibility of foreign scholarships being resumed.

Soon it came my turn to buy a round of the drink which by some local language quirk is called "spit."

I reached for my hip pocked. My billford, passport containing visas for half a dozen countries and all my papers had disappeared.

I recalled the warning of the diplomatic mission: "Do not go into the African section."

I thought of the weeks of formfilling it would take to get all the necessary papers together again.

Then I got indignant. I turned to my student friend Cleophas, who had suggested the trip in the first place, and told him what I thought about Burundi, Burundis and said, "This is a great way to publicize your independence."

This evidently touched his new but keen national conscience.

Since he is a youth who soon may be in a high government post, the theft also was a slight to him.

He addressed the crowd of students. As far as I could make out, he staked the kingdom, the government and every head of cattle his father possessed on recovering the billfold and passport. I there and then earmarked Cleophas a political comer in Burundi.

After the speech he said, "I have thirst." So we drank another "spit."

Six students slipped out of the door.

Our glasses were not empty long before the students reappeared. They were dragging an African on his back by the feet over the floor.

He was bleeding from the head and legs—obviously the result of a bad beating.

The African dragged himself painfully onto his knees, bowed his head and returned my belongings.

"Do you want us to finish him off," somebody asked.

I recovered quickly enough from the amazing sight to blubber "No, for heaven's sake, don't kill him!"

The thief went out the same way he came in—feet first.

I wanted reassurance he would not be killed and also an explanation as to how they had managed to track him down so quickly.

But all I got was a remark that "there are many things about Africa you whites will never learn."

Day Is Quiet For Officers, Few Arrests

Local law agencies had a quiet day Saturday, making few arrests and an investigation of a minor burglary that occurred in Monroe.

West Monroe officers booked a 26-year-old man on four different counts early Saturday morning after the man crashed into a patrol car.

Ellender L. Bishop, of 607 Vick St., West Monroe, was booked on counts that include driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, driving without a driver's license, reckless driving and unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Police reports indicated that Bishop was seen driving with his headlights off, and when police Sgt. Davis Bennett started to follow Bishop, he pulled off Cypress Street onto a parking lot. When the patrol car, driven by Bennett, stopped beside Bishop's car to check him, Bishop started his car rolling and hit the police car. However, little damage was inflicted to the squad car.

Monroe police were investigating the burglary of a church on the south side of Monroe. The breakin of the Rose of Sharon Church at 720 Adams St., was reported by Negro Lee Williams, of 710 Adams St.

Police ascertained that entrance to the building had been gained by removing a window fan from a rear window, and climbing through. Party or parties then broke into the soft drink machine taking approximately $2.50. Nothing else appeared to have been bothered, officers said.

The Monroe Fire Department day, with most action centering around a house fire in the predawn hours on the Old Columbia Road. Truck No. Seven responded to the call, but was unable to save the frame house. Firemen said that the building, belonging to Arnold Martin, Luna Star Route Three, was engulfed in flames by the time they arrived.

According to the firemen's report, the house had been empty for several days with the occupants away on a fishing trip. No one was injured in the fire and cause of the blaze had not been determined late Saturday. Firemen received the alarm at 11:59 p.m. Friday and the truck returned to Monroe at 2:38 a.m. Saturday.

Monroe officers investigated a three - car collision late Saturday afternoon that left two persons with minor injuries.

Taken to St. Francis hospital for treatment of lacerations was Mrs. Frankie Grafton, 43 of 3106 Gordon Ave. Mrs. Verlon B. Robertson, 36 of 3104 Gordon Ave., went to a private physician for treatment.

Mrs. Grafton was a passenger in the car driven by Mrs. Robertson that was headed south on North Fifth Street and collided with a vehicle driven by Thomas E. Freeman, 40 of 315 Wilson St., Monroe.

Freeman, driving west on Pine Street, told officers he stopped for the stop sign and that as he entered the intersection, Mrs. Robertson's car hit his vehicle which was knocked into a third car, operated by Toliver D. Fields, 51 of 202 Martha St., West Monroe. Fields' car was stopped, headed east on Pine Street.

Police ticketed Freeman for failure to yield right-of-way.

A 38-year-old Monroe man, Robert J. Johnston of 407 Arkansas St., Monroe, was booked for theft by check by Monroe police. Johnston was taken into custody on a warrant charging him with issuing a worthless check in the amount of $15 to Hogan's Grocery Store on Winnsboro Road.

Two persons were booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages late Saturday. West Monroe officers booked Raymond L. Adams, 36, of Downsville after taking him into custody at North Seventh Street and Arkansas Road.

Monroe police booked 23-year-old Negro Booker T. Harris, 2223 Pine St., Dallas, Tex., for DWI. He was apprehended at Jackson and Orange Streets at 4:45 p.m. and released under a $435 bond.

Return Planned For $30 Million By Post Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department said Saturday it will turn back to the Treasury nearly $30 million of the $4,368,500,000 appropriated to it for the fiscal year which ended a week ago.

This doesn't mean the Post Office Department is operating in the black—only that it got by last year on a smaller appropriation than Congress voted. The department's deficit for last year is estimated at $866 million.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day, in a statement, attributed the return of nearly $30 million to cost-cutting programs and productivity gains by postal workers.

"We are particularly proud of this accomplishment," Day said, "because the reversion was possible without any cut in service, and was accomplished by the largest productivity increase in recent years."

Navy Will Buy Frigates' Steel At U.S. Plants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy disclosed Saturday that on orders from the White House it will buy 2,000 tons of steel for three guided-missile frigates from American producers rather than a foreign supplier.

Assistant Defense Secretary Thomas D. Morris notified Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., of the changed policy. In a previous contract award, the Navy had bought 3,500 tons of steel for the ships from a West German firm.

Scott and several other members of Congress had protested such foreign purchases at a time when the U. S. steel industry is operating at only 50 per cent of capacity and the Kennedy administration is worried about the state of business.

Morris told Scott that the "buy American" decision on the forthcoming 2,000 ton order was made by the White House and the Defense Department "for reasons of the national interest." The earlier 3,500-ton purchase from the German steel company, however, cannot be rescinded.

RICKY AND RONNNIE WALL of Tulsa, Okla., took advantage Saturday of merchant Mac LeFever's ton of ice, but didn't bother to pay rent for the "air conditioners." As the temperature edged near 98 degrees, LeFever's stock of rental air conditioners ran out. So he tried to supply the next best thing, and ordered 2,000 pounds of block ice delivered to his store. And in the heat, the ice didn't last long, either. (AP Wirephoto)

HALF-CENTURY OLD

Mexico Relations Hurt By Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said this week the United States is eager to settle a dispute involving 630 acres in El Paso, Tex., which Mexico wants to make Mexican territory.

Kennedy conceded it is a matter "difficult to solve."

The controversy is caused by a change in the course of the Rio Grande River.

It is known as the Chamizal case because the area involved once was covered by brush, for which the Spanish word is chamisa.

The matter has been a sore spot in Mexico-U.S. relatoins for more than half a century.

Although the average U.S. citizen never heard of it—or forgot it if he did—in Mexico it has become a fiery, emotional issue of national pride and has been cited there frequently by anti-U.S. orators as an affront to Mexico's dignity by its big neighbor to the north.

Nobody seems to be exactly certain just what makes up the Chamizal. U.S. officials say a sizable chunk is undeveloped land or is occupied two stockyards. But some of it may be potentially valuable property along the river in El Paso.

And if such land were to be handed over to Mexico the Chamizal might become a pretty fiery issue in El Paso and throughout Texas, too.

A week ago Kennedy and President Lopez Mateos of Mexico issued a communique during Kennedy's stay in Mexico City saying they were going to instruct their executive agencies to "recommend a complete solution to this problem."

At his news conference Thursday Kennedy said the Chamizal area was "awarded to Mexico in the arbitration award of 1911" but that the United States, which had agreed to arbitration, "backed down and did not accept the award."

Both in the communique, and in Kennedy's statement, it was indicated the two presidents think it is time for both sides to yield ground and press for a solution. The communique said a solution would be sought "without prejudice to judicial positions and in a way which takes into account the entire history of this tract."

There was no explanation of what these phases mean. It appears, however, that the communique was saying there would be a minimum of further legalistic arguments, and that there would be full consideration of the practical problem of taking away a part of an established city and giving it to a foreign country.

In 1894 a Mexican citizen laid claim to the Chamizal area contending it had become a part of Mexican territory through a change in the course of the Rio Grande which forms the boundary from a part of El Paso eastward to the Gulf of Mexico.

The claim to the Chamizal went to the Mexican-U.S. Boundary Commission, created many years ago to settle just such disputes.

The boundary commission held hearings on the claim but was unable to make a decision. It was agreed to add a third member to form an arbitral board. The board was instructed to "decide solely and exclusively whether the Chamizal tract is in the United States or Mexico."

Eugene Lafleur, a Canadian professor of international law was chosen as third member. He and the Mexican member concurred in an award, and the U.S. member dissented.

But the U.S. position for years was that the award, giving Mexico that part of the Chamizal south of the channel of the river as it was in 1864, not only was not in accord with the arbitration agreement but that it was impossible to carry out because nobody could prove where the river channel was in 1864.

With good will on both sides, some experts believe the two countries could decide how many acres actually are involved on the basis of where the river was in 1864 or on some other basis and a compensatory plan could be worked out.

Mexico, claiming the Chamizal as part of its national territory doubtless would be offended by any offer of cash compensation and probably would reject such an offer, informed sources believe.

Some experts believe if there can be an agreement on the number of acres due to be returned, the land might be carved out of the Chamizal or in adjacent areas in a manner causing a minimum of problems for El Paso.

Oregon Student Dies Of Plunge Inside Chimney

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A University of Oregon student from California plunged 208 feet to his death down the inside of a chimney on a downtown apartment house early Saturday.

The coroner's office identified the victim as George Joseph Salzer, 20, Los Altos, Calif., who was working for the summer at West Coast Veneer Co.

A companion, John Whitehouse, 20, Portland, said he and Salzer had climbed to the top of the Ione Plaza to take a look at the view.

The Ione is a fashionable apartment house on the edge of downtown Portland.

He said he and Salzer climbed to a penthouse patio by the fire escape, then climbed another ladder to the roof.

Whitehouse said they both climbed a 30-foot ladder to the top of the chimney. It was dark, he said, and part of the chimney opening was covered. Both walked on the cover.

Whitehouse said he turned to look at the view, and when he looked around again, Salzer was gone. He said he then took three steps cautiously and halted when one foot went out over the chimney opening.

Ngo Dinh Diem Pledges Ridding Of Communists

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—President Ngo Dinh Diem pledged Saturday on his eighth anniversary as head of South Viet Nam to drive the Communist guerrillas out of the land.

As he spoke two government operations against the guerrillas were reported underway in an area 20 miles west of Saigon and 150 miles to the South.

Preliminary reports said the 600 South Vietnamese flown into battle by American helicopters Friday had made contact with a guerrilla force in the Rachquet area 20 miles to the West and was "pursuing" them.

The reports said 12 guerrillas had been killed and six others captured in the first clash on the plain of reeds.

There were no final reports of another operation against the guerrillas who overran a civil guardpost on the Camau Peninsula in Southern Viet Nam. In this action about 400 South Vietnam-Diem pledged "our cause will triumph" and said, "the courage and determination of our people have overcome difficulties caused by the Communists.

Union Strike May Cripple Space Plants

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Union for 125,000 workers have set a strike for July 23. They said it would cripple the United States aerospace industry.

The strike decision was reached Saturday at a meeting between top-level negotiators of the International Association of Machinists and the United Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO.

A walkout would involve production workers at missile and airplane plants throughout the nation, as well as at many missile bases.

The announcement came a few days after a clear indication from a federal official that the administration would step in to avert any tieup in the sprawling aerospace industry. What action might be taken was not disclosed.

Unless contract agreements are reached by July 23, union negotiators said the two unions will strike all plants of Lockheed, North American, Douglas, General Dynamics, Convair, Ryan Aeronautical and Aerojet General throughout the United States.

Workers also will be called off the job at these missile bases: Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.; Pacific Missile Range, Cape Canaveral, Fla.; Sheppard AFB, Tex.; Dyess AFB, Tex.; Walker AFB, Roswell, N.M.; Lincoln AFB, Neb.; Warren AFB, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Fairchild AFB, Wash., and missile bases at White Sands, N.M.; Omaha, Neb.; Plattsburgh, N.Y.; Forbes, Kan.; Shilling, Kan.; Altus, Okla., and Neosha, Mo.

Negotiators said the companies will be given notice of contract termination on July 13 with the strike date set for 10 days later. The strike date had been set tentatively a few days ago.

Federal Mediator Walter Maggiolo said a few days ago that Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg won't tolerate a walkout in the huge aerospace industry but did not indicate what action the administration might take in event a strike was called.

In a joint statement, the union announced:

"Together our unions will strike the 51 plants, test sites and missile bases of these firms on July 23, unless by that time an honorable settlement has been reached."

The unions are seeking wage increases and other benefits. Average hourly wage in the aerospace industry is $2.71.

"The industry must close the wide gap in wages by providing catchup increases and continued protection against increases in the cost of living," the statement said.

Contract talks have been under way for the past three months.

The government could invoke an 80-day injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act or appeal to both sides to wait until a factfinding committee is appointed.

Bullpup Missiles Sink Destroyer Off U.S. Coast

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The destroyer Fullam sank on Saturday beneath the waves she had ridden so stalwartly for the past two decades.

The radioactive ship was purposely sunk by A4D Skyhawk aircraft from the carriers Forrestal and Enterprise, using air-to-surface Bullpup missiles.

The cruiser Newport News and other 2nd Fleet ships finished the doomed ship off with guns.

The Fullam lay dead in the water some 180 miles southeast of Cape Henry. She was towed there Friday by the service force salvage ship, Recovery.

The Fullam, built in Boston in 1940, was used for experimental purposes in the April-June 1958 nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Radioactivity rendered her unacceptable as scrap, and the job of scrubbing her clean was thought more expensive than she was worth.

The liquor, discovered during a house cleaning, apparently had been seized during a prohibition-era raid.

NEW NATION OF BURUNDI

Africans Impose Stern, Swift Law

USUMBURA (UPI)—The law of the African is stern, swift and sure.

If I ever had any doubts on this after two years reporting for United Press International in Africa, they were dispelled forever Friday night.

I was invited by a group of Burundi students to visit their headquarters in what, before independence, was known as the "African quarter."

It is a part of Usumbura where Europeans do not go unless invited.

Before independence invitations were not extended.

The student locale is a tin-roofed brick building whose main features are a rough, wooden bar, mosquitoes and crates of beer.

As I entered with the students, silence fell on the 50-odd occupants. I learned later I was the first European to set foot in the bar.

In sing-song Kiburundi by student-guides explained I was a foreign reporter and not a slumming Bwana.

We conversed in French. After a few curious looks I was accepted. The tension disappeared. The conversation in mixed French and Kiburundi was about independence, the future of Burundi and the possibility of foreign scholarships being resumed.

Soon it came my turn to buy a round of the drink which by some local language quirk is called "spit."

I reached for my hip pocked. My billford, passport containing visas for half a dozen countries and all my papers had disappeared.

I recalled the warning of the diplomatic mission: "Do not go into the African section."

I thought of the weeks of form-filling it would take to get all the necessary papers together again.

Then I got indignant. I turned to my student friend Cleophas, who had suggested the trip in the first place, and told him what I thought about Burundi, Burundis and said, "This is a great way to publicize your independence."

This evidently touched his new but keen national conscience.

Since he is a youth who soon may be in a high government post, the theft also was a slight to him.

He addressed the crowd of students. As far as I could make out, he staked the kingdom, the government and every head of cattle his father possessed on recovering the billfold and passport. I there and then earmarked Cleophas a political comer in Burundi.

After the speech he said, "I have thirst." So we drank another "spit."

Six students slipped out of the door.

Our glasses were not empty long before the students reappeared. They were dragging an African on his back by the feet over the floor.

He was bleeding from the head and legs—obviously the result of a bad beating.

The African dragged himself painfully onto his knees, bowed his head and returned my belongings.

"Do you want us to finish him off," somebody asked.

I recovered quickly enough from the amazing sight to blubber "No, for heaven's sake, don't kill him!"

The thief went out the same way he came in—feet first.

I wanted reassurance he would not be killed and also an explanation as to how they had managed to track him down so quickly.

But all I got was a remark that "there are many things about Africa you whites will never learn."

Day Is Quiet For Officers, Few Arrests

Local law agencies had a quiet day Saturday, making few arrests and an investigation of a minor burglary that occurred in Monroe.

West Monroe officers booked a 26-year-old man on four different counts early Saturday morning after the man crashed into a patrol car.

Ellender L. Bishop, of 607 Vick St., West Monroe, was booked on counts that include driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, driving without a driver's license, reckless driving and unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Police reports indicated that Bishop was seen driving with his headlights off, and when police Sgt. Davis Bennett started to follow Bishop, he pulled off Cypress Street onto a parking lot. When the patrol car, driven by Bennett, stopped beside Bishop's car to check him, Bishop started his car rolling and hit the police car. However, little damage was inflicted to the squad car.

Monroe police were investigating the burglary of a church on the south side of Monroe. The breakin of the Rose of Sharon Church at 720 Adams St., was reported by Negro Lee Williams, of 710 Adams St.

Police ascertained that entrance to the building had been gained by removing a window fan from a rear window, and climbing through. Party or parties then broke into the soft drink machine taking approximately $2.50. Nothing else appeared to have been bothered, officers said.

The Monroe Fire Department day, with most action centering around a house fire in the predawn hours on the Old Columbia Road. Truck No. Seven responded to the call, but was unable to save the frame house. Firemen said that the building, belonging to Arnold Martin, Luna Star Route Three, was engulfed in flames by the time they arrived.

According to the firemen's report, the house had been empty for several days with the occupants away on a fishing trip. No one was injured in the fire and cause of the blaze had not been determined late Saturday. Firemen received the alarm at 11:59 p.m. Friday and the truck returned to Monroe at 2:38 a.m. Saturday.

Monroe officers investigated a three - car collision late Saturday afternoon that left two persons with minor injuries.

Taken to St. Francis hospital for treatment of lacerations was Mrs. Frankie Grafton, 43 of 3106 Gordon Ave. Mrs. Verlon B. Robertson, 36 of 3104 Gordon Ave., went to a private physician for treatment.

Mrs. Grafton was a passenger in the car driven by Mrs. Robertson that was headed south on North Fifth Street and collided with a vehicle driven by Thomas E. Freeman, 40 of 315 Wilson St., Monroe.

Freeman, driving west on Pine Street, told officers he stopped for the stop sign and that as he entered the intersection, Mrs. Robertson's car hit his vehicle which was knocked into a third car, operated by Toliver D. Fields, 51 of 202 Martha St., West Monroe. Fields' car was stopped, headed east on Pine Street.

Police ticketed Freeman for failure to yield right-of-way.

A 38-year-old Monroe man, Robert J. Johnston of 407 Arkansas St., Monroe, was booked for theft by check by Monroe police. Johnston was taken into custody on a warrant charging him with issuing a worthless check in the amount of $15 to Hogan's Grocery Store on Winnsboro Road.

Two persons were booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages late Saturday. West Monroe officers booked Raymond L. Adams, 36, of Downsville after taking him into custody at North Seventh Street and Arkansas Road.

Monroe police booked 23-year-old Negro Booker T. Harris, 2223 Pine St., Dallas, Tex., for DWI. He was apprehended at Jackson and Orange Streets at 4:45 p.m. and released under a $435 bond.

Return Planned For $30 Million By Post Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department said Saturday it will turn back to the Treasury nearly $30 million of the $4,368,500,000 appropriated to it for the fiscal year which ended a week ago.

This doesn't mean the Post Office Department is operating in the black—only that it got by last year on a smaller appropriation than Congress voted. The department's deficit for last year is estimated at $866 million.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day, in a statement, attributed the return of nearly $30 million to cost-cutting programs and productivity gains by postal workers.

"We are particularly proud of this accomplishment," Day said, "because the reversion was possible without any cut in service, and was accomplished by the largest productivity increase in recent years."

Navy Will Buy Frigates' Steel At U.S. Plants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy disclosed Saturday that on orders from the White House it will buy 2,000 tons of steel for three guided-missile frigates from American producers rather than a foreign supplier.

Assistant Defense Secretary Thomas D. Morris notified Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., of the changed policy. In a previous contract award, the Navy had bought 3,500 tons of steel for the ships from a West German firm.

Scott and several other members of Congress had protested such foreign purchases at a time when the U. S. steel industry is operating at only 50 per cent of capacity and the Kennedy administration is worried about the state of business.

Morris told Scott that the "buy American" decision on the forthcoming 2,000 ton order was made by the White House and the Defense Department "for reasons of the national interest." The earlier 3,500-ton purchase from the German steel company, however, cannot be rescinded.

RICKY AND RONNNIE WALL of Tulsa, Okla., took advantage Saturday of merchant Mac LeFever's ton of ice, but didn't bother to pay rent for the "air conditioners." As the temperature edged near 98 degrees, LeFever's stock of rental air conditioners ran out. So he tried to supply the next best thing, and ordered 2,000 pounds of block ice delivered to his store. And in the heat, the ice didn't last long, either. (AP Wirephoto)

HALF-CENTURY OLD

Mexico Relations Hurt By Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said this week the United States is eager to settle a dispute involving 630 acres in El Paso, Tex., which Mexico wants to make Mexican territory.

Kennedy conceded it is a matter "difficult to solve."

The controversy is caused by a change in the course of the Rio Grande River.

It is known as the Chamizal case because the area involved once was covered by brush, for which the Spanish word is chamisa.

The matter has been a sore spot in Mexico-U.S. relatoins for more than half a century.

Although the average U.S. citizen never heard of it—or forgot it if he did—in Mexico it has become a fiery, emotional issue of national pride and has been cited there frequently by anti-U.S. orators as an affront to Mexico's dignity by its big neighbor to the north.

Nobody seems to be exactly certain just what makes up the Chamizal. U.S. officials say a sizable chunk is undeveloped land or is occupied two stockyards. But some of it may be potentially valuable property along the river in El Paso.

And if such land were to be handed over to Mexico the Chamizal might become a pretty fiery issue in El Paso and throughout Texas, too.

A week ago Kennedy and President Lopez Mateos of Mexico issued a communique during Kennedy's stay in Mexico City saying they were going to instruct their executive agencies to "recommend a complete solution to this problem."

At his news conference Thursday Kennedy said the Chamizal area was "awarded to Mexico in the arbitration award of 1911" but that the United States, which had agreed to arbitration, "backed down and did not accept the award."

Both in the communique, and in Kennedy's statement, it was indicated the two presidents think it it time for both sides to yield ground and press for a solution. The communique said a solution would be sought "without prejudice" to judicial positions and in a way which "takes into account the entire history of this tract."

There was no explanation of what these phases mean. It appears, however, that the communique was saying there would be a minimum of further legalistic arguments, and that there would be full consideration of the practical problem of taking away a part of an established city and giving it to a foreign country.

In 1894 a Mexican citizen laid claim to the Chamizal area contending it had become a part of Mexican territory through a change in the course of the Rio Grande which forms the boundary from a part of El Paso eastward to the Gulf of Mexico.

The claim to the Chamizal went to the Mexican-U.S. Boundary Commission, created many years ago to settle just such disputes.

The boundary commission held hearings on the claim but was unable to make a decision. It was agreed to add a third member to form an arbitral board. The board was instructed to "decide solely and exclusively" whether the Chamizal tract is in the United States or Mexico.

Eugene Lafleur, a Canadian professor of international law, was chosen as third member. He and the Mexican member concurred in an award, and the U.S. member dissented.

But the U.S. position for years was that the award, giving Mexico that part of the Chamizal south of the channel of the river as it was in 1864, not only was not in accord with the arbitration agreement but that it was impossible to carry out because nobody could prove where the river channel was in 1864.

With good will on both sides, some experts believe the two countries could decide how many acres actually are involved on the basis of where the river was in 1864 or on some other basis and a compensatory plan could be worked out.

Mexico, claiming the Chamizal as part of its national territory doubtless would be offended by any offer of cash compensation and probably would reject such an offer, informed sources believe.

Some experts believe if there can be an agreement on the number of acres due to be returned, the land might be carved out of the Chamizal or in adjacent areas in a manner causing a minimum of problems for El Paso.

Oregon Student Dies Of Plunge Inside Chimney

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A University of Oregon student from California plunged 208 feet to his death down the inside of a chimney on a downtown apartment house early Saturday.

The coroner's office identified the victim as George Joseph Salzer, 20, Los Altos, Calif., who was working for the summer at West Coast Veneer Co.

A companion, John Whitehouse, 20, Portland, said he and Salzer had climbed to the top of the Ione Plaza to take a look at the view.

The Ione is a fashionable apartment house on the edge of downtown Portland.

He said he and Salzer climbed to a penthouse patio by the fire escape, then climbed another ladder to the roof.

Whitehouse said they both climbed a 30-foot ladder to the top of the chimney. It was dark, he said, and part of the chimney opening was covered. Both walked on the cover.

Whitehouse said he turned to look at the view, and when he looked around again, Salzer was gone. He said he then took three steps cautiously and halted when one foot went out over the chimney opening.

Ngo Dinh Diem Pledges Ridding Of Communists

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—President Ngo Dinh Diem pledged Saturday on his eighth anniversary as head of South Viet Nam to drive the Communist guerrillas out of the land.

As he spoke two government operations against the guerrillas were reported underway in an area 20 miles west of Saigon and 150 miles to the South.

Preliminary reports said the 600 South Vietnamese flown into battle by American helicopters Friday had made contact with a guerrilla force in the Rachquet area 20 miles to the West and was "pursuing" them.

The reports said 12 guerrillas had been killed and six others captured in the first clash on the plain of reeds.

There were no final reports of another operation against the guerrillas who overran a civil guardpost on the Camau Peninsula in Southern Viet Nam. In this action about 400 South Vietnam-Diem pledged "our cause will triumph" and said, "the courage and determination of our people have overcome difficulties caused by the Communists.

Union Strike May Cripple Space Plants

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Unions for 125,000 workers have set a strike for July 23. They said it would cripple the United States aerospace industry.

The strike decision was reached Saturday at a meeting between top-level negotiators of the International Association of Machinists and the United Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO.

A walkout would involve production workers at missile and airplane plants throughout the nation, as well as at many missile bases.

The announcement came a few days after a clear indication from a federal official that the administration would step in to avert any tieup in the sprawling aerospace industry. What action might be taken was not disclosed.

Unless contract agreements are reached by July 23, union negotiators said, the two unions will strike all plants of Lockheed, North American, Douglas, General Dynamics-Convair, Ryan Aeronautical and Aerojet General throughout the United States.

Workers also will be called off the job at these missile bases: Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.; Pacific Missile Range; Cape Canaveral, Fla.; Sheppard AFB, Tex.; Dyess AFB, Tex.; Walker AFB, Roswell, N.M.; Lincoln AFB, Neb.; Warren AFB, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Fairchild AFB, Wash.; and missile bases at White Sands, N.M.; Omaha, Neb.; Plattsburgh, N.Y.; Forbes, Kan.; Shilling, Kan.; Altus, Okla., and Neosha, Mo.

Negotiators said the companies will be given notice of contract termination on July 13, with the strike date set for 10 days later. The strike date had been set tentatively a few days ago.

Federal Mediator Walter Maggiolo said a few days ago that Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg won't tolerate a walkout in the huge aerospace industry but did not indicate what action the administration might take in event a strike was called.

In a joint statement, the union announced:

"Together our unions will strike the 51 plants, test sites and missile bases of these firms on July 23, unless by that time an honorable settlement has been reached."

The unions are seeking wage increases and other benefits. Average hourly wage in the aerospace industry is $2.71.

"The industry must close the wide gap in wages by providing catchup increases and continued protection against increases in the cost of living," the statement said.

Contract talks have been underway for the past three months.

The government could invoke an 80-day injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act or appeal to both sides to wait until a factfinding committee is appointed.

Bullpup Missiles Sink Destroyer Off U.S. Coast

NORFOLK V.a. (AP) — The destroyer Fullam sank on Saturday beneath the waves she had ridden so stalwartly for the past two decades.

The radioactive ship was purposely sunk by A4D Skyhawk aircraft from the carriers Forrestal and Enterprise, using air-to-surface Bullpup missiles.

The cruiser Newport News and other 2nd Fleet ships finished the doomed ship off with guns.

The Fullam lay dead in the water some 130 miles southeast of Cape Henry. She was towed there Friday by the service force salvage ship, Recovery.

The Fullam, built in Boston in 1940, was used for experimental purposes in the April-June 1958 nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Radioactivity rendered her unacceptable as scrap, and the job of scrubbing her clean was thought more expensive than she was worth.
